PREFACE

As an annual publication Smull's Legislative Hand Book for the year 1919, to our regret, is not presented to its readers as early as in previous years, the delay being the result of a number of causes, the chief of which was the late war and printing conditions. By reason of a change in the State Government and the Legislature being in session it was deemed advisable to wait in the preparation of certain parts of the Hand Book until the Governor's new cabinet officers and their assistants had been appointed and the Legislature had completed its work.

The election tables of November, 1918, including the vote for Governor in detail, have been included; the appropriations made and the primary and general election laws passed by the Legislature of 1919 are also given, and all other tables and data revised to date.

The compilers return sincere thanks to the many National, State, County and City officials, and to all others, who have so kindly and willingly aided in the preparation of this edition of the Manual.

NOTE.—To ascertain any day of the week, first look in the table for the year required, and under the months are figures which refer to the corresponding figures at the head of the columns of days below. For Example:—To know on what day of the week July 4, 1917, will fall, look in the table of years for 1917, and in a parallel line under July is figure 7, which directs to column 7 in which it will be seen that July 4 falls on Wednesday.

The Board originally consisted of five members who were appointed by the Governor. Under the amended Act, which was passed by the Legislature of 1915, the Board consists of not less than five, nor more than seven members, three of whom may be non-residents of Pennsylvania, and shall have charge of the location, construction, maintenance and operation of a canal or waterway commencing at the junction of the Ohio and Beaver Rivers in Pennsylvania; thence, by way of the Beaver and Mahoning Rivers in Pennsylvania and the Mahoning River in Ohio to a point at or near Niles, or Warren, Ohio; thence, northwardly through Ohio to a terminal on Lake Erie, at or near the mouth of Indian Creek in Ohio; and shall also have charge of the development and utilization of water-power that may be created in the construction thereof. The cost of construction shall be assumed by this Commonwealth upon receipt of sufficient guarantee from the several counties of the several States affected, for which reimbursement shall be made to said counties out of any surplus tolls, charges and other income which may accrue from the operation of said canal or the sale of water or water-power.

The members of the Board shall continue in office for the term of four, five and six years, respectively, as designated by the Governor, and each succeeding appointment shall be made for a term of six years, except that in the case of a casual vacancy it shall be for the unexpired term. Each member is required to give an official bond in the sum of $25,000. The present Board was appointed July 27, 1917, and reappointed October 16, 1919.

The Governor shall designate one member of the Board as President, who, during the time required for the preparation of the survey and estimates for the canal, shall receive an annual salary of $5,000; also during said period each of the other members of the Board shall receive an annual salary of $4,000. They shall then serve without compensation until such time as the construction of the canal may be proceeded with, whereupon the President of the Board shall thereafter receive an annual salary of $12,000 and each of the other members an annual salary of $10,000. The members of the present Board receive no salary.

The Board shall elect a secretary, a treasurer, a chief engineer and such officers, engineers, draughtsmen, attorneys, experts and other employes as it may deem necessary, at whatever compensation it may prescribe. The Attorney-General shall be ex-officio the general counsel of the Board. Each member of the Board and all of its employes and appointees shall receive their actual necessary traveling expenses.

The principal office of the Board shall be in Harrisburg, in rooms designated by the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings. Branch offices may also be established in Pittsburgh, or elsewhere, if necessary.

The Board is given full power to secure the necessary property rights for its purposes. On or before the second Monday of January in each year the Board shall make a complete report to the Governor of all its operations during the year, including a detailed statement of expenditures, contracts entered into and cost and character of the work done.

By the Act approved June 17, 1915, P. L. 1008, counties are authorized to increase their indebtedness and issue bonds in aid of the construction by the State or by a commission, board, or other agency thereof, of canals or navigable waterways connecting the Great Lakes or the Atlantic Ocean with any navigable waters of this State.

The Legislature of 1913 appropriated $150,000 for the expenses of the Board in making survey and preparing estimates of its work; the Legislature of 1915 appropriated $25,000 additional for similar purposes, and for the printing of the report of the work of the Board, which was filed with the Governor June 28, 1917; and the Legislature of 1919 appropriated $10,000 for the necessary expenses of the Board and to enable it to cooperate with the United States Government in the construction of the canal.

The Gettysburg Memorial Commission was authorized by the Act of June 13, 1907, and originally consisted of nine citizens of Pennsylvania, all of whom served in the Union Army in the War of the Rebellion.

The site for the monument was selected by the Commission on the line of the third day's battle. The monument, for which $150,000 was appropriated, embraces tablets for each Pennsylvania organization engaged in the battle of Gettysburg, with a complete roster of each officer and enlisted man comprising the organization who were on duty on any of the three days, and was completed and dedicated on September 27, 1910.

The Legislature of 1909 appropriated $10,000 to defray the expenses incident to the dedication of this monument, including transportation to and from Gettysburg of State officials and the surviving honorably discharged Pennsylvania soldiers who were members of Pennsylvania regiments, batteries, or other Pennsylvania organizations which participated in said battle.

The Legislature of 1911 appropriated $40,000 for the purpose of having made and placed in the niches on the monument eight bronze statues—one each of President Lincoln, Governor Curtin, Major-Generals Meade, Reynolds, Hancock, Birney, Pleasanton and Gregg; also for some minor repairs, and expenses of the Commission.

The Legislature of 1913 appropriated $20,000 for procuring or erecting in appropriate places on the site of the Battle of Gettysburg bronze statues in memory of General Humphreys, Hays, Geary, Crawford and Gibbon, all of whom were Pennsylvanians in command of divisions at the Battle of Gettysburg; also for minor repairs to the monument and the printing and publication of the work of the Commission.

The appropriation of 1913 permitted the erection of only three statues, those of Generals Humphreys, Hays and Geary, which were turned over to the United States War Department in July, 1915, and the Legislature of 1917 appropriated $5,000 for the expenses incident to the dedication of these statues, including the transportation of honorably discharged soldiers who served in the Civil War. Arrangements are now being made by the Commission for the dedication of these monuments on October 2, 1918.

The Legislature of 1915 appropriated $4,000 for making necessary repairs to, and the correction of names on the tablets and memorials, and for the incidental expenses of the Commission, including the printing and publication of the 1914 report.

The memorial has been finished and the statues all erected and turned over to the United States Government and nothing remains for the Commission to do but occasional repairs to the monuments, correction of errors found in the names on the tablets, very few of which have come to the attention of the Commission.

The present Commission was appointed by the Governor in compliance with a concurrent resolution of the General Assembly, approved the 17th day of June, 1915, to continue the work of a former Commission, by a further investigation and examination of the various laws now in effect in the several States relating to the recording of deeds, mortgages, the transfer of lands, the insurance of titles, and the practical operation of such laws; and to propose such changes in the Constitution and laws as to insure the best system of recording, and to make report and recommendations to the next General Assembly in 1917.

This Commission made a report to the Legislative Session of 1917, and stated that the amendment to the Constitution, ratified by the people of Pennsylvania since the last report, is in its opinion broad enough to allow an enactment of the method to be suggested by it, and submitted with that report a bill called the "Land Registration Act," recommending its passage in the form in which it was submitted and further recommended that if, for any reason, the proposed Act be not passed at the present Session of the Legislature, for the purpose of observing further the workings of the system in the different states and for the purpose of bringing the system to the attention and understanding of the various people of the Commonwealth, the Commission be continued.

The Commission made a second report to the General Assembly in the year 1919, again recommending the passage of an Act to provide for the settlement, registration, transfer and assurance of titles to land lying in the several counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and to establish a court of land registration for said purpose, but submitted their inability to properly bring the same to the attention and understanding of the people of the various counties of the Commonwealth on account of war conditions, and recommended the continuance of the Commission for the purpose of observing further the working of the systems in the different states, and for the purpose of bringing the system to the attention and understanding of the people of the Commonwealth.

By a joint resolution approved July 18, 1919, the Commission was continued and directed to disseminate such information and publish for distribution such draft of legislation as it may deem necessary to bring the matter properly to the attention of the public. The Commission will make further report and recommendations to the General Assembly of 1921.

The Legislature of 1919 re-appropriated the unexpended balance appropriated by an Act approved July 25, 1917.

Secretary and Treasurer—Arthur P. Townsend, Langhorne, Bucks County.

This Commission is composed of two members of the Senate, appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate; two members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and three persons, appointed by the Governor. All vacancies occurring in the membership of the Commission shall be filled by the remaining members of the Commission.

It was the duty of the original Commission to study, investigate and revise the laws of the Commonwealth relating to insurance; and to report their findings to the General Assembly of 1919, recommending such changes in the existing laws as to the Commission may seem desirable.

The Commission reported to the session of 1919 that it had not had ample time to thoroughly study, investigate and revise the insurance laws but that it was of the opinion that the laws relating to insurance should be revised but at a time when a consolidated code could be enacted, so systematized as to subject matter, and arranged into regular and appropriate titles according to each particular class of insurance; and further, that the General Assembly direct the Legislative Reference Bureau with the aid and assistance of the Insurance Department to prepare a code of the existing insurance laws of the Commonwealth under the supervision of a Commission created for that purpose.

The Legislature directed the Legislative Reference Bureau to cooperate with the Insurance Department and under the supervision of the former Commission, which was continued, to codify and revise the laws relating to insurance companies, fraternal organizations, and department of insurance, the said Commission to make report of its work to the next General Assembly.

The members of the Commission are reimbursed for all expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. The Commission is authorized to appoint a stenographer and a secretary, whose compensation it shall fix. The sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), together with the unexpended balance appropriated in 1917, was appropriated by the Legislature of 1919 to defray the expenses of the Commission.

Lex N. Mitchell, Punxsutawney, Jefferson County.

George C. Bradshaw, Crafton, Allegheny County.

This Commission, appointed by the Governor, is composed of five citizens of the Commonwealth, learned in the law, whose duty it shall be to revise, collate, and digest all acts and statutes relating to or touching the penal laws of the Commonwealth, and was directed to report the result of its labors to the Legislature of 1919, but on account of the magnitude of the undertaking the Commission was unable to make a complete and final report, and the work of the Commission was continued by a concurrent resolution approved by the Governor on June 23, 1919, and directed to make its final report to the Legislature of 1921. One of the commissioners shall be designated by the Governor as draftsman and secretary of the Commission, and shall receive $4,000 and his actual necessary expenses; the other members of the Commission shall receive their actual necessary expenses.

The sum of $6,000 was appropriated to defray the expenses of the Commission.

COMMISSION TO CODIFY AND REVISE THE LAW RELATING TO BANKS, PRIVATE BANKERS, AND TRUST COMPANIES.

Chairman—George D. Edwards, 5475 Darlington Road, Pittsburgh, Allegheny County.

This Commission, appointed October 17, 1917, by the Governor, consists of five persons whose duty it shall be to codify and revise the law relating to banks, private bankers, and trust companies doing business with this Commonwealth; and to recommend such changes in the existing law as may seem desirable.

The Commission reported to the General Assembly at the session of 1919 and presented for its approval the bill reorganizing the Banking Department, which was passed by the Legislature and approved by the Governor, May 21, 1919.

By Act of July 21, 1919, the Commission was continued and its duties were increased by the addition of codifications and revisions of the laws relating to "savings institutions, building and loan associations, loan brokers, and all other corporations, persons, partnerships and associations under the supervision of the Banking Department," and to report the same to the General Assembly at the session of 1921, recommending such changes in existing law as may seem desirable to the Commission.

The Commission is now completing revisions and codifications of the law relating to Banks and Trust Companies. It also expects to prepare an Act relating to the so called "Blue Sky" legislation.

The members of the Commission are reimbursed for all expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

The sum of $5,000 was appropriated by the Legislature of 1917 to carry out the provisions of the act, and the Legislature of 1919 appropriated an additional sum of $5,000 to further the work of the Commission.

BUILDING COMMISSION, STATE INDUSTRIAL HOME FOR WOMEN, MUNCY, LYCOMING COUNTY.

(Authorized by Act of July 25, 1913, P. L. 1311; Act of July 25, 1917, Appropriation Acts, p. 258, and Act of July 21, 1919, Appropriation Acts, p. 254.)

Chairman—Willis F. McCook, Fifth and Amberson Avenues, Pittsburgh, Allegheny County.

Treasurer—Grier Hersh, York, York County.

J. H. Weaver, Williamsport, Lycoming County.

(Two vacancies.)

Secretary—Frank Smith, 603 West End Trust Building, Philadelphia.

Architect—Horace Trumbauer, Land Title Building, Philadelphia.

The Act provides that this Home shall be constructed on the cottage plan, and the entire cost of the site and buildings shall not exceed $500,000. The Commissioners receive no compensation, but are allowed their actual necessary expenses, and are authorized to appoint a superintendent of construction and such other persons they may deem necessary.

This Home is designed for the reception of females between sixteen and thirty years of age convicted of any criminal offense. Its aim is to prevent young offenders against the laws from becoming hardened criminals by subjecting them to such remedial preventative treatment, training and instruction as will conduce to their mental and moral improvement.

The Commission has purchased a site, consisting of about 500 acres of land immediately adjacent to the property of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Muncy Station, Lycoming County, upon which the buildings are to be erected. Under an Act approved May 1, 1915, P. L. 212, the Commission is authorized to purchase 500 additional acres of land at a cost of not more than $10 per acre, for the purpose of acquiring and controlling an adequate water supply for the Home. Upon the completion of the buildings necessary for the accommodation of 75 inmates, the Commission shall turn over the Home to a board of managers, which shall be composed of nine citizens to be appointed by the Governor.

Work was commenced upon the Administration Building and three cottages in September, 1915, which are now completed and ready for occupancy. The sewage disposal and water supply system, and the grading and road building are well under way and should be completed sometime during the latter part of 1919.

The Legislature of 1913 appropriated $250,000 for the work of the Commission; the Legislature of 1917 made an additional appropriation of $130,000; and the Legislature of 1919 made a further appropriation of $180,000 for the completion of buildings, construction of water supply system, and sewage disposal plant, building roads, and improvements of grounds, purchase and installation of tools, machinery, mechanical and educational supplies, furniture, furnishings, and other necessary supplies and equipment, salaries of employees, and maintenance of patients.

COMMISSION FOR THE SELECTION OF A SITE AND THE ERECTION OF A STATE INSTITUTION FOR INEBRIATES.

(Authorized by Act of July 25, 1913, P. L. 1306; as amended by Act of July 25, 1917, P. L. 1212.)

Chairman—Lewis S. Sadler, Carlisle, Cumberland County.

Secretary and Treasurer—Francis J. Hall, Harrisburg, Dauphin County.

E. P. Young, Towanda, Bradford County.

Harry Keller, Bellefonte, Centre County.

Samuel S. Woods, Lewistown, Mifflin County.

James W. Shull, New Bloomfield, Perry County.

This Commission is authorized to select a site and supervise the construction of an institution for the detention, care and treatment of inebriates, or persons habitually addicted to the use of alcoholic drink or intoxicating drugs, to be known as the State Institution for Inebriates.

The tract of land to be selected by the Commissioners shall be accessible by railroad facilities from all parts of the Commonwealth and shall be well adapted to the preservation of the health, occupation and maintenance of the inmates of the institution. The plans for the buildings shall be selected by the Commissioners, and approved by the Governor. The Commission is empowered to appoint an architect, a superintendent of construction, a secretary, a stenographer, and such other employes as it shall deem necessary.

The Legislature of 1913 made an appropriation of $20,000 to carry out the provisions of this Act, but no further appropriation was made by the Legislature of 1915 on account of the reduced revenues of the State.

The Legislature of 1917 appropriated $100,000 for the purchase of additional land and the laying of water mains, sewers and drainage pipes; also $100,000 for the construction and erection of the necessary buildings for the housing of the inmates and an administration building. As soon as buildings sufficient to care for fifty patients shall be available such buildings shall be turned over to a board of nine trustees to be appointed by the Governor, who shall serve without compensation.

The members of the Commission receive no compensation but are allowed their necessary expenses.

BUILDING COMMISSION, EASTERN STATE HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE, SELINGSGROVE, SNYDER COUNTY.

(Authorized by Act of July 25, 1917, P. L. 1206.)

Chairman—Charles T. Aikens, Selingsgrove, Snyder County.

Treasurer—D. Maurice Wertz, Waynesboro, Franklin County.

J. J. Corson, Jr., Norristown, Montgomery County.

Jacob E. Naftzinger, West Reading, Berks County.

Charles T. Thomas, Whitford, Chester County.

The plans and specifications shall provide for buildings capable of accommodating at least one thousand patients, and in such manner that additional accommodations may be provided without undue cost, from time to time, as appropriations for such purpose may be made. The Commission has selected a site in Selingsgrove, Snyder County, for the location of the new hospital, the buildings for which will be started in the spring.

The Legislature of 1917 appropriated $52,000 for the purchase and improvement of the site, the preparation of plans and specifications for the building of said hospital, and the traveling and incidental expenses of the Commission; and the Legislature of 1919 appropriated the further sum of $20,000 for the purchase of property upon which option had been taken.

When the General Assembly shall make an appropriation for the construction of the hospital, said Commission shall appoint a superintendent of construction, and such other persons as it may deem necessary to secure the speedy and economical construction of the buildings of said hospital, and the improvement of the said site, at such compensation as shall be fixed by the Commission.

When the General Assembly shall have made sufficient appropriations, and when the buildings are sufficiently constructed and furnished to accommodate five hundred patients, the Commission shall surrender its control over said hospital and buildings to a board of nine trustees, who shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Said trustees shall appoint a competent and skillful physician, of special training and experience in the treatment and care of the insane, who shall be superintendent of said hospital, and shall have charge, supervision, and direction of the hospital. The trustees are also authorized to appoint assistants, and any other employes as they may deem necessary, whose compensation they shall fix.

DUTIES AND POWERS OF STATE OFFICERS AND BOARDS.

THE EXECUTIVE.

The Executive Department of the Commonwealth consists of a Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Attorney-General, Auditor-General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs and a Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The Governor.

The supreme executive power of the Commonwealth is vested in the Governor; he is Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy of the Commonwealth, and of the militia, except when they are called into the actual service of the United States, and takes care that the laws of the Commonwealth are faithfully executed. He holds his office for four years from the third Tuesday of January next succeeding his election, and is not eligible to the office for the next succeeding term. No person is eligible to the office of Governor except a citizen of the United States who has attained the age of thirty years and has been for seven years next preceding his election an inhabitant of the Commonwealth, unless he has been absent on the public business of the United States or of his State.

He may on extraordinary occasions convene the General Assembly, and in case of disagreement between the two Houses, with respect to the time of adjournment, adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper, not exceeding four months; he may also convene the Senate in extraordinary session for the transaction of executive business, and he shall from time to time give to the General Assembly information of the state of the Commonwealth, and recommend such measures as he may judge expedient; and he may require information in writing from the officers of the Executive Department of the State government upon any subject relating to their respective offices. All bills and concurrent resolutions, except for adjournment, must be submitted to him for his approval. If any bill shall not be returned by the Governor within ten days after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the General Assembly by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall be a law unless he shall file the same with his objections, in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and give notice thereof by public proclamation within thirty days after such adjournment. He nominates and, by and with the consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoints a Secretary of the Commonwealth, an Attorney-General, an Adjutant-General, a Commissioner of Insurance, a Commissioner of Banking, a Secretary of Agriculture, a Superintendent of Public Instruction, a Commissioner of Health, a Superintendent of State Police, a Commissioner of Labor and Industry, a Chief of the Department of Mines, a Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings; a Commissioner of Forestry, a Commissioner of Fisheries, a State Highway Commissioner, a State Librarian, a Superintendent of Public Printing and Binding, the members of the Public Service Commission, Workmen's Compensation Board, State Board of Censors and such other State officers as he may be authorized to appoint. He fills all vacancies in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which expire at the end of the next session. He has power to fill any vacancy that may happen during the recess of the Senate in the office of the Auditor-General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs or Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a judicial office or in any other elective office he is or may be authorized to fill. He commissions all State officers elected by the people or appointed by himself (except the Lieutenant-Governor and members of the General Assembly), all judges, magistrates and justices of the peace, all county officers that require commissions, notaries public, commissioners of deeds, officers in the National Guard, and such others as he may be directed by law to commission. He also appoints the members of the boards of the various State institutions, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and may remove public officers for cause, as provided by law, or upon proper investigation and proofs of misconduct.

On receipt of the returns of the election of electors for President and Vice-president, he enumerates the number of votes given for each one, and declares by proclamation (published in one or more newspapers) the names of the persons duly elected, and delivers to each one a notification of his election on or before the last Wednesday of the month in which they are elected. He also causes three lists of the names of the electors to be made, certified and delivered to the electors on or before the day on which they meet to cast the vote of the State for President and Vice-President. As soon as the result of any election for judges of the Supreme and Superior courts has been determined according to law, he issues a proclamation declaring the number and names of the persons elected.

On receipt of the returns of the election of members of Congress from the several districts of the State, he declares by proclamation (published in one or more newspapers), the names of the persons so returned, and transmits the same to the House of Representatives.

Upon the receipt of the certificate of the result of the vote on the election of United States Senator from the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the Governor issues a certificate of election under the seal of the Commonwealth to the candidate receiving the highest number of votes. In case of a vacancy happening in the office of United Senator the Governor makes a temporary appointment to fill the vacancy until such time as said vacancy shall be filled by an election, as provided for by law.

He approves all charters of corporations for profit created under the general corporation act of 1874 and its supplements, and the charters of insurance companies created under the acts of 1911, and issues letters patent to all corporations for profit created under the laws of the State.

The Governor signs all patents for lands issued in the name and by the authority of the State.

He may order out for actual service, by draft or otherwise, as many of the militia as necessity demands, in case of war, invasion, the prevention of invasion, the suppression of riots, and to aid civil officials in the execution of the laws of the Commonwealth.

He has power to remit fines and forfeitures, to grant reprieves, commutations of sentences and pardon, except in cases of impeachment; but no pardon shall be granted nor sentence commuted except upon the recommendation in writing of the Board of Pardons, or any three of them. He signs all death warrants of persons sentenced by the courts of oyer and terminer to be hanged, and fixes the day of execution. He may demand fugitives from justice from the executive of any other State or Territory, and issue warrants for the arrest of persons resident in this State upon the requisition of the Governor of any other State or Territory.

Records and instruments of writing intended for use in other States and Territories are authenticated by the Governor under the seal of the State.

He has authority, through proclamation, to close for a period not to exceed one season at one time, any county or counties, or any section of a county, to either hunting or fishing, or to close any stream or part of streams to fishing, because of excessive drought and consequent danger from forest fires, low water, and the presence of contagious or infectious diseases, when such action may be necessary to conserve either the health or welfare of our people or our natural resources.

He may also request the resignation of State employes, under certain conditions, whom by reason of physical or mental disability have become permanently incapacitated from performing their regular official duties, and place them on the retirement list, with half pay, during the remainder of their lives.

He is authorized to employ such consultants, experts, accountants, investigators, inspectors, and clerks, as he may deem necessary, and fix their salaries, wages and fees, to inform, advise, and assist him in properly supervising and directing the Commonwealth's business and caring for the public welfare.

He is, ex-officio, a member of the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings, the Commission of Public Welfare, the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association, the Armory Board, the Board to Pass upon the Necessity for the Construction of Elevated and Underground Passenger Railways, the Commission of Soldiers' Orphan Schools, the Emergency Public Works Commission, the College and University Council; President of the Board of Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania; and a trustee of the State College, Allegheny College, and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, at Erie.

He is also, ex-officio, a visitor to the Philadelphia city and county prisons, to the penitentiaries of the State, to the several lunatic hospitals and the soldiers' orphan schools.

The Secretary to the Governor.

is charged, under the direction of the Governor, with the duties appertaining to official correspondence, receiving all applications for appointment and commissions, and with the supervision of the general clerical work of the office. It is his duty to have charge of the executive office for the transaction of such business as may not require the personal attention of the Governor, and to notify him of such business as may need his immediate action.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

is elected at the same time with the Governor, for the same term, and must have the same qualifications in all respects. He is President of the Senate, but has no vote unless they are equally divided. He is also a member of the Board of Pardons and the Commission of Public Welfare. In case of the death, conviction or impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation or other disability of the Governor, the powers, duties and emoluments of the office, for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, devolve upon the Lieutenant-Governor.

In case of a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant-Governor, or when he shall be impeached, or when he is unable to exercise the duties of his office, the powers, duties and emoluments thereof, for the remainder of the term, or until the disability be removed, shall devolve upon the President pro tempore of the Senate, who, in like manner, becomes Governor if a vacancy or disability occurs in that office.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth is the head of the State Department. He is appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. He is also a member of the Board of Pardons, the Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners, the Board of Revenue Commissioners, the Board of Property, the Board to Pass upon the Necessity for the Construction of Elevated and Underground Passenger Railways and the Board to License Private Bankers.

His duties bring him into intimate relations with the Governor, as nearly all the official transactions of the latter pass through his hands, and a record of all his official acts is kept in the State Department. The Secretary is the keeper of the seals of the State, and affixes them to, and countersigns such instruments as the law requires.

The act of May twenty-fifth, one thousand nine hundred and seven, requires that all fees, percentages and commissions received by him, by virtue of his office as Secretary of the Commonwealth, or on collections made by him as such, shall be paid daily into the State Treasury.

He is the custodian of the laws and resolutions passed by the Legislature, and they and the veto messages of the Governor are prepared for publication and distributed under his supervision.

The official bonds and recognizances of all State, county and municipal officers and notaries public, whom the Governor commissions, are kept in the State Department, and all commissions, appointments and proclamations issued by the Governor are countersigned and a record thereof kept by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Under the general corporation laws of the State, proceedings for the organization of all corporations for profit, the amendment of their charters, the purchase and sale of franchises and property or merger and consolidation of companies, the change of their corporate names and extension of route by street railway companies, their reorganization after judicial sale, are all conducted under the scrutiny of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and recorded in his department. Proceedings for the increase or decrease of stock or indebtedness, change in par value of shares, change in location of principal office, and decrease of dissolution of all corporations are required to be filed therein.

No foreign corporation can lawfully do business in this State, without first appointing the Secretary of the Commonwealth and his successor in office to be its true and lawful attorney and authorized agent, upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding against it may be served; the power of attorney shall be executed with the seal of the corporation, and signed by the president and secretary thereof; and shall contain a statement showing the title and purpose of said corporation, the location of its principal place of business in the Commonwealth and the postoffice address within the Commonwealth to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send by mail any process against it served on him.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth is also the custodian of the election returns for National, State and such county officers as receive executive commissions, and he compiles and publishes the returns of the State elections.

He keeps a record of all death warrants, respites, pardons, remittances of fines and forfeitures and commutations of sentences.

Proceedings in regard to interstate extradition for fugitives from justice are examined, passed upon and approved by him before the executive order is made thereon.

Besides these there are many ministerial duties of a minor character performed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Rules of Practice of the Department of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Rules Governing Applications for Letters Patent, Etc.

Corporations of the Second-Class.

The following rules governing the applications for and the granting of Letters Patent, and concerning the practice of this office with reference to corporations, founded upon the Acts of Assembly and the opinions of the Attorney-General, are submitted for the guidance of those interested.

Notices.

The notice of an intention to apply for a charter should give the names of at least three incorporators, designate the time when application will be made to the Governor for the charter, the Act of Assembly under which it is made, and the purpose proposed.

Twenty-one days' notice must be given of the intended application, by weekly advertisement in two newspapers of general circulation, printed in the proper county.

Legal or technical publications or papers not printed in the English language are not regarded as in this class; but additional publications may be made in them, if desired.

The proof of the publication of the notice must be filed in this office upon the maturity of the certificate.

Filing of Certificate.

The certificate of organization should be on file in this office during the period of publication and the Letters Patent fee and bonus fee should accompany the application.

This rule greatly facilitates business, as applications are examined when received, and needed changes or corrections can thus be made before the maturity of the notice.

Readvertisement will be required on applications received thirty days after the time designated in the notice.

Attorneys or others who have forwarded papers to this office, on which no further action has been taken, will after sixty days from such receipt, be requested to complete the same, or they will be either returned or certified to the Attorney-General for such action as he may deem proper.

All charters, after approval by the Governor, must be recorded in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. By making the application in exact duplicate originals, it will facilitate the work of recording and expedite the mailing of the charter.

Public Service Companies.

Applications for the incorporation, organization, creation, and the removal or amendment of the charters of public service corporations, and proceedings evincing the sale, assignment, transfer, lease, consolidation or merger of such corporations, should be filed in duplicate in this Department.

Contents of Certificate and Statement of Purpose.

The certificate must have at least three incorporators and at least two subscribers, one of whom must be a citizen of this Commonwealth, and must be acknowledged and verified by at least two subscribers.

The object of the corporation should be restricted to the purpose set forth distinctly in one clause of the incorporation act, and be so concisely stated as to avoid all diversity.

Special care should be taken that ONLY THE PURPOSE IS STATED AND NOT THE POWERS which come to the corporation by grant of law, and that the certificate be confined to the statement of but a single purpose. Certificates for the incorporation of manufacturing and mercantile companies should describe in a general way the character of the articles or goods to be manufactured or sold.

Whenever the certificate of organization of a proposed corporation is received and is found not to be in proper form, it will be promptly returned. A new certificate conforming to the law and to the requirements of this office may be prepared, executed and forwarded for approval.

Certificates of incorporation or articles of association, containing erasures or interlineations will not be accepted.

The designated place of business of the corporation is where the corporate functions are to be exercised, and only one office can be named as such.

A married woman may be named as a director, treasurer or one of the two subscribers to the articles of incorporation.

A typewritten list of all signatures should accompany all papers filed in this Department.

Applications for railroad and street railway charters should be filed in duplicate.

Time of Application.

Charters will not be granted on Saturday, or on any legal holiday, as the State Treasury is closed on these days.

All papers, required to be filed in this Department, may be filed only between the hours of 8 A. M., and 5 P. M., on week days, except Saturday or any legal holiday. Such papers may be filed on Saturday only between the hours of 8 A. M. and noon.

Protests and Hearings.

Protests against the issuing of Letters Patent upon any application should be filed in duplicate in this office as soon after the first publication of notice as practicable. The protest should briefly set forth the ground of opposition and the interest of the protestants; and must be specific, giving the full and correct name of the company against whose application it is filed, and designating the date when the application is advertised to be made. A day for hearing will then be appointed, at which time all parties will be heard by counsel or in person.

Increase and Decrease of Stock and Indebtedness.

Returns of election upon increase or decrease of capital stock should not be combined with the return of election upon increase or decrease of indebtedness. The return of the President or Treasurer as to the actual making of the authorized increase or decrease should be made separately from the election return, and not attached thereto, and is required by law to be made within thirty days after the actual increase or decrease. The return of increase should specify the terms thereof, whether for cash, for materials, labor or property.

Waivers of notice of publication should be accompanied by the affidavit of the Secretary, showing that the persons subscribing to the waiver are the owners of all the outstanding and issued capital stock of the corporation.

Cooperative Associations.

Cooperative associations are corporations, and are subject to all the requirements of the Corporation Laws as to bonus and fees due the State. The amount of the original capital must be specified in the Article of Association. The purpose of the association and the terms upon which persons may become members should be clearly and succinctly stated.

Foreign Corporations.

Foreign corporations, proposing to do business in this State, should first file a power of Attorney in the form prescribed by this Department, appointing the Secretary of the Commonwealth and his successors their true and lawful attorney and authorized agent upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding against them may be served.

Bonus and Fees.

Upon the granting of a charter the whole bonus, which is one-third of one per centum of the capital stock, is payable through this office by all corporations except building and loan associations; all checks or drafts should be drawn to the order of the "State Treasurer."

Blank Forms.

Blanks for applications for charters, proof of publication, increase or decrease of capital stock, or indebtedness, president's returns, waivers and statements by foreign corporations, etc., will be furnished on application.

Note—All fees must be paid in full, and also the whole bonus on charters before papers can be marked filed and recorded, or letters patent can be issued by the Governor.

All fees and bonus should be paid by certified check or New York draft.

Bureau of Commissions.

The work in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth relating to commissions is in charge of the commission clerk.

It is his duty to issue commissions to all officials elected by popular vote, who, by law are entitled to receive them. State officials, judges of the various courts, city and county officers and justices of the peace, for full terms of service, come under this head and commissions are issued based upon the election returns.

Aldermen and justices of the peace elect, upon the certificate of the prothonotary, showing election, are commissioned for the full term of six years. Elections for aldermen or justices of the peace held at any other time than the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in odd-numbered years are null and void.

Appointed officials, such as department officers, trustees and managers of State Hospitals and asylums, members, directors, etc., of various State Boards, Commissioners of deeds, notaries public, policemen, etc., are commissioned only upon receipt of written orders from the Governor, and for such terms as fixed by law.

Petitions, etc., requesting such appointments must be sent to the Governor. If favorably considered orders are issued by the Governor to the commission clerk of the State Department to make commissions in accordance therewith.

Blank forms of application for the appointment of notaries public, for justices of the peace and for policemen, are furnished by the Executive Department upon request.

Other forms must be prepared by the applicants. Where fees are by law made payable before appointments can be made, such fees must always accompany petitions of applicants.

Notaries public, when appointed during the recess of the Senate, are commissioned until the end of the next session of the Senate. When confirmed by the Senate the term is four years from the date of such confirmation. A notary public must give bond and lift commission within thirty days after appointment, otherwise the appointment will be null and void.

Vacancies in the office of alderman and justice of the peace occurring by reason of the erection of any new ward, borough or township, or from the neglect or refusal to lift commission, within the time fixed by law, or by death, resignation or otherwise, can be filled only by the Governor until the first Monday of January following the election in November in odd-numbered years. Commissions of aldermen and justices of the peace must be lifted within sixty days from the date thereof, or the office will become vacant.

The bonds and oaths of aldermen and justices of the peace are to be filed in the office of the prothonotary.

The bonds and recognizances of sheriffs and coroners, and the bonds of prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, and clerks of the several courts, must have the sureties approved by the judges of the court of common pleas, and also by the Governor, and be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth before commissions can issue.

The bonds and oaths of notaries public are to be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The bonds must have two sufficient sureties, and they must make the affidavit as indorsed thereon.

The oath authorized by the Constitution to be administered to all State officers and judges of the Supreme Court and Superior Court must be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Resignations should be addressed to the Governor and forwarded to him for his acceptance.

Military commissions are also prepared upon receipt of written orders from the Governor and Adjutant-General.

The average number of all commissions issued each year is above four thousand, and the number is constantly and rapidly increasing. A complete and accurate record is kept of all commissions, carefully classified and arranged.

All official bonds given to the Commonwealth, if found correct by the commission clerk, are approved by the Governor, then classified and duly filed in the State Department.

Letters and inquiries relating to appointments, commissions, bonds, etc., are promptly answered by the commission clerk.

Several assistants aid in performing the work intrusted to this bureau of the State Department.

Rules of Practice Relating to Requisitions.

The application for the requisition must be made by the district or prosecuting attorney for the county or district in which the offense was committed, and must be in duplicate original papers, or certified copies thereof.

The following must appear by the certificate of the district or prosecuting attorney:

- (a.) The full name of the person for whom extradition is asked, together with the name of the agent proposed, to be properly spelled, in Roman capital letters, for example: JOHN DOE.
- (b.) That in his opinion the ends of public justice require that the alleged criminal be brought to this State for trial at the public expense.
- (c.) That he believes he has sufficient evidence to secure the conviction of the fugitive.
- (d.) That the person named as agent is a proper person, and that he has no private interest in the arrest of the fugitive.
- (e.) If there has been any former application for a requisition for the same person, growing out of the same transaction, it must be so stated, with an explanation of the reasons for a second request, together with the date of such application, as near as may be.
- (f.) If the fugitive is known to be under either civil or criminal arrest in the state or territory to which he is alleged to have fled, the fact of such arrest and the nature of the proceedings on which it is based must be stated.

(g.) That the application is not made for the purpose of enforcing the collection of a debt, or for any private purpose whatever, and that if the requisition applied for be granted, the criminal proceedings shall not be used for any of said objects.

(h.) The nature of the crime charged, with a reference, when practicable to the particular statute defining and punishing the same.

(i.) If the offense charged is not of recent occurrence, a satisfactory reason must be given for the delay in making the application.

1. In all cases of fraud, false pretenses, embezzlement or forgery, when made a crime by the common law, or any penal code or statute, the affidavit of the principal complaining witness or informant that the application is made in good faith, for the sole purpose of punishing the accused and that he does desire or expect to use the prosecution for the purpose of collecting a debt; or for any private purpose, and will not directly or indirectly use the same for any of said purposes, shall be required, or a sufficient reason be given for the absence of such affidavit.

2. Proof by affidavit of facts and circumstances satisfying the Executive that the alleged criminal has fled from the justice of the State and is in the State on whose Executive the demand is requested to be made, must be given. The fact that the alleged criminal was in the State where the alleged crime was committed at the time of the commission thereof, and is found in the State upon which the requisition was made, shall be sufficient evidence in the absence of other proof, that he is a fugitive from justice.

3. If an indictment has been found, certified copies, in duplicate, must accompany the application.

4. If an indictment has not been found by a grand jury, the facts and circumstances showing the commission of the crime charged, and that the accused perpetrated the same, must be shown by affidavit taken before a magistrate (a notary public is not a magistrate within the meaning of the Statutes), and that a warrant has been issued and duplicate certified copies of the same, together with the returns thereto, if any, must be furnished with the application.

5. The official character of the officer taking the affidavit or depositions and of the officer who issued the warrant must be duly certified.

6. Upon the renewal of an application, for example: On the ground that the fugitive has fled to another State, not having been found in the State on which the first was granted, new or certified copies of papers in conformity with the above rules must be furnished.

7. In case of any person who has been convicted of any crime, and escapes after conviction, or while serving his sentence, the application may be made by the jailer, sheriff, or other officer having him in custody, and shall be accompanied by certified copies of the indictment or information, record of conviction, and sentence, upon which the person is held, with the affidavit of such person having him in custody, showing such escape, with the circumstances attending the same.

8. No requisition will be made for the extradition of any fugitive except in compliance with these rules.

Additional Suggestions.

1. At the Interstate Extradition Conference, held in New York, in August, 1887, it was resolved by the representatives of the several States: "That it is the sense of this conference that the Governors of the demanding States discourage proceedings for the extradition of persons charged with petty offenses, and that, except in special cases under aggravating circumstances, no demand should be made in such cases."

2. Requisitions will not issue in cases of fornication and bastardy, desertion (except under special and aggravated circumstances), nor in any case to aid in collecting a debt or enforcing a civil remedy nor in cases in which the offense is of such a trivial character as to leave a doubt as to the issuing of a mandate thereon by the Executive of another State or Territory; nor in a case of seduction, until an indictment is found and the relations of the parties clearly established, so as to leave no doubt that the case is one of seduction, and not of fornication and bastardy.

3. Requisitions will not be issued on petition alone, but the copies of record and affidavits required by the preceding rules must in every case be furnished; and this regulation will be applied with special strictness in all cases where the charge is cheating, obtaining money by false pretenses, embezzlement and the like. False and deceitful representations must be particularly set forth.

4. All papers presented in connection with an application for a requisition must be in duplicate.

5. The agent should, when possible, be the sheriff of the county or his deputy.

6. Each application must be accompanied with the legal fee of one dollar.

Election and Legislative Bureau.

Legislative Division.

This Bureau has charge of all legislation passed by the General Assembly. All Bills and Resolutions that have passed finally are received from the officers of the House in which they originated, are receipted for, and recorded in a book kept for that purpose. They are then turned over to the Executive Clerk of the Governor, who, in turn, receipts for them. After the Governor takes action, whether he approves or vetoes, they are returned to this office and are prepared for printing. They are punctuated, marginal notes are added, indexed, and copy is furnished to the State Printer, after which the proof is read. When the volume is printed, copies are forwarded to judges of the several courts and other officers and persons entitled to receive them.

Election Division.

This Bureau has charge of the filing of petitions and certificates of nomination and nomination papers for all Statewide offices and for such State offices as judges of courts of record, Representatives in Congress, Senators and Representatives in the General Assembly, and members of the State Committees of all parties. These nominations are certified to the county commissioners of the proper counties for printing on the primary election ballot. The county commissioners make return to this office of the votes received by the several candidates and the names of the candidates who were successful at the primaries are then certified to the county commissioners for printing on the official ballots to be used at the November elections.

Returns of the November election are filed with the Prothonotary of the County, who certifies them to this office. After these returns have been tabulated and computed, the names of the successful candidates for Representatives in Congress are certified to the Clerk of the House of Representatives at Washington, and the vote for Senators and Representatives in the General Assembly are presented to the Senate and House of Representatives on the first day of the session succeeding the election. The names of the successful candidates for all commissioned officers are certified to the Governor who thereupon issues their commissions.

Registration Bureau.

The Bureau of Registration was created by the Act of February 26, 1919. It is the duty of the Clerk of this Bureau:—

(1) To register the assumed or fictitious names under which individuals carry on or conduct business when applications for such registry are properly presented, as required by the Assumed Name Act of June 28, 1917, and to make a notation of the cancellation of a business once registered, or of the withdrawals from the personnel of a business once so registered, when such statements of cancellation or withdrawal are presented in accordance with the provisions of the Act approved June 20, 1919.

(2) To register trademarks, trade names, labels, etc., when applied for in accordance with the provisions of the Trade Mark Act of June 20, 1901, as amended.

(3) To register bottle descriptions when applied for in accordance with the provisions of the Act approved June 15, 1911.

(4) To register union labels when applied for in accordance with the provisions of the Act approved April 3, 1903.

(5) To register applications for a license to manufacture or distill and sell ethyl alcohol when applied for in accordance with the provisions of the Act approved July 21, 1919.

He is authorized to satisfy of record mortgages given to or for the use of the Commonwealth upon payment of the same, with costs. He approves contracts for the improvement of roads by State aid, agreements made by counties and townships with the Commonwealth as to the improvement of State-aid highways, and contracts for the new Western Penitentiary. He proceeds against sureties on the bonds of the contractors who furnish State supplies which do not come up to the standard and brings suit against defaulting contractors or their bondsmen to recover loss sustained by the Commonwealth by reletting contracts for stationery and supplies. He acts with the Auditor-General under Act of 1915, P. L. 878, with reference to the escheat of deposits of money or property. He is authorized to purchase at judicial sale real estate of Normal Schools on which the State has a mortgage lien and aids in the distribution of appropriations among such schools. He enforces certain Constitutional provisions against railroad, canal or other transportation companies. He collects amounts due the Commonwealth for purchase money, interest and fees on unpatented lands. He is required to make a biennial report of official business to the Legislature.

Rule of Practice of the Department.

The practice of the Department upon applications for writs of quo warranto, mandamus, or other extraordinary legal process is as follows:

Upon receipt of the complaint or petition requesting the Attorney General to institute such proceeding, a day certain is fixed for hearing and the Department is usually named as the place. Notice of the application and the time and place of hearing, together with a copy of the petition, or complaint, is required to be served by the petitioner upon the respondent, at least ten days before the time of hearing, unless otherwise directed. On or before the day of hearing the respondent must file a formal answer. Petitioner and respondent must file, with the petition and answer, a memorandum of the legal authorities relied upon. At the hearing the parties may appear in person or by counsel. The Attorney General, having no power to administer oaths, the facts are shown by affidavits, although oral statements are sometimes received.

If a prima facie case is made out, the Attorney General allows or grants the application; otherwise it is refused. If the prayer of the petition is granted, he generally files his suggestion or bill in the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, which Court, under the Act of 1870, (P. L. 57), is endowed with special jurisdiction to hear and determine all cases and proceedings in which the Commonwealth is a party. While the general practice is to institute proceedings of this character in said Court, they may at the relation of the Attorney General, and, with his approval, be commenced in another county.

Practice with Regard to Settlements for Taxes and other Claims.

These claims are usually certified to the Attorney General by the Auditor General after a settlement made by that official and the State Treasurer. If the debtor, whether corporation or individual, after the receipt of a copy of the settlement from the Auditor General, neglects to appeal therefrom within the prescribed period to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, the Auditor General certifies said settlement to the Attorney General for collection, and thereupon suit is brought in the Dauphin County Court. The writ and a copy of statement including copy of settlement or account are forwarded for service to the sheriff of the county in which the office or residence of the debtor is located. Judgment may be taken upon the return day in default of an affidavit of defense, together with legal interest thereon from sixty days after the date of the notice of the Auditor General, and an Attorney General's commission of five per centum. If an affidavit of defense is filed, the case is included in a special trial list and tried at a special semi-annual session of the court. If, however, the debtor shall within sixty days after settlement file with the Auditor General his formal appeal from the settlement, and, that official upon application made therefor, shall decline to re-settle the account, the said appeal and specification of objection to the statement are filed in the office of the Prothonotary at Harrisburg and the case without further pleadings is then ready for trial. The Commonwealth by law has preference in trial and hearing of causes involving collection of revenues claimed by the State.

The trial of suits of the Commonwealth for unpaid taxes, bonus and other claims, presents few peculiarities. The Dauphin County Court, as mentioned above, has special jurisdiction under the Act of 1870. Under the Act of 1874, (P. L. 109), tax cases, like other civil cases, may be tried without the intervention of a jury, by filing in the Prothonotary's office a stipulation to that effect, and nearly all of the Commonwealth's cases are thus tried. Testimony on the trial is taken either orally, or by agreement an affidavit may be received in lieu of depositions—many cases are tried entirely by affidavits. As in other cases, either party has the right of appeal after exceptions are overruled from the opinion and finding of the Court and such appeals are argued before the Supreme Court for the Middle District at its annual session at Harrisburg. Cases in which Federal questions are involved may be further appealed to the United States Courts, but such appeals are infrequent.

AUDITOR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

The Auditor-General

is elected by the people, at the general election, every fourth year, and serves for four years from the first Tuesday of May next succeeding his election. He gives a bond to the Commonwealth in the sum of $5,000. He appoints a Deputy and an Assistant Deputy who perform the duties prescribed by him. During the Auditor General's absence, inability, or in case of vacancy, the Deputy performs the duties of the Auditor-General until a successor is duly qualified. The Deputy gives a bond in the sum of $10,000. The duties of the Auditor-General are generally to examine and settle all accounts between the Commonwealth and any person, officer, department, association or corporation. He examines annually the condition of the State Treasury, and is required to publish in six newspapers through the State the monthly statement of the State Treasurer showing the condition of the funds remaining in the State Treasury.

The Auditor-General's powers in relation to accounts coming before him are very broad. He can compel the attendance of all persons having accounts to settle, and of such witnesses as he deems proper, and examine them under oath, and compel the production of all books, papers and documents relating to any account before him, in order to do which he can exercise the power of attachment and imprisonment through the sheriffs and coroners of the several counties. He can procure the testimony of all such persons before any judge or justice of the peace on a commission under his hand and seal. He can commit to prison any witness who refuses to testify or to produce any books, papers or documents when required.

He may, by himself, or in connection with the State Treasurer, send an agent to examine the books, papers and accounts of any corporation, institution or company having accounts to settle with the Auditor-General's office refusing or neglecting to make returns within the time specified by law.

In settling the accounts of the Legislature and the several departments for incidental expenses he can disallow any excess over fair prices.

When it may, in any manner appear that an account has been erroneously or illegally settled, and one year having elapsed from the date of such settlement the Auditor-General, State Treasurer and Attorney-General may revise and resettle the same according to law.

Within thirty days after the settlement of any account on which a balance appears to be due the Commonwealth, the Auditor-General shall send a copy thereof to the person or persons indebted, from which they may appeal to the court of common pleas of Dauphin County, within sixty days after notice of settlement.

All State taxes, unpaid bonus, interest, penalties, and all public accounts settled against any corporation, company, association, joint-stock association, or limited partnership, by the Act of June 15, 1911, P. L. 955, are made a lien upon the franchise and property, both real and personal, of such corporation, from the date of settlement by the Auditor-General and approval by the State Treasurer. In the event of the sale of the property of any such corporation, at a judicial sale, all taxes, interest and bonus, shall first be allowed and paid out of the proceeds of such sale, before any judgment, mortgage or any other claim or lien. Such taxes bear interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum from sixty days after the date of settlement.

After accounts are examined and settled they are submitted, with all the papers, to the State Treasurer for examination and approval. If the latter disapproves of any account he must state his reasons in writing; and if, on due consideration, they still disagree, the reasons in writing of both must be submitted, with all papers relating thereto, to the Governor for final decision.

When accounts are approved by the State Treasurer they are returned to the Auditor-General's office, a certified copy of each one is made and forwarded to the proper party, a record of the settlement is kept, and the originals are properly indorsed, numbered and filed away.

All debts known by the Auditor-General and State Treasurer to be due the State, from all sources, remaining unpaid for ten days after the time allowed for appeals shall have expired, must be placed by them in the hands of the Attorney-General for collection.

Certified copies of all accounts, books and documents on file in the Auditor-General's office, under his hand and seal, shall be admitted in evidence in any court of law and elsewhere in the Commonwealth.

The fiscal year closes on November 30th, and immediately thereafter he makes a report for publication, exhibiting, in the abstract, a statement of the Finances of the Commonwealth.

Wherever the laws recognize a claim on the Commonwealth, and there is no money appropriated to pay it, such account must be settled as other accounts, and the Auditor-General at once reports to the Legislature, if in session; but if not in session, then during the first week of the ensuing session. He may issue a new certificate of debt in lieu of any one lost or destroyed on satisfactory proof of its loss or destruction.

He possesses all the powers and performs all the duties of Escheator-General, and, upon proper information given, appoints Escheators where required. He is also a member of the State Military Board, Board of Public Accounts, Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners, Board of Revenue Commissioners, and is one of the Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings, the Emergency Public Works Commission, the Commission on Public Welfare, and other Special Commissioners or Boards where the money of the State is expended.

In case of the failure of the Court of Common Pleas of any county to appoint an auditor of county accounts, at the last term preceding the first day of January of each year, it is the duty of the Auditor-General to fill such vacancy.

The Act approved July 15, 1897, P. L. 291, authorizes him to prescribe the form, of vouchers, monthly and quarterly returns and statements of county officers and institutions receiving State aid; to appoint, for temporary service, from time to time, expert accountants to examine the accounts of county officers and of institutions; and he is made the custodian of the title papers, insurance policies, plans of buildings and grounds, deeds and other legal evidences of ownership of all the institutions owned exclusively by the State.

The Act approved June 2, 1915, P. L. 730, authorizes him to prescribe the form of report to be made by corporations for the purposes of taxation, fixes the calendar year as the tax year, and clearly prescribes in what manner the officers of the corporation shall arrive at the valuation of the capital stock; but provides that the Auditor-General and State Treasurer, in fixing their valuation, shall make the same upon the basis of the report, or upon "any information within their possession, or that shall come into their possession," with the right to the company dissatisfied with any settlement to appeal therefrom in the manner provided by law. Where no report is filed on or before the last day of March it is the duty of the Auditor-General and State Treasurer to estimate a valuation of the capital stock and make settlement, from which there is no right of appeal.

The Act of April 9, 1913, P. L. 48, provides that on an appeal no facts shall be admitted in evidence that were not brought to the attention of the said fiscal officers in a report filed or an application under oath for re-settlement prior to said appeal, unless the court shall be satisfied that the appellant was unable, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, to have laid such evidence before the fiscal officers.

In counties having less than one million inhabitants the Auditor General is authorized to appoint a mercantile appraiser and to publish his lists of names and classifications; in counties having more than one million and less than one and one half millions of inhabitants (not cities of the first class), the Auditor General is authorized to appoint five mercantile appraisers and necessary clerks, and in cities of the first class the Auditor General and City Treasurer are authorized to appoint five mercantile appraisers.

Duties of the Auditor-General's Department.

The duties of the Auditor General's Department may be considered, for the sake of convenience, under the following heads:

1. Settlements for taxes made directly with taxables.
2. Settlements with officers who collect taxes or fees.
3. Duties in connection with the payment of moneys variously appropriated.
4. Miscellaneous.

1. Settlements for Taxes, Made Directly against Taxables.

The Auditor General, with the approval of the State Treasurer, makes settlements directly against taxables for the following taxes:

1. Tax on Capital Stock of Corporations, or on the interest in limited partnership or joint stock associations.
2. Tax on County, Municipal, School, Borough and Corporate loans.
3. Tax on Gross Receipts of Transportation, Transmission and Electric Light Companies.
4. Tax on the stock of banks and trust companies.
5. Tax on the gross premiums of domestic insurance companies with capital stock.
6. Tax on the net earnings or income of brokers, private bankers and unincorporated banks and savings institutions.
7. Tax on the matured shares of building and loan associations.
8. Tax on the gross receipts of notaries public in Philadelphia county.
9. Tax on tonnage of anthracite coal prepared for market.
10. The act of June 4, 1915, (P. L. 828), provides that the Auditor General shall prescribe the form and furnish and sell in such places and at such times as he may deem necessary, the stamps to be attached to any stock sold, or evidence of the sale or agreement to sell any stock, or bill or memorandum thereof.

The Auditor General "makes settlements," or, in other words, assesses all of these taxes on the basis of sworn reports required to be made by the taxables, or upon any information in his possession. All corporations or persons subject to any of these taxes are required to register in the Auditor General's Department, giving, if corporations, the names thereof, amount of authorized capital, amount of paid-in capital, and the names and addresses of the president, secretary and treasurer. These registries furnish the Auditor General with the data necessary to enable him to send to the taxables the proper blanks upon which to make reports.

Capital stock and loans tax blanks are mailed during the month of December of each year. The reports are made up as of the last day of December, covering the preceding calendar year, and must be filed on or before the last day of February; but the Auditor General may, for proper cause shown, extend the time to the last day of March, after which date he must make estimated settlement and add thereto a penalty of ten per cent. for failure to file the report as required by law.

Blanks on which to make report of gross receipts and gross premiums are mailed during the months of June and December, respectively. The reports must be made up as of the last day of June and December, and must be filed with the Auditor General on or before the last day of July and January, respectively.

Blanks for reports of gross receipts of notaries public in Philadelphia are sent out on or about December 31st in each year.

Blanks for reports of net earnings or income are sent out about the first day of November.

Blanks for reports of gross receipts of notaries public in Philadelphia are sent out on or about December 15th of each year.

On the receipt of these reports they are filed, as of date of their receipt. They are then taken up in order, and the amount of tax due on each ascertained and stated in the form of a settlement, or statement of account, which statement of account, duly signed by the Auditor General, is thereupon forwarded to the State Treasurer for his approval and signature. On its return, an entry is made of the tax upon the books of the department and a certified copy of the settlement is then made and sent to the taxable, who then has sixty days within which to appeal to the court of common pleas of Dauphin County, first presenting a petition for re-settlement under the terms of the Act of April 9, 1913, (P. L. 48). If an appeal is not taken within said period of sixty days the settlement becomes final. Interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum runs on all unpaid taxes from the expiration of said sixty days.

The reports made to the Auditor General for purposes of taxation are not public records, in the usual acceptance of the term, and copies of such reports or information therefrom, are furnished only to parties in interest, such as officers of the company making the report whereof a copy is required, or their counsel, and such copies or information are furnished to these only at the discretion of the Auditor General. Where copies of reports are required for use in litigation, subpoenas must be served upon the Auditor General, requiring their production. It would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to get corporations to make full and correct returns of their affairs, if their reports were open to the inspection of their rivals in business or of the public generally, hence the necessity for the method of procedure above described.

2. Settlements with Certain Officers who Collect State Taxes and Licenses.

The State taxes and licenses which are not paid directly into the State Treasury, but which are collected by county officers and by them paid into the Treasury, are as follows:

1. Mercantile License Taxes.
2. Tax on Inheritances.
3. Licenses.
4. Tax on Writs and Wills.
5. Tax on transfer of property from decedents' estates.

The Auditor General keeps with the treasurers of each county separate accounts for the license moneys which they collect. He also keeps with the register of wills of each county an account of the inheritance tax collected by him. He also keeps with all prothonotaries, clerks of courts, registers and recorders, accounts of the taxes on writs, wills, deeds, etc., collected by them.

By Act of Assembly, approved May 24, 1893, (P. L. 125), all city, county or State officers, authorized to collect or receive licenses or taxes for the Commonwealth, are required to make returns of the same on the first Monday of every month, for the preceding month, to the Auditor General.

3. Duties in Connection with the Disbursement of Moneys, when duly approved Appropriation has been made.

The Auditor General authorizes by warrant the payment of the salaries of all judicial officers, also the salaries and expenses of all other public officers and employees of the Commonwealth, upon the filing with him of a proper requisition, with a detailed itemized statement of claim; he authorizes the disbursement of the appropriations, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to penal, charitable and educational institutions, upon receipt and audit of their quarterly detailed reports. All appropriations provide "a sum, or so much thereof as may be necessary;" consequently, it is the duty of the Auditor General to have all requisitions, claims, quarterly reports, etc., itemized in detail in order to determine what may be necessary.

The Auditor General keeps an appropriation ledger in which all the respective appropriations are entered in separate accounts, with the beneficiaries thereof, to which is charged from time to time all accounts authorized to be expended.

4. Miscellaneous.

The Auditor General, upon proper information of Escheats being given him, appoints escheators, collects the amount received from escheated estates, and authorizes the payment of the expenses of escheats.

Besides the duties heretofore enumerated the Auditor General performs such special duties as are from time to time imposed upon him by special acts of Assembly.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

The State Treasurer

is chosen by the people at the general election, every fourth year, and is commissioned by the Governor to serve four years from the first Monday of May next succeeding his election. He gives bond to the Commonwealth, with ten or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the Governor, in the sum of $500,000.

• His duties are to receive and receipt for all moneys paid into the State Treasury, apportioning the revenues properly between the sinking fund and the general revenue fund, and keep separate accounts of the same; to pay all warrants drawn by the proper officers upon appropriations made by law,

On the first business day of each month he furnishes the Auditor-General a statement giving in detail the different sums which make up on that day the total amount in the Treasury belonging to the sinking fund, and a similar statement of the general revenue fund. (These statements give the names of all banks, trust companies, corporations, firms or individuals with whom the funds are deposited, the amounts of such deposits, the securities held for the safe keeping of the moneys, and must be verified by his oath).

He renders to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, on the first business day of January, April, July and October, a statement giving the balance remaining in the sinking fund in excess of the amount required to pay the interest on the public debt.

He makes an annual detailed report to the Legislature of the receipts and expenditures of the preceding year ending November 30th, and at the commencement of each session makes a financial report to them.

The Treasurer is authorized to join with the Auditor-General in the settlement of accounts, and is vested with powers similar to those of the Auditor-General. With the approbation of the Auditor-General, he may, if he deems it conducive to the public interest, arrange with debtors of the State for the payment of the amount due in installments.

The State Treasurer and Auditor-General (or any agent appointed by either of them) are authorized to examine the accounts of any county officer who refuses or neglects to make returns within the time fixed by law.

All receipts for money paid into the Treasury must be signed by the Treasurer, or his authorized agent, and countersigned by the Auditor-General.

The State Treasurer is the custodian of the several funds of the Public School Employes' Retirement Fund, and all payments made from said funds are made by the State Treasurer, after the warrants have been duly signed by the chairman, and countersigned by the secretary of the retirement board.

Copies of documents and papers under his official seal are evidence in any court of law. He furnishes the commissioners and boards of revision of taxes in each county or city a statement of the amount of tax necessary to be raised therein, and issues his precept to the commissioners and boards of revision of taxes to assess and collect the same.

He is required to collect semi-annually from the banking institutions, in which State funds are deposited, interest at the rate of two per cent. per annum on said deposits, and the Act approved February 17, 1906, P. L. 45, requires him to present all written applications from banks, banking institutions or trust companies, desiring to become depositories of State moneys, to the Board of Revenue Commissioners and the Banking Commissioner, who shall act jointly, for their consideration. The Act relieves the Treasurer from personal liability for money lost by reason of the failure or insolvency of any depository so selected.

He is one of the Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings, a member of the Board of Revenue Commissioners, of the Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners, of the State Military Board, Board of Accounts, Board to License Private Bankers, State Workmen's Insurance Board, Public School Employes' Retirement Board, the Emergency Public Works Commission, and the Commission on Public Welfare.

DEPARTMENT OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS.

The Secretary of Internal Affairs is chosen by the people at the general election every fourth year, and commissioned by the Governor to serve for four years from the first Tuesday of May following his election. He appoints a Deputy and other officers and employes of his Department. He exercises all the powers and performs all the duties pertaining to vacant lands and the Land Office which appertained to the former office of Surveyor General. Through the Bureau of Statistics and Information he inquires into the relations of capital and labor in their bearings upon the social, educational and industrial welfare of all classes of working people, and collects and publishes important statistics and data relating to the resources and the productive and commercial activities of the State. By means of the Bureau of Railroads, the Bureau of Taxes and Assessments, the Bureau of Municipalities, the Bureau of Topographic and Geological Survey and the Bureau of Standards, he collects and publishes statistical data and performs important duties concerning these several subjects.

His Department, under the present organization, consists of seven bureaus, designated as follows:

Land Office, Taxes and Assessments, Railroads, Standards, Statistics and Information, Municipalities, and Topographic and Geological Survey.

The several bureaus of the Department publish reports of their operations, and from time to time periodical publications, all of which may be secured upon application to the Department.

Land Office Bureau.

This bureau contains the records of the first titles acquired by the proprietaries and the Commonwealth to all the lands within the limits of the State; the records of all grants and conveyances from the proprietaries and the State to the purchasers of land; the papers relating to the surveys of the State and county lines, State and turnpike roads; the reports of commissioners relating to the boundary lines of the State; maps and other papers pertaining to the colonial history of Pennsylvania; the minutes of the Canal Commissioners, contracts for sections, culverts, etc., profile maps of the several divisions of the public works and many other records of a miscellaneous character pertaining to the construction of the public works; the records of the Pennsylvania commissioners relative to the Centennial Exposition of 1876; and the reports and investigations made relative to the State boundary monuments.

By Act of April 4, 1919, the Secretary of Internal Affairs is made custodian of all title papers relating to property owned by the Commonwealth and the same are to be kept in the vault of his Department, where they may be inspected.

Rules of Practice of the Land Office Bureau: Applications for Vacant Lands.

The duties that many years ago devolved upon the Secretary of the Land Office, the Surveyor-General and other State officials, relative to the granting of lands to settlers and purchasers, have since the adoption of the Constitution of 1873 been imposed upon the Secretary of Internal Affairs. While the lands of the Commonwealth have been very largely disposed of there are still many cases that involve questions of location and preemption rights brought to the attention and requiring the consideration and determination of the Secretary of Internal Affairs. No records have ever been kept in the Department, or formerly, under the Secretary of the Land Office, or the Surveyor-General, to show what vacant lands the Commonwealth has been or is possessed of, and yet every year there are applications filed for vacant or unappropriated lands, and the disposition of these applications, where no caveats are filed against them is made by the Secretary of Internal Affairs. When caveats are filed against the granting of warrants or patents, or the acceptance of surveys under such applications, the Board of Property is called upon to pass upon the questions that arise by reason of the filing of such papers.

The old laws that existed a century ago with reference to application for vacant lands and their disposition by the officers of the land office have been greatly modified by the act of May 3, 1909, which is now the guide in such cases.

There are now no large bodies of vacant land—that is, land not already appropriated by warrant and survey—within the limits of Pennsylvania. Small tracts, however, are yet frequently discovered in various sections of the State for which office rights have never been granted and which by law remain open for sale by the officers of the land bureau. For such tracts of vacant land, warrants, under certain conditions, can be granted to any person who may apply for the same in proper form.

An application filed in the office of the Secretary of Internal Affairs is the inception of title to all vacant lands within the State. The application must contain a full description of the land.* The forms now in use giving the location by township and county, and also, in descriptive form, the names of the owners of adjoining tracts on the North, South, East and West, as the surroundings of the land may require; the adjoining tracts must be given in the names of the original warrantee owners. The application must also contain the affidavit of a disinterested witness, specifying whether the land is improved or not, and if improved, how long since the improvement was made. In order that interest may be charged from that time. It is important to fix the date of improvement, because if the time is not fixed in the application, the land officers are compelled to charge interest on lands within the purchase of 1768, from the 1st day of March, 1770, less seven years for the period of the war of the American Revolution and within previous purchases from the 1st day of March, 1755.* On improved land North and West of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers and Conewango creek, within the purchase of 1784, interest, when date of improvement is not fixed in the application, can only be charged from the year 1797. It is also necessary for the applicant to declare under oath that he believes that no warrant or other office right has ever issued for land for which he applies, or if such right has previously issued, after giving full particulars in relation thereto, to state that he verily believes that it has been abandoned. These affidavits must be taken before a justice of the peace of the township in which the land is situated, or, if the land should be situated partly in one township and partly in another, before a justice of the township in which the larger part of it is situated. Should there be no justice in the township, the affidavits may be made before a justice of an adjoining township or borough, in which case, the fact that there is no justice in the township in which the land lies must be certified by the justice by whom the oaths are administered. A person deposing to the facts set forth in an application, who shall knowingly have sworn falsely, is made liable to the penalties of perjury. It is also provided in the case of improved lands, or lands upon which settlements have been made, that warrants for such lands can only be granted to the person or persons respectively, who made the improvements or settlements, their legal representatives or assigns, upon proof of ownership of the improvement, right or settlement. After the application has been duly prepared, it is then to be forwarded to the Secretary of Internal Affairs. It is then made the duty of the Secretary of Internal Affairs to make an investigation to ascertain whether the land applied for is in fact vacant and he may cause surveys to be made at the expense of the State to determine the question of vacancy. If the land is unimproved it will be offered to the State Forestry Reservation and if found undesirable for forest culture it shall then be appraised by three appraisers appointed by the Governor, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the Attorney General and the Secretary of Internal Affairs, who are to fix the price at which the land shall be sold to the applicant, and upon payment of the amount of the appraisement and the warrant fee the Secretary of Internal Affairs will grant a warrant authorizing its survey. The County Surveyor will then make a return of survey, and upon payment of the patent fee and the purchase money for any excess returned, the patent may be granted, signed by the Secretary of Internal Affairs and the Governor. The patent shall be recorded in the Department of Internal Affairs, after which it shall be sent to the patentee for record in the county where the land described therein is situated. A caveat will stay proceedings until the Board of Property, after a hearing on citation, renders its decision.

A warrant authorizes the survey of vacant lands only, as they alone belong to the Commonwealth to grant.

Blanks are furnished by the Department to applicants for warrants to survey improved or unimproved lands.

Patents.

A patent is a deed from the Commonwealth, conveying to the grantee all its rights in the land, describing it by metes and bounds, and it passes, as respects the Commonwealth, the complete legal title, all the preparatory measures of warrant, application, survey and acceptance being merged in the patent. The granting of a patent is prima facie evidence that all the previous requisites have been complied with. Before a patent can be issued the purchase money and fees due must be paid; and the land is thenceforth discharged from the lien which till then exists. Generally, the rights of the grantee are concluded by the lines and boundaries described in the survey, though perhaps in a special case there might be an exception.

Third persons claiming by warrant, application, settlement or otherwise may show that the patent was wrongfully issued to the patentee; or rather, that he is trustee for him who has the right, the material consideration being, not who has the patent, but to whom it ought to have been granted—for the land officers, in issuing the patent, act merely in a ministerial capacity, and cannot change the rules of law or rights of parties. And even though he who has the patent sell to a bona fide purchaser without notice, the vendee is in no better situation. His claim under the patent may be contested by one having a better right by settlement, warrant or location. A patent founded on a fraudulent survey, or obtained by misrepresentations and deceit, is void against third persons affected by it.

A patent, however, has always been received in evidence in the first instance, to show that the legal title was out of the Commonwealth, and that all arrearages due the Commonwealth have been paid. The question whether it is good is a subsequent one.

The following are the regulations adopted by the Bureau for the issuing of patents:

1. The patent must issue to the actual owner of the land, or party holding title under the warrantee, or to the executors, trustees, or heirs and legal representatives of the person in whom the title was vested at death, or to the guardians of minor children of the deceased.
2. Warrantees who remain the owners of the land warranted and surveyed to them can obtain patents in their own names (if no caveat remains undetermined), without furnishing any brief or statement of title, upon payment of back purchase money, interest and fees.
3. Executors, trustees and guardians representing the warrantee or his heirs, who apply for patents, must produce evidence of their appointment as such.

*See Act of March 28, 1814, Smith's Laws, Vol. VI, page 207.

4. When the land has passed out of the ownership of the original warrantee, or party who took out the right, the applicant for patent will be required to furnish evidence of ownership by presenting an abstract of title from the warrantee to the applicant.

5. The present owner of a part of a tract of land surveyed in pursuance of any given warrant, desiring to have a patent in his own name can obtain it by having the county surveyor make return of survey of such part. In making the survey, the county surveyor must, besides giving the courses, and distances and quantity of acres in the particular part, indicate the residue of the original tract by dotted lines. The applicant will only be required to pay his proportion of the whole amount due on the tract, with fees. Evidence of ownership must accompany application.

6. When an unpatented original tract has been sold and subdivided the several owners may unite in an application and statement of title for a patent, and, upon payment of amount due, with patent and other fees, a patent will issue to them, the said applicants, their heirs and assigns, according to their respective rights and interest, without setting for therein the particular interest of each.

7. In cases where it is difficult to submit the evidence of title required by this department in order to obtain a patent, any one or more of the owners of the unpatented tract can, through this department, discharge the lien against said tract by the payment of the purchase money, interest and fees shown to be due by the land lien docket, and interest since accrued, and patent can at any time afterward be issued to those entitled to it, upon proof of ownership.

8. Under Acts of Assembly of May 5, 1899, April 29, 1909, and May 28, 1915, all tracts of land entered on the Lien Docket, for which applications have been made or warrants granted, also all lots, in-lots, reserved lots or other land sold by Acts of Assembly, or by commissioners appointed under Acts of Assembly, on which no patents have yet been issued, may now be patented upon furnishing the Department of Internal Affairs an application, properly filled out and executed, showing present ownership of such lands or lots, and upon payment of a fee of $15.

Under Act of Assembly of April 29, 1911, the Secretary of Internal Affairs is authorized to cancel any and all liens, bonds and mortgages now held by the Department against lands of this Commonwealth on which patents have been issued, for unpaid purchase money and interest thereon, and make proper satisfaction on the lien docket, mortgage book, and other records of the Department, on receipt of the sum of $15, covering lien docket and recording fees for each tract of land found entered on said lien docket and so released, and forward a certificate of cancellation to the Prothonotary's Office of the county in which the lien was entered under provisions of the Act of Assembly of May 20, 1864, and the supplement thereto of April 4, 1868, with request that proper entry and satisfaction be made in the records of that office.

Under Act of Assembly of June 27, 1913, "Authorizing and regulating the survey, appraisal and patenting of lands in beds of navigable rivers or streams, permitted by the Government of the United States to be abandoned and filled as no longer of use for ordinary purposes of navigation," the Secretary of Internal Affairs is authorized to grant warrants to survey such lands and issue patents for same, under the provisions of said Act.

Drafts are furnished by the Department for the use of owners of unpatented lands who may desire to have them patented.

Islands.

Islands in the rivers of Pennsylvania have, from the earliest times been granted upon application and survey. The granting of islands in the Susquehanna river is governed by the Acts of March 6, 1793, and April 2, 1822; in the rivers Delaware, Ohio, Allegheny and their branches, by the Act of January 27, 1806.

Application for islands must set forth the name of applicant, location and acreage of the island, etc., and that said island is at least four feet high above common low water, contains at least forty perches of ground exclusive of rocks, and is susceptible of cultivation in grain or esculent roots in common seasons, by their growing and becoming maturely ripe; and that he knows of no other person that has any claim whatever to the island.

The above must be sworn to before a Justice of the Peace of the township in which the island lies.

In order to determine the purchase price, appraisers are appointed to value the island, and this valuation shall not be less than eight dollars per acre.

If no previous claim thereon has been granted, upon compliance with the law, a warrant to survey is issued and survey returned by the County Surveyor to the Secretary of Internal Affairs, and patent issued, as in other cases of vacant land.

For several years past it has been the policy of the Administration of the State to discourage the disposal by the State of islands in the Susquehanna river.

Persons sending money to the Department of Internal Affairs should send by registered letter, postal money order, or certified check. Drafts, checks or postal money orders must be made payable to the Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The Bureau of Assessments and Taxes.

This bureau contains the records of the State and county rates and levies as made in the several assessment districts; statistics exhibiting the total assessed value of both real and personal property returned as taxable for state and county purposes; a statement of all property exempt from taxation, and a record of the number of acres cleared and timber land in the Commonwealth. The principal work of the bureau is to procure from the county commissioners the facts referred to above, to examine the assesment returns, verify them and compile and tabulate them for publication in the annual reports. Special effort is made by the bureau to obtain for the public all the information possible on the subject of taxation and for this purpose annual reports are made by the several boards of county commissioners showing the amount of taxes collected for the support of schools, the poor, and the maintenance of roads, bridges, etc.; also the amount of taxes collected for all purposes, and specially the amounts paid by railway and other corporations for local purposes.

The Bureau of Railroads.

The bureau has charge of the annual reports made to the Department by the corporations of the Commonwealth operating railroad, street-railway, canal, telegraph and telephone lines, showing the capital subscribed and paid in, the indebtedness, amount of business transacted, rates of transportation, amount of tonnage, cost of operation and maintenance, percentage and amount of dividends, number of accidents (with extent of injuries) to employes, passengers and others, and many additional facts of public interest. Also this bureau has the immediate charge of complaints made against these corporations for acts committed contrary to law or transactions not authorized by their charters.

Under the Act of May 1, 1907, all corporations, owning, leasing or operating steam or electric railways, and engaged in the business of carrying freight or passengers, within this State are required to make, on or before August thirty-first, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven, and every third year thereafter, under oath or affirmation a report, setting forth in detail the name of each main line and branch line owned, leased or operated by such corporation, naming the terminal of such main line or branch line, and setting forth the exact lines, at which trains stop to receive or discharge freight or passengers, and the total number of statute miles owned, leased, or operated by such corporation within this Commonwealth.

Rules of Practices of the Bureau of Railroads.

The immediate execution of the laws, with reference to transportation and other corporations, devolves upon the Chief of the Bureau of Railroads. Where complaints are filed against corporations for transcending their corporate functions or encroaching upon individual rights, the matters complained of should be concisely set forth in a petition or complaint and returned, verified by the oath of the party or parties making the complaint. The usual practice in such cases is to notify the corporation complained of to make answer under oath, or to appoint a time and place for a hearing, and to notify all parties in interest to appear and give testimony with reference to the matters complained of. A record is made of the proceedings in the case, together with the conclusions arrived at from the investigation, and filed in the Bureau. If in the opinion of the Secretary the matters complained of have been substantiated and they are beyond the ordinary province of individual redress at law, the case is certified to the Attorney-General for his action. In all such investigations either or both parties may be represented by counsel.

The annual reports required from steam railway, street railway, canal, telegraph and telephone corporations involve a large amount of labor, and are under the custody of the Chief of the Bureau, whose duty it is to compile, edit and publish them. The blank forms for annual reports are forwarded to the corporations on or before the first day of December, each year, and they are prepared, as required by existing laws, to cover the calendar year beginning January 1st and ending the 31st day of December, following. A failure or refusal to make these annual reports on or before the 31st day of March, on the forms prescribed and in the manner and at the time required by the rules and regulations of the Department and the laws of the Commonwealth, imposes a penalty on the delinquent corporations of $5,000. Delinquent corporations as required by law, are certified to the Attorney-General for the collection of the penalty. No defense has thus far availed to relieve the corporation in the proceedings to collect the penalty by the Attorney-General, where it appears that the delinquent corporation has been furnished with the blanks upon which to make the annual report, or has been notified either by letter or person to make the report. The law requiring these reports is so certain in its terms and so exacting in its provisions with reference to the time and character of the reports to be made, that a failure to comply with its provisions must necessitate the imposition of the penalty.

Bureau of Standards.

This Bureau, established by the Act of June 23, 1911, P. L. 1118, regulates and maintains a uniform standard of legal weights and measures in this Commonwealth, to conform with the original standards of weights and measures adopted by Congress, and verified by the National Bureau of Standards; and is to assist in securing the enforcement of laws relating to sealers of weights and measures, now in force or that may hereafter be enacted.

The Chief of this Bureau shall have custody of the State standards of weights and measures; shall compare, test and regulate all weights and measures of all city and borough sealers now in office, or who may hereafter be appointed in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with the State standards when presented at his office for that purpose; shall certify to their correctness by affixing his official stamp thereto, with his name and date of examination clearly marked thereon; shall preserve in his office an appropriate record of services rendered and work performed by him, or under his direction; shall file in his office annual and other reports received from the local sealers; and shall on or before the thirtieth day of November in each year, submit a report in writing to the Secretary of Internal Affairs, for publication as a separate document in book form, setting forth, in sufficient detail, the work done in said Bureau and the work reported to him by the local sealers, together with such other matter relating to that subject as may be deemed of value and interest to the citizens of this Commonwealth.

In accordance with the Act of July 11, 1917, P. L. 799, it is the duty of all county and city inspectors to compare their tests of weights and measures with the standard tests of this Bureau so as to ensure accuracy.

By Act approved June 2, 1919, amending the Act of June 23, 1911, the Secretary of Internal Affairs is authorized to appoint four deputies in the Bureau of Standards, who, with the Chief of the Bureau, shall have power to enter into any county or city and test all instruments and devices used in weighing or measuring anything sold or to be sold, including instruments and devices for weighing at coal mines.

Bureau of Statistics and Information.

By an Act of Assembly approved April 18, 1919, P. L. 80, the Bureau of Statistics and Information was transferred from the Department of Labor and Industry to the Department of Internal Affairs. It is under the immediate charge of a chief of the bureau, subject to the direction and supervision of the Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The bureau shall collect, compile and publish all statistics and useful data and information relating and pertaining to labor, coal mining, oil and gas production, manufacturing industries, commercial operations, public service companies (except transportation companies, which are collected, compiled and published by the Bureau of Railways in the Department of Internal Affairs), and other business interests of the State. The Secretary of Internal Affairs shall have a complete summarized and systematized report of the statistics and information collected and compiled by the bureau published annually, and shall otherwise provide means for making such information available for the use and benefit of the public as he may find necessary.

The Secretary of Internal Affairs, the chief of said bureau, or other person duly authorized by either of them, shall have power to issue subpoenas, administer oaths, hold hearings, and take testimony, in all matters relating to the duties herein required of said Bureau. Any corporation, firm or individual, doing business within the Commonwealth, who shall neglect or refuse for thirty days, to answer questions requested by circular, official blank, or personal application, or who shall refuse to obey the subpoena and give testimony according to the provisions of the act, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be collected by the Secretary of Internal Affairs in a proper action, for the use of the Commonwealth.

Bureau of Municipalities.

By an Act of Assembly approved the fourth day of April, 1919, the Bureau of Municipalities was transferred from the Department of Labor and Industry to the Department of Internal Affairs, with enlarged powers and duties.

The law provides that the said Bureau shall gather, classify, index, make available, and disseminate data, statistical information, and advice that may be helpful in improving the methods of administration and municipal development in the several municipalities of the Commonwealth; and shall maintain, for the benefit of the municipalities, a publicity service to install or assist in the installation and establishment of modern systems of accounting in the various municipalities of the State, and in order to promote a comprehensive plan or series of plans for the probable future requirements of cities, boroughs, or townships of the Commonwealth, either separately or jointly, in respect to a system of traffic thoroughfares and other highways or main highways, transportation of every sort, suitably co-ordinated sites for public buildings, parks, parkways, playgrounds, and other public uses, the preservation of natural and historic features, and any and all public improvements tending to the advantage of municipalities or townships affected, tending to their advantage as a place of business and residence, and to either make or secure or assist in making or securing the necessary surveys, plans, and information.

The Bureau of Municipalities serves primarily as a clearing-house for data concerning municipal endeavor. It collects and disseminates information on municipal conditions and activities of municipalities.

It will, upon request, furnish material on topics of interest to municipalities outlining the best thought and practice, not only in this State, but in other States. The aim is the standardizing of municipal administration in Pennsylvania.

All city, borough, township or county officials are required to furnish such information as may be requested by the Chief of the Bureau of Municipalities or his duly authorized deputy.

Bureau of Topographic and Geological Survey.

By Act of Assembly approved June 17, 1919, P. L. 420, there was established in the Department of Internal Affairs a Bureau of Topographic and Geological Survey.

The Act provides for the appointment by the Governor of a State Geologist who, with the approval of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, appoints the other employees of the Bureau.

The Bureau is to undertake a thorough and extended survey of the State, for the purpose of elucidating its geology and topography.

The survey shall disclose such chemical analysis and location of ores, coals, oils, clays, soils, fertilizing and of other useful minerals, and of waters, as shall be necessary to afford the agricultural, mining, metallurgical, and other interests of the State a clear insight into the character of its resources. The survey shall also disclose the location and character of such rock formation as may be useful in the construction of highways or for any other purpose.

The Bureau shall collect such specimens as may be necessary to form a complete cabinet collection of specimens of the geological and mineral resources of the State. The State Museum shall be the repository of such specimens.

The results of the survey shall be, with the results of previous surveys, put into form convenient for reference.

The work of the survey shall be done on such plan as shall be approved by the Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The Bureau shall collect copies of the surveys of this and other States and countries, and shall digest the information therein contained, to the end that the survey hereby contemplated may be made as thorough, practical, and convenient as possible.

Any person employed for the purpose of the survey may enter into and upon all lands and localities in this State which it may be necessary to examine. In such entry no damage to property shall be done.

The Bureau shall avail itself as fully as possible of the information, maps, and surveys, possessed by citizens and corporations of this State, relative to the geology and topography of the State.

All the facts, of whatever nature, obtained by the survey shall be considered public property, and any concealment or speculative use of the same is prohibited.

All publications of the survey or any part thereof shall be copyrighted by the Department of Internal Affairs in the name of the Commonwealth.

The Bureau may arrange for the cooperation of the United States Geological Survey or of such other national organization as may be authorized to engage in such work, but only in such manner as not to interfere with the plan approved in the manner hereinbefore provided, it being the intent that a prompt and complete survey of this State shall be had without interference or control from any other governmental or private agency or organization.

The State Geologist shall biennially prepare a detailed report of the operations of the two preceding years and the facts obtained by the survey; he shall submit the same to the Secretary of Internal Affairs, who is authorized to print and publish the said information in a suitable and convenient form. Copies of the reports, with all maps and supplements, shall be donated to public libraries, universities, colleges, and museums.

By this Act the Act of May 13, 1909, establishing a Topographic and Geological Survey Commission of Pennsylvania, is repealed.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

The Insurance Department was originally established under the Act approved April 4, 1873, and, as reorganized by the Act of June 1, 1911, P. L. 607, authorizes the appointment of an Insurance Commissioner, prescribes his powers and duties; provides for the licensing, examination, regulation and dissolution of insurance and surety companies and associations and for the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and insurance brokers; provides for the collection of fees, prescribes penalties for the violation of any provisions of the insurance law and repeals all existing acts.

The Insurance Commissioner is appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and commissioned to serve for four years from the first Monday of May following his confirmation. He gives bond to the Commonwealth in the sum of $10,000. He is the chief executive officer of the Insurance Department. His duties are to see that the insurance laws are faithfully executed, to license companies and their agents and to make collection of all taxes and fees; and he has supervision over the operations of fire insurance rate-making bureaus. The Act of May 25, 1907, requires that all fees and taxes received by him by virtue of his office as Insurance Commissioner or on all collections made by him as such, shall be paid daily into the State Treasury. He makes a report to the Legislature annually showing the receipts and expenses of his Department, his official acts, the condition of companies doing business in this Commonwealth, and such other information as will exhibit the affairs of his Department. He is a member of the State Workmen's Insurance Board.

General Requirements and Rules of Practice of the Department of Insurance.

It is required that each insurance company shall file with the Commissioner a certified copy of its charter and an annual statement of its financial condition verified by the officers of the company. Fire, marine, life, casualty and surety companies of other states or countries, must in addition to filing charter, annual statement and such other information as the Commissioner may require, file a power of attorney designating the Insurance Commissioner to accept service of legal process. Such stipulations cannot be revoked so long as the company has any liability in this State. Each company must obtain from the Commissioner a certificate of authority or license to do business in this State, and also must procure a certificate of authority or license for each agent it appoints to transact business for it in this State. Certificates must be renewed annually.

An agent is a person, firm or corporation authorized in writing by a company to solicit or countersign or issue policies of insurance in its behalf. No person, firm or corporation is permitted to act as agent in this State of an insurance company until each person and every member of a firm and each officer of a corporation has filed an application with the Insurance Commissioner to be registered as an agent and until there has been issued by the Commissioner a certificate showing that the company has complied with the requirements of law and that the person, firm or corporation named has been duly appointed its agent. Companies, their agents, insurance brokers and all other persons are prohibited from making any incomplete comparison of policies for the purpose of inducing any person insured in any company to surrender his insurance therein and to take out a policy in another company insuring against similar risks. An insurance agent is made personally liable on all contracts of insurance or suretyship unlawfully made by or through him for or in behalf of any company or association not authorized to do business in this State.

It is unlawful for attorneys, officers, clerks, servants, and employees, or persons otherwise hired or engaged, to receive compensation for life insurance placed, sold, or solicited for the benefit of, or on the lives of their clients, servants or employees.

An insurance broker is a person, not an officer or agent of the company interested, who, for compensation, acts or aids in any manner in obtaining insurance for a person other than himself. A person, firm or corporation may obtain a certificate or license from the Insurance Commissioner to act as an insurance broker by making proper application upon blanks furnished by him for that purpose and answering such interrogatories as he may require. The fee for license as an insurance broker is $10.00 in the case of an individual and $25.00 in case the license is issued to a company or copartnership.

Companies, their agents and insurance brokers are prohibited from paying, allowing or giving, and prospective policy-holders are prohibited from receiving as an inducement to insurance any rebate of premiums payable or any other valuable consideration or inducement whatever, not specified in the policy contract. Only corporations chartered to engage in the insurance and real estate business can be licensed as agents and brokers.

The law for the licensing of life or accident companies doing business upon the assessment plan, was repealed, and such companies or associations cannot hereafter be authorized to transact business in this State except such as were doing business in the State at the time the law was repealed. It is made the duty of the Insurance Commissioner to examine into the condition of companies of this State at least once every three years, and for such purpose he is given free access to all books and papers and is authorized to summon and examine any person, under oath, which he or any of his examiners may administer, in order to ascertain all the facts relative to the condition and affairs of the company.

The Act of May 5, 1915, (P. L. 254), provides for the regulations of certain kinds of insurance by individuals and partnerships, or associations and individuals, known as "Lloyds."

The Act of June 1, 1911, (P. L. 599), authorizes the Insurance Commissioner to proceed against and take possession of any insolvent or delinquent company, order or association transacting any class of insurance, whenever (a) it is insolvent, or (b) has refused to submit its books, papers, accounts, or affairs to the reasonable inspection of the Insurance Commissioner, or his deputy or examiner; or (c) has neglected or refused to observe an order of the Commissioner to make good within the time prescribed by law any deficiency, whenever its capital, if it be a stock corporation, or its reserve, if it be a mutual corporation, shall have become impaired; or (d) has, by contract of reinsurance or otherwise, transferred or attempted to transfer substantially its entire property or business, or entered into any transaction the effect of which is to merge substantially its entire property or business in the property or business of any other corporation, association, society, or order, without having first obtained the written approval of the Insurance Commissioner; or (e) is found, after an examination, to be in such condition that its further transaction of business will be hazardous to its policy-holders, or to its creditors, or to the public; or (f) has wilfully violated its charter or any law of the Commonwealth; or (g) whenever any officer thereof has refused to be examined under oath touching its affairs, the Insurance Commissioner must apply through the Attorney-General to the court of common pleas of Dauphin County or to the court of any county in which the principal office of the corporation is located for an order directing the corporation to show cause why the Insurance Commissioner should not take possession of its property and conduct its business, and for such other relief as the nature of the case and the interests of its policy-holders or the public may require. Upon dissolution the Insurance Commissioner takes possession and appoints a special deputy to liquidate its affairs.

Joint stock fire and marine and casualty insurance companies will be prohibited from doing any business when their capital is found to be impaired 20 per cent. after providing for all liability and reinsurance reserves. When the capital of a company has been found, upon examination, to be so impaired, the Commissioner gives notice to the company to make good its capital within sixty days, and if this is not done, he must require the company to cease doing new business and may institute proceedings for dissolution. Companies receiving notice of impairment of capital must, within sixty days, call upon stockholders for such amounts as will make its capital equal to the amounts fixed by the company's charter. Stockholders refusing to pay the amount called for, upon notice personally given or by advertisement in such time and manner as the Commissioner may approve, are required to return the original certificate of stock held, and in lieu thereof receive new certificates for such number of shares as the stockholders may be entitled to in the proportion that the ascertained value of the funds of the company may be found to bear to the original capital. The Commissioner may permit the reduction of capital in proportion to the extent of impairment, but a capital cannot be reduced to an amount less than that required by the law for the organization of the company.

Policies of fire insurance covering property in this State must be approved and countersigned by licensed agents who are residents of Pennsylvania.

A standard form of policy contract was provided for by Act of June 8, 1915, P. L. 919. This act specifically sets forth what the policy shall contain.

In the case of life insurance companies, the Commissioner is required to ascertain the net value of its policies in force on the basis of the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest at not more than $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. and to require a reserve to be held sufficient to protect the same. Should the reserves of a life insurance company become impaired, the Commissioner may take possession of the company and appoint a special deputy to conduct its affairs or institute proceedings for its dissolution.

By the Act of June 1, 1911, P. L. 559, provision has been made for the incorporation of companies to make insurances—

DEPARTMENT OF FORESTRY.

The Department of Forestry was created by the Act approved February 25, 1901.

It grew out of the Forestry Commission of 1893. This Commission developed into the Division of Forestry in the Department of Agriculture, established by Act of March 13, 1895.

The object of the original Commission was to investigate and report upon the forest conditions of the State.

The purpose of the Department of Forestry is to purchase, develop, and care for the lands constituting the State Forests.

No clearer statement can be made of the organization of the Department than is found in the act creating it, "that there be and is hereby established a Department of Forestry, to consist of a Commissioner of Forestry and four other citizens of the Commonwealth, who together shall constitute the State Forest Commission, each of whom shall be appointed and commissioned by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for terms of four years each."

The State Forest Commission so constituted, as a whole, is charged not only with the duty of purchasing for the State suitable lands for protection and timber culture, but with their management, it has power to make rules for the care of the land. The act contemplates that the Commission shall, as rapidly as funds are available and as fast as public sentiment will approve the necessary expenditure, take proper measures to establish a scientific system of forestry.

In addition to this, the Commissioner of Forestry has duties which are peculiarly his own. He enforces the rules and executes the instructions of the Forest Commission concerning the forests. He is to encourage and promote the development of forestry and to obtain and publish information respecting the extent and condition of forest lands in the State. The Commissioner of Forestry is a member of the Water Supply Commission, and of the Board of Directors of the Commercial Museum.

Under the Act approved March 25, 1903, the Governor appoints a Deputy Commissioner of Forestry, and by the Act of April 15, 1903, the expenditures of the Commission for the purchase of lands for forest purposes are limited to $300,000 per year. The revenue from State Forests is payable into the State Treasury, and by Act of 1915, becomes a part of the State School Fund of Pennsylvania.

The Act of April 15, 1903, confers upon the Commissioner of Forestry and the Commission the right to give to street railway companies the privilege of operating lines of railway over and along public highways within or bordering on State forests.

The Act of May 13, 1903, P. L. 373, authorized the purchase of suitable buildings and land adjacent to the Mont Alto forest or the erection of buildings therein, and the establishment there of a system of practical instruction in forestry, to prepare forest wardens for the proper care of the several forests owned by the State; the school has been established and is under the direction of the Commissioner of Forestry. By the Act of May 15, 1903, P. L. 454, the Commissioner of Forestry was empowered to erect in the same forest a sanatorium for tuberculous patients; by Act approved June 1, 1907, the management of the sanatorium was transferred to the Department of Health.

Under the Act of May 3, 1909, P. L. 413, the Secretary of Internal Affairs is required to submit to the State Forest Commission copies of applications for vacant or unappropriated land, together with a description of the land. The Commission will then determine whether it is desirable and practicable that such vacant or unappropriated land be acquired for the purposes of forest culture or forest preservation; and if they so decide, the Secretary of Internal Affairs will grant a warrant and a patent for such lands without cost to the Commission. The State Forest Commission may also apply directly to the Secretary of Internal Affairs for vacant or unappropriated land, and have the same warranted and patented without the payment of the purchase money, interest, or fees. It is doubtless true, that most of the unappropriated lands within the Commonwealth are of a mountainous character, suitable only for forest purposes. This act obviates the necessity of conveying the lands as heretofore, and then buying them back for the purpose of forest preservation.

The Commissioner of Forestry and the State Forest Commission are also authorized to give to boroughs and other municipalities of this Commonwealth the privilege of impounding water upon any State forest now owned or hereafter to be acquired by the Commonwealth, for the purpose of furnishing a copious supply of pure water. The building of any reservoir or laying of lines of pipe is subject to such restrictions and locations as the Commissioner of Forestry and the Commission may deem proper, always having in view that which is best for the public interest. This privilege conferred by the Act of April 11, 1905, will be the means of solving many vexatious water problems which are beginning to confront closely populated localities, especially if they are near State forests.

The area of the State forests on June 1, 1919, was 1,041,379 acres.

The old system by which constables were ex-officio fire wardens has been abrogated. A new Act creating an entirely new system of fire wardens was approved June 3, 1915. This provides for the establishment of a Bureau of Forest Protection within the Department and the appointment of a Chief Forest Fire Warden. The cost of extinguishing forest fires is borne wholly by the State, and is covered by legislative appropriation. By the Act approved May 29, 1917, foresters and forest rangers are authorized to enforce all the laws relating to forestry, fish, and game, and report all violations to the head of the proper Department.

By the Act of April 21, 1915, the Department is authorized to grow and distribute seedling forest trees to persons who will plant and take care of them. It is hoped that by doing this a stimulus will be given to private forest planting. One of the difficulties of establishing private forests was to procure suitable trees. Application for trees may be made to the Department. Blank forms will be furnished for this purpose.

A distinct advance in the forest idea was made by the Act of April 22, 1909, permitting municipalities to acquire forest lands for the purpose of establishing municipal forests. So far as known no other State in the Union has made this the subject of public enactment. It is hoped that by these means cities and boroughs advantageously located among the mountains of the State may be able to acquire forest holdings, by means of which it will be possible for them to procure revenue for municipal purposes. The city of Zurich, in Switzerland, years ago acquired a lot of barren land, planted, developed, and protected it, and these former barrens are now among the most valuable assets of the city. The report shows that the city of Zurich is receiving an annual revenue of $15 per acre from its municipal forest.

The Act of April 1, 1909, gives additional protection to trees growing by the roadside, and prevents the indiscriminate slaughter of trees heretofore practiced by highway authorities. The consent of the owner must now be obtained before trees may be cut, and if the owner refuses to give consent and the cutting is necessary for the convenience of the public, a method is provided by which road improvement may not be retarded.

By the Act of May 13, 1909, the fixed charge on State forests for school purposes was reduced from three cents to two cents per acre, and no school district may share in this distribution unless it has levied a property tax of at least four mills. Under the operation of the old act many school districts depended almost wholly upon the State appropriation for their running expenses, and they received from the forested lands a larger amount than that ever received from the same land before by way of local taxation. A fixed charge of two cents an acre is paid for road purposes, and of one cent an acre for county purposes.

In 1921, the act to protect the State forests from fire and depredation, was passed with a companion act to protect woodlands and farmers' woodlots other than State forests. These two laws and the new Forest Protection law now make a protective code for woodlands in Pennsylvania, and have eliminated a number of widely differing old pieces of legislation.

The Legislature of 1915 passed an act allowing the Department of Forestry to grant rights of way through State lands. This is proper and necessary legislation, and will enable the Department to assist in the development of private lands lying in places inaccessible unless they may be reached over or through the State forests. The benefit to the State accruing from this will be that roads will be built without cost to the Commonwealth, and fire protection afforded the areas traversed. These are two essentials in forest work.

In 1913 the Legislature enacted further laws increasing the scope of the activities of the Department. That group of acts known as the "Auxiliary Forest Reserve" laws, may be said to be almost epoch making because of the change of system in the taxation of forest lands. By means of these three statutes land now bearing an immature timber growth will be fostered and protected until the trees become marketable, in the meantime being relieved of an unjust burden of taxation which has heretofore induced the cutting of so much immature timber.

The Department is also authorized to execute leases for camp sites not to exceed a period of ten years. Persons desiring to do so may build houses and bungalows or erect tents thereon and occupy them at convenient times, paying therefor a small rental to the Department. It is confidently hoped that the citizens of Pennsylvania will avail themselves of this privilege. The effect of this law should be the inducing of great numbers of people to spend more time in the enjoyment of quiet vacations within the forest lands belonging to the State.

The Legislature has also provided a system whereby the Department may assign district foresters for the performance of forest work in regions where the State now holds no land for forest purposes. The purpose of this law is to make the Department more useful to our citizens by assisting them in the handling of their woodlands and in lending help in the care, preservation, or restoration of small areas of woodland, including shade and ornamental trees. Under this law it may be possible for the Department to make a complete wood survey of the State, thus enabling it to know just what trees we have in Pennsylvania, in what quantities, and where located. In forestry the stock map with the topographic survey form the foundation of the work and without this foundation well laid the work can at best proceed in a relatively unsatisfactory manner.

Co-operative agreements may now be entered into by the Department with local forest fire associations. The Department is authorized to spend a sum of money for patrol service equivalent to that which the protective association devotes to its purposes.

The original price limit which the Department might pay for land was five dollars per acre. By act of Assembly approved May 14, 1915, this limit is increased to ten dollars per acre. Some desirable small interior holdings may now be acquired, which heretofore could not be had at the smaller price.

The county commissioners of the several counties are now required by law (See Act of 1915, P. L. 140), to make to the Department of Forestry offers of lands which they may have purchased at tax sales, when such offers are requested by the Department. This will add to the State's forest holdings and relieve the counties from carrying the lands with consequent loss of revenue.

By an amendment to the School Code (Session 1915, P. L. 825), all moneys now derived from the administration of the State forests become a part of the State School Fund.

The Department is authorized by the Act approved July 11, 1917, to lease for agricultural purposes small areas of land which, from time to time, it may acquire in the purchase of lands for State forests, if it shall determine that said land be more useful for the growing of agricultural crops than forest trees, and by the Act approved May 8, 1917, the Department is authorized to purchase surface rights to lands, for use as State forests.

The right to condemn lands and take them for forestry purposes is given by the Act of July 7, 1919, and the method of procedure is therein prescribed.

By an act bearing same date the name of the Commission was shortened to the "State Forest Commission." A better means for leasing minerals is provided, provision is made for forestal publications, and for the appointment of subordinate officials of the Department.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR AND INDUSTRY.

The Department of Labor and Industry was created under the Act approved June 2, 1913, P. L. 396, for the purpose of serving the labor and industrial interests of the Commonwealth and for enforcing the laws relating to the safety, health and prosperity of employes and the industries. The Act creating the Department referred to above specifies that, "All rooms, buildings and places in this Commonwealth where labor is employed, or shall hereafter be employed, shall be so constructed, equipped and arranged, operated and conducted in all respects as to provide reasonable and adequate protection for the health, safety and morals of all persons employed therein." The law further provides that the new organization shall take over the duties heretofore performed by the Department of Factory Inspection, which is at the same time abolished.

The law provides that a Commissioner of Labor and Industry shall be appointed for a term of four years by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate, who shall enforce the law stated above and shall be personally responsible for such enforcement and for other acts performed by the Department and divisions thereof under his charge. In addition to the enforcement of the law above referred to, he is also responsible for the enforcement of the following Acts so far as they do not conflict therewith: April 15, 1903; May 2, 1905; May 1, 1909; May 3, 1909; May 1, 1913; May 20, 1913; July 19, 1913; July 24, 1913; July 25, 1913; April 22, 1915; May 13, 1915; May 14, 1915; June 1, 1915; June 4, 1915; June 7, 1915; May 10, 1917; July 5, 1917; July 18, 1917; July 19, 1917; May 27, 1919; June 7, 1919; June 26, 1919; July 9, 1919; July 12, 1919; July 18, 1919; and certain other acts relating to the safety, health and morals of employes, including those having to do with extra hazardous industries and those where employes are liable to attack by poisonous gases or substances. The Commissioner of Labor and Industry is also a member of the State Workmen's Insurance Board, created by Act of June 2, 1915, and the Emergency Public Works Commission, created by Act of July 25, 1917.

The Department organization includes: An Industrial Board, a Workmen's Compensation Board, a Bureau of Inspection, a Division of Hygiene and Engineering, a Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, a Bureau of Rehabilitation, a Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration and a Bureau of Employment.

The Commissioner of Labor and Industry is empowered and instructed to appoint the officers named in the law except the Industrial and Workmen's Compensation Boards, the general office force and such experts and other employes as he may deem necessary and proper. He is further empowered and instructed to have these various officers carry out the purpose of the Department under his direction and supervision.

The intention of the framers of the law was to give the Commissioner a three-fold duty, viz., to enforce the laws of the Commonwealth for which he is responsible; second, to obtain the co-operation of employers, employes and all others interested, for the advancement of the industrial prosperity and peace of the Commonwealth, including that of both employes and employers, and, third, to make investigations into conditions of labor and industry and to publish the results thereof in such a way as to be of the greatest service to the people.

The purposes, duties and powers of the Department are more fully set forth in the following, which are in the main extracted from the law under which it was created:

Bureau of Inspection.

The Bureau of Inspection, subject to the supervision of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, has charge of all inspections, and performs such other duties as may be assigned to it by the Commissioner of Labor and Industry. The Bureau is under the charge of a Chief Inspector, subject to the supervision and direction of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry.

There may be in the Bureau one hundred and ten inspectors, divided into four grades, as follows:—

1. Inspectors of the first grade,—of whom there may be one hundred in number, and of whom not less than five shall be women, shall be classified as follows—twenty-five in "Class A," fifty in "Class B," and twenty-five in "Class C."

2. Inspectors of the second grade,—of whom there are four in number, and who act as Supervising Inspectors, with offices at the cities of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and other cities.

3. Inspectors of the third grade,—of whom there are two, one of whom is a woman, and both of whom are physicians, duly licensed to practice medicine in Pennsylvania, and who act as Medical Inspectors.

4. Inspectors of the fourth grade,—of whom there are four, one of whom is a physician, duly licensed to practice medicine in the State of Pennsylvania, and who is Chief Medical Inspector; one of whom is a mechanical engineer, and expert in ventilation and accident prevention; one of whom is a chemical engineer; and one of whom is a civil engineer, and expert in fire prevention and building construction.

The Commissioner of Labor and Industry divides the State into districts, and assigns to each district such inspectors and supervising inspector as may, in his judgment, appear expedient; and, from time to time, assigns and transfers such inspectors from one district to any other districts, or to special duty in any bureau of the Department; or he may assign an inspector to inspect any special class of factories or establishments, and may assign one or more of them to act as clerks in any office of the department.

The Commissioner of Labor and Industry visits and inspects, or causes to be visited and inspected, during reasonable hours and as often as practicable, every room, building, or place, where and when any labor is being performed which is affected by the provisions of any law of this Commonwealth, and causes to be enforced therein the provisions of all such existing laws and the rules and regulations of the Industrial Board.

The Commissioner of Labor and Industry and all inspectors may, in the discharge of their duties, enter any such place, building, or room, whenever they have reasonable cause to believe that any such labor is being or will be performed therein.

The inspectors of the third grade, together with the Chief Medical Inspector, shall inspect all rooms, buildings, and other places subject to the provisions of the acts referred to earlier, throughout the State, with respect to the conditions of work affecting the health of persons employed therein, and shall perform such other duties and render such other service as the Commissioner of Labor and Industry shall direct.

Bureau of Industrial Hygiene and Engineering.

The inspectors of the fourth grade with the Chief Inspector constitute a Bureau of Industrial Hygiene and Engineering, which is under the immediate charge of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry. The members of the Bureau of Industrial Hygiene make special inspections of factories and mercantile establishments, and all rooms, buildings or other places subject to the provisions of the laws; and conduct special investigations, throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relative to industrial processes and conditions. The members of this Bureau prepare material for leaflets and bulletins, calling attention to dangers in particular industries and the precautions to be observed to avoid them, and perform such other duties and render such other services as may be required by the Commissioner of Labor and Industry. Each member of said Bureau makes a report to the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, which is transmitted to the Legislature as part of the biennial report of said Commissioner.

Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration.

There is in the Department of Labor and Industry a Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration. Whenever a difference arises between an employer and his employees, which cannot be readily adjusted, the chief of the Bureau proceeds promptly to the locality thereof, and endeavors by mediation to effect an amicable settlement of the controversy. If such settlement cannot be effected, the dispute may be arbitrated by a board composed of one person selected by employer, and one person selected by employees, and a third who shall be selected by the representatives of the employer and the employees; and such third member of the board shall be selected and appointed within a period of five days after the matter has been submitted for arbitration, and, in the event of any such appointment or selection not being made within a period of five days, then the chief of the bureau constitutes the third member of the board and is the chairman of the board; and if such third representative is chosen, by the two representatives of the employer and employee within five days, then a chairman of the board is established by the board itself. A submission to the board is made in writing, and the parties thereto shall agree to abide by the determination of the board. The board renders a written decision within ten days after the completion of the investigation, one copy is filed in the bureau, and a copy is furnished each party to the controversy. The chief of the bureau makes report of his work, containing such information as the Commissioner of Labor and Industry may request.

The Commissioner of Labor and Industry assigns to this bureau, from his department, such clerical assistance as, from time to time, he may think necessary.

Industrial Board.

There is created and established in the Department of Labor and Industry an Industrial Board, consisting of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, and four additional members, appointed by the Governor,—one of whom is an employer of labor, one a wage-earner and one a woman. The additional members were, at the organization of the Board, designated by the Governor to serve until the first day of January in the years one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen and one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, respectively. Upon the expiration of each of the said terms, the term of office of each associate member thereafter appointed is for four years, from the first of January. The Commissioner of Labor and Industry is the chairman of the board.

The board holds stated meetings, which are open to the public, at least once a month during the year, and holds other meetings at such times and places as may be necessary. The board keeps minutes of its proceedings, showing the vote of each member upon every question, and records of its examinations and other official actions.

The Industrial Board has the power to make investigations concerning, and report upon, all matters touching the enforcement and effect of the provisions of all laws of the Commonwealth, the enforcement of which is now and shall hereafter be imposed upon the Department of Labor and Industry, and the rules and regulations made by the Industrial Board in connection therewith; and to subpoena and require the attendance in this Commonwealth of all witnesses, and the production of books and papers pertinent to the said investigation, and to examine them and such public records as it may require in relation to any matter which it has power to investigate. Any witness who refuses to obey a subpoena of the said board, as hereinabove provided for, or who refuses to be sworn or to testify, or who fails or refuses to produce any books, papers or documents touching any matter under investigation or examination by the said board, or who is guilty of any contempt after being summoned to appear before the said board as above provided, may be punished as for contempt of court; and, for this purpose, application may be made to any court within whose territorial jurisdiction the said contempt took place, and for which purpose the courts of the common pleas of this Commonwealth are hereby given jurisdiction. In the course of such investigation each member of said board has power to administer oaths.

In connection with the work of the Emergency Public Works Commission, created by Act of July 25, 1917, it is the duty of the Industrial Board in co-operation with the various bureaus of the said department, to keep constantly advised of industrial conditions throughout the Commonwealth as affecting the employment of labor; and whenever it shall be represented to the said board by the Governor of the State, or the said board shall otherwise have reason to believe, that a period of extraordinary unemployment caused by industrial depression exists in the Commonwealth, it shall be the duty of the said board to immediately hold an inquiry into the facts relating thereto, and to find and report to the Governor of the Commonwealth whether, in fact, such condition does exist.

The Industrial Board, under the Act of July 5, 1917, after proper investigations and hearings, may modify certain details of the Woman's Labor Law of 1913, in other than manufacturing establishments, when in the opinion of the Board better conditions may be made to exist for the employes and employers.

For the carrying into effect of the provisions of all the laws of this Commonwealth, the enforcement of which is now or shall hereafter be entrusted to or imposed upon the Commissioner or Department of Labor and Industry, the Industrial Board has power to make, alter, amend, and repeal general rules and regulations necessary for applying such provisions to specific conditions, and to prescribe means, methods and practices to carry into effect and enforce such provisions.

The rules and regulations of the Industrial Board, and the amendments and alterations thereof, may embrace all matters and subjects to which power and authority of the Department of Labor and Industry extends, and shall be distributed to all applicants. All rules or regulations adopted by the board are promptly published in bulletins of the Department of Labor and Industry, and in such daily newspapers as the board may prescribe, and no such rule or regulation takes effect until thirty days after such publication. Any employer, employe, or other person interested, either because of ownership in or occupation of any property affected by any such order or regulation, or otherwise, may petition for a hearing on the reasonableness of a rule or regulation. Such petition for hearing must be by verified petition, filed with the said Industrial Board, setting out specifically and in full detail the rule or regulation upon which a hearing is desired, and the reasons why such rule or regulation is deemed to be unreasonable. All hearings of the board are open to the public. Upon receipt of such petition, if the issues raised in such petition have theretofore been adequately considered, the Industrial Board determines the same by confirming, without hearing, its previous determination; or, if such hearing is necessary to determine the issue raised, the Industrial Board orders a hearing thereon and considers and determines the matter or matters in question at such time as may be prescribed. Notice of the time and place of such hearing is given to the petitioner, and to such other persons as the Industrial Board may find directly interested in such decision.

Every person who violates any of the provisions of this act, or any of the rules or regulations of the Industrial Board, or who resists or interferes with any officer or agent of the Department of Labor and Industry in the performance of his duties in accordance with the said rules and regulations is guilty of a misdemeanor; and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment not exceeding one month, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Bureau of Employment.

The Bureau of Employment established in the Department of Labor and Industry is subject to the direction and supervision of the Commissioner, who appoints a Director with full supervision over the subordinates.

The Director shall bring into communication employers seeking employes, and persons seeking employment; prescribe rules and regulations for the administration and operation of all public and private employment offices; investigate the circulation of information and statements, regarding employment and labor conditions, for the purpose of preventing fraud and improper practices; ascertain the extent, and causes of unemployment and remedies therefor; devise and recommend means and methods for the prevention of unemployment and distress from involuntary idleness; establish a convenient place where labor can register their wants; assist workers in securing transportation to positions; promote the intelligent distribution of labor; investigate and inspect all private employment agencies; co-operate with all bureaus for vocational training and placement, or other similar bureaus, established by school authorities, and use all reasonable means to promote the establishment of such bureaus.

Bureau of Rehabilitation.

The Bureau of Rehabilitation was established in the Department of Labor and Industry for the purpose of guiding into remunerative employment residents of the Commonwealth who have been so injured by industrial accident, occurring in the Commonwealth, that they cannot perform the work they did before being injured.

Rehabilitation is defined in the Act, creating the bureau, as the rendering of a physically handicapped person fit to engage in a remunerative occupation; and a physically handicapped person is defined as any resident of the Commonwealth whose capacity to earn a living is, in any way, destroyed or impaired through industrial accident occurring in the Commonwealth.

The Commissioner of Labor and Industry is empowered to appoint a chief of the bureau and also other employes as are necessary to carry out the provisions of the Act. A report of the activities of the bureau is to be submitted biennially to the Governor.

Rehabilitation, under the terms of the act, is not to be construed as applying to aged or helpless persons requiring permanent custodial care, or to blind or deaf persons, under the care of any State or semi-State institution, or to any epileptic or feeble-minded person, or to any person who may not be susceptible to rehabilitation.

The powers of the bureau, with the approval of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, include:—

Establishing relations with all public and private hospitals, to require prompt and complete reports of any physically handicapped persons, under treatment in such hospitals; receiving applications of any physically handicapped persons for advice and assistance regarding their rehabilitation; making surveys to ascertain the number and condition of physically handicapped persons within the Commonwealth; arranging for therapeutic treatment as may be necessary for the rehabilitation of physically handicapped persons; procuring and furnishing at cost to physically handicapped persons limbs and other orthopedic and prosthetic appliances to be paid for in easy installments; purchasing directly such appliances for physically handicapped persons shown to be unable to pay for such appliances; arranging with the Superintendent of Public Instruction for training courses in the public schools in the Commonwealth in selected occupations for physically handicapped persons; making similar arrangements with any educational institution or with any public or private organization or commercial, industrial, or agricultural establishment; providing maintenance costs during training period for physically handicapped persons, such costs not to exceed fifteen dollars per week, and the period during which paid not to exceed twenty weeks unless an extension of time is granted by the Commissioner of Labor and Industry; arranging for social service for the visiting of physically handicapped persons and their families during the period of rehabilitation; conducting of investigations and surveys of industries in the Commonwealth to ascertain occupations which physically handicapped persons may enter and work with normal effectiveness, and determine what practicable changes and adjustments in industrial operations and practices may facilitate such employment; making such studies and reports as may be helpful for the operation of the act; cooperating with any department of the Federal Government, Government of the Commonwealth, or with any private agency in the operation of the act.

Workmen's Compensation Bureau.

The Workmen's Compensation Bureau receives and classifies the reports of accidents made to the Department of Labor and Industry in accordance with the law. The Bureau also receives agreements and receipts covering compensation cases, and classifies and publishes statistics covering accident reports and compensation payments.

The Workmen's Compensation Bureau also examines every workmen's compensation agreement received, whether in a disputed case or not, in order to determine that the agreement is made out in strict accordance with the law protecting fully the interests of employe and employer.

In addition, all claims for compensation in disputed cases are received by the Bureau and referred to the Referees in the various districts for adjudication.

The Inspection Bureau is kept informed concerning the character of the accidents received in order that it may make investigations and formulate methods for preventing their recurrence.

The Workmen's Compensation Bureau also forwards daily to the Bureau of Rehabilitation all data from reports of accidents, from original workmen's compensation agreements and from supplemental workmen's compensation agreements in cases where the injured may be susceptible to the benefits of the Rehabilitation Act.

This procedure gives the Bureau of Rehabilitation virtually a daily State-wide survey of all persons affected by the Rehabilitation Act.

Workmen's Compensation Board.

The Workmen's Compensation Board consists of three members appointed by the Governor. The Commissioner of Labor and Industry is an ex-officio member of the Board, but does not vote on orders, decisions or awards. The members of the Board are appointed under the Act of July 21, 1919, for terms of three, four, and five years from June 1, 1919, and their successors for terms of five years. They are, at all times, removable by the Governor. The Governor designates a member of the Board to serve as its chairman during his term of office. Two members constitute a quorum of the Board.

It is the duty of the Board to divide the Commonwealth into districts known as Workmen's compensation districts. Each district shall, as near as may be practicable, be compact and of contiguous territory. The Commissioner with the approval of the Governor, appoints as many referees as necessary not to exceed 14 in number and also a supervisory referee. The Board may assign any referee or referees to any Compensation District.

It is the duty of the Bureau to publish such blank forms as are useful in the administration of any Workmen's Compensation law now in force or hereinafter to be enacted and to distribute them to all employers and insurers or employes applying therefor in person or by mail.

The Board is required to make proper and necessary rules and regulations and to promptly hear and determine all petitions and appeals and to perform such other duties as required by law. Every referee must hear such claims for compensation as are assigned to him by the Bureau.

The Board and every Referee have the power to conduct any investigation which may be deemed necessary to ascertain the facts of any claim or any other matter properly before such Board or Referee. Such investigations may be made by the Board or Referee, personally, or by any inspector of the Department of Labor and Industry, or by any other person or persons authorized by law. Every inspector of the said Department of Labor and Industry is empowered and directed to conduct any investigation authorized at the request of the Board or any Referee, with the consent of the Commissioner.

Every member of the Board and every Referee have the power to issue subpoenas, administer oaths, and summon witnesses at the request of either party to a petition, or of his own motion; and to require the attendance of witnesses, and the production of books and papers pertinent to any hearing, and to examine them and such public records as he may require in relation to any matter which he has power to investigate.

Any witness who refuses to obey a subpoena of a member of the Board or any Referee, or who refuses to be sworn or to testify, or who fails to produce any papers, books, or documents touching any matter under investigation, or who is guilty of any contempt after summons to appear, may be punished as for contempt of court; and for this purpose an application may be made to any court of common pleas within whose territorial jurisdiction the offense was committed, and for which purpose such court is given jurisdiction.

The secretary of the Board and all Referees are directed to administer any oaths required without charge, to the parties to any petition; and all certified copies of awards or disallowances of compensation, or modifications thereof, or of receipts for payments of compensations shall be made by the Bureau or any Referee without charge.

All subpoenas issued by a member of the Board or by a Referee shall be signed by him or by the Secretary of the Board, and may be served by any adult in any part of this Commonwealth.

STATE WORKMEN'S INSURANCE BOARD.

The State Workmen's Insurance Board, consisting of the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, the Insurance Commissioner, and the State Treasurer, was created by an Act approved June 2, 1915, P. L. 762, as amended by Act of July 20, 1917, P. L. 1139, for the purpose of administering The State Workmen's Insurance Fund, which Fund is constituted from certain sums paid by employers, for the purpose of insuring such employers against liability under Article Three of the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915, P. L. 736. The State Treasurer shall be the custodian of the Fund, and all disbursements therefrom shall be paid by him, upon vouchers authorized by the Board and signed by any two members thereof.

On or before the first day of October in each year, the Board shall prepare a schedule of premiums or rates of insurance for employers, which schedule shall be printed and distributed free of charge to such employers as shall make application therefore. The Board shall determine the amount of premiums which the subscribers to the Fund shall pay, and shall fix the premiums for insurance in accordance with the nature of their business and of the various employments of their employees, and the probable risk of injury to their employees therein.

The Board shall file with the Workmen's Compensation Bureau of the Department of Labor and Industry a notice setting forth the names and places of business of those employers who, from time to time, shall become subscribers to the Fund.

The Board shall set aside five per cent. of all premiums collected, for the creation of a surplus, until such surplus shall amount to one hundred thousand dollars; and thereafter it may set apart such percentage, not exceeding five per centum, as in its discretion it may determine to be necessary to maintain such surplus sufficiently large to cover the catastrophe hazard of all the subscribers to the Fund, and to guarantee the solvency of the Fund.

The Board shall divide the subscribers into groups, in accordance with the nature of the business of such subscribers and the probable risk of injury therein, and it shall fix all premiums for each group in accordance with the experience thereof.

The Board shall keep an accurate account of the money paid in premiums by the subscribers and the disbursements on account of injuries to employes thereof. The Board may invest any of the surplus or reserve belonging to the Fund in such securities and investments as are authorized for investment by savings banks.

The Board shall have the power to make all contracts necessary for supplying medical, hospital, and surgical services as provided for in section three hundred and six, Article Three of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The Board also has the power to reinsure any risks which it may deem necessary.

The Board has the authority to inspect the plant, work room, shop, farm, mine, quarry, operation, and all other property or premises of any subscriber, and shall be entitled to examine from time to time the books, records and pay rolls of any subscriber or intending subscriber for the purpose of determining the amount of the premium payable by such subscriber or intending subscriber.

The Board shall make reasonable rules and regulations for the prevention of injury upon the premises of the subscribers; and it may refuse to insure, or may terminate the insurance of, any subscriber who refuses to permit such examinations or disregards such rules or regulations, and may forfeit one-half of the unearned premiums previously paid by him.

The Board is empowered to execute the agreements provided in the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915, and to appoint such agents and make such rules as it may deem necessary for this purpose.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES.

By the Act approved April 14, 1903, the Bureau of Mines of the Department of Internal Affairs was superseded by the Department of Mines. This Department is charged with the supervision of the execution of the mining laws of the Commonwealth and the care and publication of the annual reports of the mine inspectors. The chief officer of the Department is denominated Chief of the Department of Mines.

The Chief of the Department of Mines is appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to serve for four years, or until his successor is duly qualified. In case of a vacancy in the office the appointment is made only for the unexpired balance of the term. He is required to have at least ten years' practical experience as a miner and the qualifications of the present mine inspectors, and must give a bond to the Commonwealth in the sum of $10,000.

No person who is acting as a land agent, or as manager, viewer or agent of any mine or colliery, shall at the same time serve as Chief of the Department of Mines.

The Chief of the Department of Mines is, at all times, accountable to the Governor for the faithful discharge of his duties imposed on him by law, and the administration of his office and the rules and regulations pertaining to said Department are subject to the approval of the Governor.

It is his duty to see that the mining laws of the State are faithfully executed and for this purpose he is invested with the same powers and authority as the mine inspectors, and is authorized to enter, inspect and examine any mine or colliery within the State, and the works and machinery connected therewith. He is to give such aid and instruction to the mine inspectors, from time to time, as he may deem best calculated to protect the health and promote the safety of all persons employed in and about the mines, and is empowered to suspend any mine inspector for any neglect of duty subject to the right of the inspector to appeal to the Governor, who, upon investigation, may approve of such suspension or restore the suspended inspector to duty. Upon the receipt of information by petition, signed by ten or more miners, or three or more operators, setting forth that any mine inspector of the anthracite region is neglectful of, or physically unable to perform the duties of his office, or is guilty of malfeasance in office, it is the duty of the Chief of the Department to investigate the matter and, if satisfied that the charges are well founded, to commence proceedings in the manner prescribed by law for the removal of the inspector.

He is authorized to make such examinations and investigations as may enable him to report on the various systems of coal mining and all other mining practiced in the State, methods of mining ventilation and machinery employed, the circumstances and responsibilities of mine accidents; and such other matters as may pertain to the general welfare of coal miners and others connected with mining, and the interests of mine owners and operators in the Commonwealth.

The Boards of Examiners for the examination of applicants for certificates of qualification as mine inspectors in the Anthracite and Bituminous coal mines of the Commonwealth, the Boards for the examination of applicants for certificates of qualification as mine foremen and assistant mine foremen in the Anthracite mines, the Boards for the examination of applicants for certificates of qualification as first grade mine foremen, second grade mine foremen, assistant mine foremen, and fire bosses in the Bituminous mines, and the Boards styled Miners' Examining Boards for the examination of applicants for certificates of competency as miners in the Anthracite mines, send to the Chief of the Department of Mines the manuscripts and all other papers of applicants, together with the tally-sheets and the solution of each question as given by the Examining Boards, which are filed in the Department.

Certificates of qualification as mine foremen and assistant mine foremen in the Anthracite mines, and certificates of qualification as first grade mine foremen, second grade mine foremen, assistant mine foremen, and fire bosses in the Bituminous mines, are granted by the Chief of the Department of Mines to each applicant who has passed a successful examination. A record of all certificates granted is kept in the Department.

He is required to take charge of, and preserve in his office, the annual reports of the mine inspectors, and, on or before the fifteenth day of March in each year, transmit a synopsis of them, together with such other statistical data compiled therefrom, and of other work of the Department as may be of public interest, to the Governor for transmission to the General Assembly.

Mine Inspectors.

Anthracite Region.

Under the Acts of June 8, 1901, May 3, 1905, May 3, 1909, May 5, 1911, and June 1, 1915, the mine inspectors in the Anthracite coal region are required to be elected by the qualified voters of the several inspection districts, the first election having been held in November, 1902. The number of inspectors is twenty-five and their term of office is four years. Vacancies are filled for the unexpired term by appointments made by the judges of the court of common pleas of the county in which the vacancy occurs, on the recommendation of the Board of Examiners. Four examining boards, each composed of three coal miners in actual practice and two mining engineers, examine and pass upon the qualifications of the candidates for inspectors. Said boards are appointed by the Judges of the Lackawanna, Luzerne, Schuylkill and Susquehanna County courts.

Each of the inspectors must reside in the district for which he is elected and is required to give his whole time and attention to the duties of his office. He must examine all the collieries in his district at least once every three months, and see that every necessary precaution is taken to secure the safety of the workmen, and that the mining laws are observed and obeyed; attend every inquest held by the coroner upon the bodies of persons killed in or about the collieries; visit the scene of the accident and make an examination into the particulars of the same. He makes an annual report to the Chief of the Department of Mines, in which the result of his labors generally is fully set forth.

Bituminous Region.

Under the Act of June 9, 1911, the Governor is authorized to commission the inspectors of the Bituminous coal mines of the State for a term of four years. They are selected from a list of persons certified to the Governor as competent for the position by a board of examiners composed of five citizens of the Commonwealth, of good repute, two of whom shall be mining engineers and three of whom shall have passed successful examinations qualifying them to act as inspectors or mine foremen in Bituminous mines generating explosive gas, and shall have had at least five years' practical experience as miners in the Bituminous mines of Pennsylvania.

Under the Act of June 1, 1915, any person who has served as a mine inspector continuously for eight years, and has passed two consecutive examinations for the office of mine inspector, shall be exempt from taking any further examination, and shall continue in said office without any further examination unless removed or suspended.

The duties of an inspector of the Bituminous region are:

To thoroughly examine each mine in his district as often as possible (but at least once every four months), giving special attention to all mines generating explosive gas, and to other mines where unusual dangers may be suspected to exist; to see that all the provisions of the mining law are observed and strictly carried out, especially those that demand that the air current be carried to the working faces; to keep in his office a record of all examinations of mines, showing the condition in which he finds them, especially with reference to ventilation and drainage, the number of persons employed inside of each mine, the extent to which the law is obeyed, and the progress made in the improvement of mines; to keep a record of all serious accidents, showing the nature and causes thereof, and the number of deaths resulting therefrom; and to make an annual report to the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Under Section 1 of Article XXII of the Act of June 9, 1911, the Chief of the Department of Mines is authorized to assign the inspectors to their respective districts, and also to designate their places of abode, at points as convenient as possible to the mines of their districts. Under Section 2 of Article XXII of the Act of June 9, 1911, the Chief of the Department of Mines may at any time re-district the Bituminous districts and add to the number of inspectors, if in his judgment the number should be increased. There are now thirty inspectors.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH.

The Department of Health was created by the Act of April 27, 1905, P. L. 312, and takes the place, with largely increased and broader powers, of the former State Board of Health. All the powers conferred and duties heretofore imposed by law upon the State Board of Health, or any member, committee or officer thereof, including the secretary, are now by law conferred upon the Commissioner of Health. The Department consists of a Commissioner of Health and an Advisory Board.

The Commissioner of Health is appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of four years. He must be a physician of at least ten years' professional experience, and a graduate of a legally constituted medical college.

He is by virtue of his office a member of the State Quarantine Board, State Water Supply Commission, Dental Council, and also of the Bureau of Medical Education and Licensure.

The office of Deputy Commissioner of Health was created by the Act of June 4, 1919. The Deputy Commissioner is appointed by the Governor with the advice of the Senate and he must be a physician of at least ten years' professional experience and a graduate of a legally constituted medical college. It shall be his duty to perform the duties of the Commissioner of Health whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of the Commissioner of Health or whenever by reason of absence or incapacity the Commissioner of Health is unable to perform his duties, until such vacancy is filled or such incapacity is removed. The Deputy Commissioner shall also perform such duties heretofore conferred by law on the Commissioner as the Commissioner of Health may specify or direct.

Associated with the Commissioner is an Advisory Board, consisting of six members who serve without pay, and are appointed by the Governor for a term of four years, a majority of whom shall be physicians, of ten years' experience, and one a civil engineer. The Commissioner of Health is given power to employ whatever assistants are necessary for the proper performance of the work of the Department. It is the duty of the Commissioner of Health to protect the health of the people of the State, and to determine and employ the most efficient and practical means for the prevention and suppression of disease.

He may also from time to time employ competent persons to render sanitary service and to make or supervise practical and scientific investigations and examinations requiring expert skill, and prepare plans and reports relative thereto. He may purchase such supplies and materials as may be necessary to carry on the work of this Department.

He may issue subpoenas to secure the attendance of witnesses, and compel them to testify in any matter or proceeding before him or his authorized agent; he may issue warrants to any sheriff, constable or policeman to arrest all persons who disobey the quarantine orders or regulations of the Department of Health, and in the inspection of nuisances the Commissioner's duly authorized agents have the power and authority conferred by law upon constables; he shall cause examination to be made of nuisances or questions affecting the security of life and health in any locality; and for this purpose, the Commissioner, or any person authorized by him so to do, may without fee or hindrance, enter, examine, and survey all grounds, vehicles, apartments, buildings, and places within the State.

He has the power and authority to order nuisances, detrimental to the public health or the causes of diseases and mortality to be abated and removed, and to enforce quarantine regulations, and where the owner or occupant of any premises, whereon any nuisance detrimental to the public health exists, refuses to comply with the order of the Commissioner or his authorized agent or employe, for the abatement or removal thereof, the Commissioner or his agents may enter upon the premises, and abate or remove such nuisance, and to cover the cost of such action, the Commissioner may file a lien in the name of the Commonwealth as provided by law for other municipal liens.

He may revoke and modify any order, regulation, by-law, or ordinance of a local board of health, concerning a matter which, in his judgment, affects the public health beyond the territory over which such local board has jurisdiction.

He has general supervision of the State registration of births, marriages, deaths and diseases; of practitioners of medicine and surgery; of midwives, nurses and undertakers, and of all persons whose occupation is deemed to be of importance in obtaining complete registration of births, deaths, marriages, and diseases. He shall prescribe and prepare the necessary methods and forms for obtaining and preserving such statistics, and shall secure the prompt and faithful registration of the same in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, to be maintained as a part of his Department. The Bureau is in charge of a State Registrar of Vital Statistics, who is under the immediate direction of the Commissioner of Health.

The Act of June 7, 1915, gives at length the duties of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, of the State Registrar and of the local registrars who are appointed by the Commissioner of Health, in every township, borough, and city in the State, to assist in the collection of vital statistics.

The Commissioner of Health, under the Act of April 22, 1905, P. L. 260, is charged with the duty and responsibility of preserving the purity of the waters of the State for the protection of the public health. By "waters of the State" is meant all streams and springs, and all bodies of surface and of ground water, whether natural or artificial, within the boundaries of the State. This act provides that every municipality, private corporation, company and individual supplying or authorized to supply water to the public, shall file with the Commissioner of Health a certified copy of the plans and survey of the waterworks, with a description of the source from which the supply of water is derived; and no additional source of supply shall subsequently be used for any such waterworks without a written permit from the Commissioner of Health, in order that the Commissioner may pass judgment upon the question of whether the proposed source of supply is prejudicial to the public health. The Act also provides that no person, corporation, or municipality shall permit any sewage to be discharged into the waters of the State except under the conditions set forth in the Act, but it is specified that the Act shall not apply to waters pumped or flowing from coal mines or tanneries, nor the discharge of sewage from any public sewer system, owned and maintained by a municipality that was in operation and discharging sewage into any waters of the State at the time of the passage of the Act. This exception, however, does not permit the discharge of sewage from any sewer system, which is extended subsequent to the passage of the Act. A permit must be secured from the Commissioner of Health for every extension of a sewer system, municipal as well as private. The application for such a permit is passed upon by the Governor, Attorney-General and the Commissioner of Health, who must be unanimous in their opinion that the general interest of the public health will be subserved by the granting of the desired permit. If at any time in the opinion of the Commissioner of Health the sewage discharged into the waters of the State, by individuals, private corporations or companies becomes injurious to the public health, he may order the discharge of such sewage to be discontinued; he may also revoke permits that the Department may have granted to municipalities to construct or extend a sewer system whenever, in his opinion, the interest of the public health demand it. The act defines "sewage" as any substance that contains any of the waste products, or excrementitious or other discharges from the bodies of human beings and animals.

By the Act of June 1, 1907, the management and control of the Sanatorium on the State Forestry Reservation near Mont Alto, in Franklin County, was transferred from the Commissioner of Forestry to the Department of Health.

The Act of May 14, 1907, P. L. 197, provides for the establishment in the State of one or more Sanatoria, "for the reception and treatment of indigent persons affected with incipient tuberculosis and those so far advanced with the same diseases that they may be made comfortable and removed from their families and people at large to prevent the spread of the contagion," and for these purposes the Department of Health with the approval of the Governor is authorized "to acquire property, erect buildings, equip the same and do all things necessary to accomplish such work for the best interest of the people of this Commonwealth in curing and preventing tuberculosis."

The Legislature of 1907 gave the Department of Health a special appropriation of $600,000.00 for these Sanatoria. The same Legislature also gave the Department of Health in addition to its general appropriation a further appropriation of $400,000.00 "to enable the Department of Health to establish and maintain at such places in the State as may be deemed necessary Dispensaries for the free treatment of indigent persons affected with tuberculosis, for the dissemination of knowledge relating to the prevention and cure of tuberculosis, for the study of social and occupational conditions that predispose to its development, and for continuing research experiments for the establishment of possible immunity and cure of said disease." It has general powers of supervision and inspection over free libraries, and the right of requiring reports in such manner as it may deem proper.

The members of the Commission are appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of four years.

It is the duty of the Fisheries Commission to encourage and promote the development of the fishery interests of the State, and to obtain and publish information respecting the extent and condition of the fisheries of the Commonwealth, and to make rules and regulations for the enforcement of all laws designed for the protection and propagation of fish; and it is empowered to employ such legal and other service as may be necessary for the protection of fish, and for the apprehension and punishment of persons who may violate any of the laws relating to fish, or any of the rules and regulations which, under the powers given them, may be adopted by the Commission.

The Commissioner of Fisheries is the president and executive officer of the Fisheries Commission, and also the chief superintendent of all hatching-stations, and fish-cultural establishments belonging to the State; and has full control and management of all such establishments, now existing or which may hereafter be established; and he has full control, direction and management of all fish-wardens or water-bailiffs; and full charge of the work of the enforcement of the laws relating to the protection, propagation and distribution of fish; and all fish-wardens, constables, police, sheriffs and guardians of the peace are required to make prompt report to him of all cases of violation of the laws relating to fish.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

The Act approved July 26, 1913, P. L. 1374, abolished the Pennsylvania State Railroad Commission and created as its successor, with enlarged powers and duties, The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. This Act became effective on January 1, 1914, except that the Commission was to be appointed and organized, appoint its officers and employes, establish its offices and make such general rules and orders as the provisions of the Act may require, on or before October 1, 1913. The Commission was given the power to hear and determine any pending cases transferred to it by the Pennsylvania State Railroad Commission, and to dispose of the unfinished business of said Railroad Commission.

The Commission is composed of seven members, appointed by the Governor, subject to the approval of the Senate, for terms of four, five, six, seven, eight, nine and ten years, respectively, from the 1st day of July, 1913, and their successors shall each be appointed for a term of ten years. Each Commissioner at the time of his appointment and qualification must be a resident of the State and a qualified voter therein for a period of at least one year and shall be not less than thirty years of age. The chairman of the Commission shall be designated by the Governor and shall, when present, preside at all meetings, and in his absence the member whose term shall first expire shall preside. A quorum of the Commission shall be four members, who, for all purposes, including the making of any order or the ratification of any act done or order made by one or more of the Commissioners, must act unanimously. No vacancy in the Commission shall impair the right of a quorum of the Commissioners to exercise all the rights and perform all the duties of the Commission. No person shall be appointed a member of the Commission, or hold any place, position, or office under it, who occupies any official relation to any public service company doing business in this Commonwealth, or who holds any other appointive or elective office of the Commonwealth or any municipality thereof. No Commissioner shall during his term be a candidate for any such office. The Attorney-General shall be ex-officio the general counsel of the Commission. He shall appoint two attorneys who shall be learned in the law as counsel and assistant counsel, respectively, for the Commission. The Commission is authorized to appoint a secretary, an investigator of accidents, a marshal, and such other officers and employes as it may deem necessary.

Any investigation, inquiry, or hearing which the Commission has power to undertake or hold may be undertaken or held by or before any one or more of the Commissioners, upon condition, however, that such Commissioner or Commissioners shall have been authorized by the Commission to undertake or hold such investigation, inquiry or hearing. All investigations, inquiries, or hearings, before or by any such Commissioner or Commissioners, shall be, and be deemed to be, the investigations, inquiries, and hearings of the Commission. Any determination, ruling or order of a Commissioner or Commissioners upon any such investigation, inquiry, or hearing undertaken or held by him or them shall not become and be effective until approved and confirmed by at least a quorum of the Commission and ordered to be filed in its office. Upon such confirmation and order, such determination, ruling or order shall be the determination, ruling, or order of the Commission. In any investigation, inquiry or hearing the Commission is authorized to employ a special agent or examiner, who shall have power to administer oaths, and examine witnesses, and receive evidence in any locality which the Commission, having regard to the public convenience and the proper discharge of its functions and duties, may designate. The testimony and evidence so taken or received shall have the same force and effect as if taken or received by the Commission, or any one or more of the Commissioners, as above provided.

The Commission, or a quorum thereof, shall hold stated meetings at least twice a month during the year, at its principal office, and may hold meetings at any time and at any place within this Commonwealth. The principal office of the Commission at Harrisburg shall be open for business, between the hours of nine ante meridian and five post meridian, every business day in the year.

Definition of Public Service Companies.

The term "Public Service Company," when used in The Public Service Company Law, includes all railroad, canal, street railway, stage line, express, baggage transfer, pipe line, ferry, common carriers, Pullman car, dining car, tunnel, turn-pike, bridge, wharf, incline plane, grain elevator, telegraph, telephone, natural gas, artificial gas, electric, water, water-power, heat, refrigerating and sewage corporations, doing business within this State, and also all persons engaged for profit in the same kind of business within this Commonwealth.

Powers and Duties of Commission.

The Commission has general administrative power and authority to supervise and regulate all public service companies doing business within this Commonwealth. Said power and authority shall include the power to inquire into and regulate the service, rates, fares, tolls, or charges of any and all public service companies, including individual and joint rates; the charges for long and short transmission of messages and conversations by telegraph and telephone companies; the making of repairs, alterations, and improvements in and to such service as shall be reasonably necessary for the accommodation or safety of its patrons, employes, and the public; the granting of transfers to or from one part of the system of the same common carrier to another part; the routing of the lines of street railways, under the provisions of the Act approved the 15th day of May, A. D. 1895, P. L. 65, or otherwise; the just and equitable distribution of trains, cars, vehicles, and motive power, or other facilities, of all common carriers; the granting, construction, operation, or discontinuance of switches, sidings, and crossings; the construction, operation, or discontinuance of switch connections with or between lines of railroad corporations; the location or abolition of freight and passenger stations, wharves, docks or piers; the use and compensation for cars owned or controlled by persons other than the carrier; the safety, adequacy, and sufficiency of the facilities, plant, and equipment for the carrying on of their business by said public service companies; the quantity or quality of water, gas, electricity, or light, heat or power, supplied; and, as specifically provided in this act, the issuing of stocks, trust certificates, bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness or other securities by public service companies.

Whenever the Commission shall determine, after hearing, had upon its own motion, or upon complaint, that the service, facilities, rules, regulations, practices, or classifications of any public service company, in respect to, or in connection with, or employed by, or in the performance of, its public duties within this Commonwealth, are unsafe, inadequate, insufficient, unjust, or unreasonable, the Commission shall determine, and specify by an order in writing to be made and filed and to be served upon every public service company to be affected thereby, the just, reasonable safe, adequate, and sufficient service, facilities, rules, regulations, or practices thereafter to be put in force, observed, rendered, used, or furnished in the performance of its public duties by said public service company or companies; and thereupon it shall be the duty of every public service company affected by said order to observe and obey said order and all and every the mandates and requirements thereof.

Whenever the Commission shall determine, after hearing, had upon its own motion, or upon complaint, that the rates, fares, tolls, or charges established, demanded, exacted, charged, or collected by any public service company or companies, for any service rendered or furnished, are unjust or unreasonable or inadequate, or are unjustly discriminatory or unduly or unreasonably preferential; or that the facilities or service furnished or rendered by any public service company or companies are unjustly discriminatory, or unduly or unreasonably preferential; in favor of or against any particular person, corporation, locality, or any particular kind or description of traffic or service,—then the Commission shall determine, and prescribe by a specific order, the maximum, just, due, equal, and reasonable rate, fares, tolls, and charges to be thereafter established, demanded, exacted, charged, or collected for the service to be performed; and the just, due, equal, reasonable and proper regulations and practices, as affecting such rates, to be observed by the public service company; and the Commission may classify such rates. The said order shall be served, upon all public service companies by which such rates, fares, tolls, and charges, and such regulations and practices affecting the same, are thereafter to be charged and observed. The power to fix maximum rates or charges shall include the power to fix joint rates or charges where joint service is rendered by two or more public service companies, or where other public service companies may be interested in the rate or charge.

Whenever the Commission receives notice of any change proposed in any tariff or schedule filed or posted under the provisions of the act, it shall have power, either upon complaint or upon its own motion, and, if it so orders, without answer or other formal pleading by the interested public service company, after notice, to hold a public hearing, and make investigations as to the propriety of such proposed change and of the new rate, practice, or classification. After such hearing and investigation, whether completed before or after such change goes into effect, the Commission may make such order in reference to the new rate, practice, and classification as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the same had become effective. At any such hearing involving any proposed increase in any rate, the burden of proof to show that such increased rate is just and reasonable shall be upon the public service company.

The Commission shall have power, in its discretion, and for good cause shown, to permit changes in the tariffs or schedules filed and published, upon less than thirty days' notice, under certain conditions.

The Commission shall also have power, in its discretion, where any notice of increase in any rates, fares, tolls, or charges of a public service company has been filed, to require by general rule or special order that such company shall furnish to its shippers, consumers or other patrons a certificate or other evidence of payments made by them in excess of the prior established rate. If, after hearing, upon complaint or upon its own motion, the Commission shall determine that any rates which have been collected, or any acts which have been done or omitted to be done, or any regulations, classifications, or practices which have been enforced for, or in relation to, any service rendered after this act becomes effective, by any public service company complained of, were in violation of any order of the Commission, or were unjust and unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly or unreasonably preferential; or, in like manner, shall find that the rates so collected are in excess of the rates contained in the tariffs or schedules of any such public service company on file or posted, and in effect and applicable at any time the said service was rendered,—the Commission shall, upon petition, have the power and authority to make an order for reparation, awarding and directing the payment to any such complainant petitioner, within a reasonable time specified in the order, of the amount of damages sustained in consequence of said unjust, unreasonable, or unlawful collections, acts or commissions, regulations, classifications or practices, of such public service company: Provided, That such damages have been actually sustained by such complainant petitioner.

The Commission shall state in said order the exact amount to be paid, as well as its findings upon pertinent questions of fact. No reparation, as herein provided, shall be awarded by the Commission unless the complaint or petition shall have been filed with it within two years from the time when the cause of action accrued. A suit for the enforcement of an order directing such payment shall be filed in the said court of common pleas within one year from the date of the order, and not after.

In the case of any street railway corporation or incline plane corporation, the Commission may also, whenever it may deem it necessary or proper, for the accommodation, convenience or safety of the public, in the conveyance of passengers, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, require such street railway corporations or incline plane corporations to transfer such passengers to or from another part of the system of the said street railway corporation or incline plane corporation; and, to this end and object to make proper and convenient arrangement or adjustment of the time schedules of said street railway corporation or incline plane corporation; and also to make such proper and convenient adjustment of its time schedules with those of other contiguous or connecting street railway corporations or incline plane corporations as the Commission shall deem necessary or proper, for the accommodation, convenience, and safety of the public.

The Commission shall have power to require railroad corporations and street railway corporations to construct and maintain such switch or other connections, with or between the lines of other companies of the same character, as are reasonably practicable, and as the Commission shall deem necessary and proper, for the service, accommodation, and convenience of the public; and shall also have power to establish through routes and joint rates and classifications, for the conveyance of persons and property between any two or more points within this Commonwealth whenever the railroad corporations concerned shall have refused or neglected voluntarily to establish such through routes and joint rates and classifications, and to prescribe the just terms and conditions under which said through routes shall be operated: Provided, That, in establishing such through route, the Commission shall not require any railroad company, without its consent, to embrace in such route substantially less than the entire length of its railroad and of any intermediate railroad, operated in conjunction and under a common management or control therewith, which lies between the termini of such proposed through route, unless to do so would make such through route unreasonably long as compared with another practicable through route which would otherwise be established.

The Commission shall, in case of failure of the railroad corporations or street railway corporations concerned to agree among themselves upon the division of the cost of construction, maintenance, and operation of the connections thus provided for, or the allowance to be made for the interchange of service, or the apportionment of any joint rates, ascertain, and by order prescribe and fix, the equitable and just apportionment and division of the same. Nothing in this section shall give the Commission power over street railway corporations engaged in the business of carrying passengers, but not engaged in the general business of transporting freight, and which do not generally solicit the transportation of freight as a main branch of their business.

In the case of a telegraph corporation, or person engaged in the public telegraph business, the Commission may also, whenever it may determine it to be necessary or proper for the accommodation or convenience of the public so to do, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, require any such telegraph corporation or person to permit any other such telegraph corporation, or person engaged in the public telegraph business, to connect its or his lines of telegraph with the lines of telegraph of such first-named telegraph corporation or person; and interchangeably to receive dispatches from and for each other, and from and for any individual or individuals; and, on payment of its or his usual charges to individuals for transmitting dispatches, as established by the rates and regulations of such telegraph corporation or person, or by the Commission to transmit such dispatches with impartiality and good faith.

Whenever the Commission shall find that there are any two or more telephone companies whose lines form a continuous line of communication, or could be made to do so by the construction and maintenance of suitable connections between the several lines at common points, for the transmission of conversations between different localities which are not reached by the lines of either company alone, and that such connections and facilities for the through transmission of conversations, jointly, over the several lines, can reasonably be made, and an efficient service can be obtained without injustice to either company, and without substantial impairment or detriment to the service to be rendered by either company, and that a public necessity exists therefor; or shall find that any two or more telephone companies have failed to establish just and reasonable joint rates or charges for through service, by or over their several lines so connected, and that such joint rates or charges ought to be established, in order to supply a through traffic and communication between different localities not otherwise provided for, or proffered by the companies in question, or either of them:—the Commission may by its order require that such connection be made and facilities supplied, and that through conversations be transmitted thereby; and may prescribe the through line and joint rates and charges to be made and to be used and in force in the future; and shall appoint or approve necessary and proper conditions, rules, and regulations for the joint through traffic and an equitable apportionment between the several companies of the costs and revenues in connection therewith, and the Commission may fix the same by its order, to be duly served upon the company or companies affected.

Subject to the approval of the Commission, or its successors in authority, any telephone corporation may buy and own all or any part of the capital stock of any other like corporation, and may acquire, and thereafter be possessed of, own, hold, exercise, and enjoy, all the franchises, corporate property, rights, and credits, then possessed, owned, held, or exercised by said last mentioned vendor corporation, including all line or lines, system or systems of telephone, owned, operated, or maintained by said vendor corporation, whether or not competing with the lines of telephone owned, operated, or maintained by the said vendee corporation.

Subject to the approval of the Commission, or its successor in authority, such corporation may purchase, lease, or acquire, or sell or dispose of all or any part of any line or lines, system or systems, of telephone communication, and also any appurtenant or incidental property, rights, privileges, municipal consents, and corporate franchises, owned by any individual, partnership, joint stock corporation, or other association or corporation, whether or not said all or part of such line or lines, system or systems, competes with any telephone line or lines, telephone system or systems, or part thereof, owned, controlled, operated, or maintained by the purchasing corporation.

Where the public service companies entitled to share in any joint rate or charge shall be unable to agree upon the division thereof, or shall make any unjust, unreasonable, or unduly discriminatory or preferential division or apportionment thereof, the Commission may, after hearing, upon its own motion or upon complaint fix the proportion to which every such public service company shall be entitled.

The Commission may investigate the rates or interstate traffic facilities or service of common carriers within this Commonwealth, and when such rates, facilities, or service are, in the determination of the Commission, unjust, unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly or unreasonably preferential, or in violation of the interstate commerce law or in conflict with the rulings, orders, or regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Commission may apply by petition to the said Interstate Commerce Commission for relief, or may present to the said Interstate Commerce Commission all facts coming to its knowledge as to the violation of the rules, orders, or regulations of that Commission, or as to the violation of the Interstate commerce law.

Except in cases in which grade crossings are in process of abolition at the time of the passage of this act, under agreement or contract with a municipality, the Commission shall have exclusive power to determine, order and prescribe, in accordance with plans and specifications to be approved by it, the just and reasonable manner, including the particular point of crossing, in which the tracks or other facilities of any public service company may be constructed across the tracks or other facilities of any other public service company at grade, or above or below grade, or at the same or different levels; or in which the tracks or other facilities of any railroad corporation or street railway corporation may be constructed across the tracks or other facilities of any other railroad corporation or street railway corporation, or across any public highway, at grade, or above or below grade; or in which any public highway may be constructed across the tracks or other facilities of any railroad corporation or street railway corporation at grade, or above or below grade; and to determine, order and prescribe the terms and conditions of installation and operation, maintenance and protection, of all such crossings which may now or hereafter be constructed including the stationing of watchmen thereat, or the installation and regulation of lights, block or other system of signaling, safety appliances, devices, or such other means or instrumentalities as may to the Commission appear reasonable and necessary,—to the end, intent, and purpose that accidents may be prevented and the safety of the public promoted. No such crossing shall be constructed without the approval of the Commission, evidenced by its "Certificate of Public Convenience," first had and obtained and not otherwise; but in no case shall the approval or consent of any court, board, or other commission or officer, or of any municipality, be necessary therefor. It shall be proper, however, for the Commission, by general rule or order, whenever the same can be properly regulated by suitable general rule, to prescribe the terms and conditions under which such crossing may be constructed, operated, maintained, or protected, without the particular approval of the Commission.

The Commission shall also have exclusive power, upon its own motion or upon complaint, and after hearing as hereinafter provided (of which all the parties in interest, including the owners of adjacent property, shall have due notice), to order any crossing aforesaid, now existing or hereafter constructed at grade, or at the same or different levels, to be relocated or altered, or to be abolished, according to plans and specifications to be approved, and upon just and reasonable terms and conditions to be prescribed by the Commission.

In determining the plans and specifications for any crossing herein mentioned, the Commission may lay out, establish, and open such new public highways as, in its opinion, may be necessary to connect said crossing with any existing highways or to make said crossing more available to public use; and may abandon or vacate such highways or portions of highways as, in the opinion of the Commission, may be rendered unnecessary for public use by the construction, relocation, or abandonment of any of said crossings.

The compensation for damages which the owners of adjacent property, taken, injured, or destroyed, may sustain in the construction, relocation, alteration, or abolition of any such crossing herein specified (for which compensation the said owners are hereby invested with warrant of authority, upon appeal from the determination of the Commission, to sue the Commonwealth), shall, after due notice and hearing, be ascertained and determined by the Commission; and such compensation, as well the expense of the said construction, relocation, alteration, or abolition of any such crossings, shall be borne and paid, as hereinafter provided, by the public service company or companies or municipal corporations concerned, or by the Commonwealth, either severally or in such proper proportions as the Commission may, after due notice and hearing, in due course, determine, unless the said proportions are mutually agreed upon and paid by those interested as aforesaid.

In prescribing the terms and conditions, upon which any such crossing may be constructed or relocated, or altered or abolished, and the proportionate contributions to the expense thereof, including the damages or compensation to the owners of adjacent property, as aforesaid, the Commission may, among other things, take into consideration the relative importance to the public of the services rendered by the public service companies concerned, as well as the priority of location: Provided, That where any portion of the cost and expense thereof shall have been or shall be borne in the future by the Commonwealth or any municipal corporation, such portion shall not be taken into account by the Commission in fixing any valuation, for any purpose, under any of the provisions of this act: And provided further, That where the order of the Commission shall, as part of the regulation of the construction, relocation, alteration or abolition of any crossing aforesaid, require, as incidental thereto, a relocation, changes in or the removal of any adjacent structures, equipment or other facilities of any telegraph, telephone, gas, electric light, water-power, water pipe-line, or other public service company, said company shall, at its own expense, relocate, change, or remove such structures, equipment, or other facilities, in conformity with the order of the Commission; and, in default of compliance with such order, the Commission shall cause the work and materials to be done and furnished in accordance with the said order, and may recover the cost and expense thereof from the said public service company.

Before the Commission shall make any final order relative to the construction, relocation, alteration, or abolition of any crossing involving any public highway or street, an effort shall be made by the Commission to reach an agreement with the proper officials of the municipal corporations concerned, determining the plans and specifications governing such crossing; and, in default of such agreement, the Commission shall exercise the exclusive power vested in it, and shall finally determine and adopt the complete plans and specifications, and locate all lines and grades in said public highways and streets, and may permit the public service company or companies, or the municipal corporation, to do the whole or any portion of the work in accordance therewith; otherwise, the Commission shall do the work by contract or contracts, to be awarded, after due advertisements, to the lowest responsible bidder in accordance with the said plans and specifications. The said contractor shall be authorized, in the name of the Commission, to collect by due process of law from the public service company or companies, or the said municipal corporations, or from the Commonwealth, either severally or proportionately as may be determined by the Commission, the amount which may be justly due him under the terms of his said contract with the commission; and any amount so determined to be paid the said contractor by the Commonwealth, as well as the amount of damages or compensation determined and awarded to be paid the owners of adjacent property, as aforesaid, shall in each instance be paid by the State Treasurer, on a warrant drawn by the Auditor General, upon the presentation to that officer of a statement setting forth the amount determined to be paid as aforesaid, duly certified by the Commission.

The Commission shall have the right to recover, for and on behalf of the Commonwealth, by due process of law, as debts of like amount are now by law recoverable, from the public service company or companies, or municipal corporations, in such amounts or proportions against each as may be determined by the Commission, as aforesaid, the amount of the damages or compensation awarded to the owners of adjacent property by the Commission, or by the court of the proper county on appeal, and the amounts so recovered shall be paid into the State Treasury for the improvement of the roads of the Commonwealth.

The Commission, in order to eliminate grade crossings, may order and direct that a viaduct or bridge be constructed over, above, and across the several railroad tracks or lines, and also, where the same becomes necessary, over, above, and across rivers and streams which it may be found necessary to cross in order to eliminate the said grade crossings, and to change the location thereof to a new place or to another street or highway, and to apportion the cost, expense, and maintenance thereof in the manner now provided by law.

When any bridge or viaduct is directed to be constructed in the manner set forth in the Act of July 10, 1919, P. L. 901, and the same is located in the line of any public street or highway which crosses any navigable river, or stream which has been declared a public highway by Act of Assembly, across which a bridge has been or shall hereafter be authorized to be constructed at the expense of the Commonwealth to replace a county bridge destroyed by flood or other casualty, it shall be lawful for the Public Service Commission to direct that a certain part or portion of the cost of constructing said viaduct shall be paid by the Commonwealth; the said cost and expense, however, to be paid by the Commonwealth, shall not exceed what it would cost to construct a bridge to span any such river or stream at the point where the said structure is being or is directed to be built by said Public Service Commission: Provided, however, That the cost and expense of the approaches to said bridge which crosses the tracks of any public service company to connect with such bridge shall be apportioned in the manner now provided by law.

Any contract for the construction of said bridge shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings, and the amount which the Commonwealth will be responsible to pay on the said contract shall be certified by the said board and attached to the contract.

The cost and expenses of the rebuilding or erection of any such bridge by the Commonwealth shall be paid from any appropriations made to the Board of Commissioners of Public Grounds and Buildings for the rebuilding of county bridges, and shall be paid out in the manner set forth in the contract.

The Commission may, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, establish such standards of facilities and service of public service companies as shall be reasonably necessary for the safety, accommodation, or convenience of its patrons, employes, and the public; and require, by an order to be served upon every public service company affected thereby, the facilities or service of such public service companies to conform to such standards. The Commission shall also have power, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, to require public service companies to make all such repairs, changes, alterations, additions, extensions, and improvements, in and about their facilities and service, as shall be reasonably necessary and proper for the safety, accommodation, convenience, and service of their patrons, employees, and the public.

The Commission shall have power, of its own motion or upon complaint, to institute any inquiry or investigation, and to determine, upon hearing or rehearing had for that purpose, whether any public service company has, after January 1, 1914, issued or made any increase in the issue of any stocks, trust certificates, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness or other securities, whether such bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, or other securities be payable at periods of more or less than twelve months, in violation of any of the provisions or requirements of this act; and, if so, to determine and find the nature and extent of such violations, and, subject to the provisions for rehearing and appeal, shall certify the record of such hearing and finding to the Attorney-General to institute, in the name of the Commonwealth, such proceedings in equity or law, civil or criminal, as shall be necessary or proper to enforce the provisions of this act, and to restrain and prevent such public service company from consummating or continuing any act or acts alleged to have been done or to be contemplated in violation of the provisions or requirements of this act or of the laws or Constitution of the Commonwealth.

The Commission may, and shall after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, establish, by an order to be served as hereinafter provided upon every public service company affected thereby, a system of accounts to be used by such public service companies; and may also, in its discretion, prescribe the manner and form in which accounts, records, and memoranda shall be kept by public service companies, including the accounts, records, and memoranda of the conveyance of passengers and property, and a proper and reasonable depreciation account, as well as the receipts and expenditures of money. And the Commission may classify public service companies, and prescribe the system of accounts to be adopted and used by each class, and may prescribe the manner and form in which such accounts shall be kept, and may subdivide each class according to the volume of business transacted, or otherwise. And the Commission shall have power, upon application, to relieve any public service company from the duty of carrying a depreciation account.

The Commission may, and shall after hearing had as aforesaid, prescribe the accounts in which particular outlays and receipts shall be entered, charged, or credited.

The Commission may also, after hearing as aforesaid, require that no expenditures shall be charged to any operating account that should properly be charged to the capital account, or vice versa; and require that all and every the receipts and expenditures of public service companies be properly apportioned among the various accounts which it may establish.

The Commission shall at all times have access to all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by public service companies; and may designate any of its officers or employees, who shall thereupon have authority to inspect and examine any and all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by such public service companies. The Commission shall also have power to require the making and filing with it of all reports, records, maps, documents, data, and information, whenever it deems the same necessary and proper in the public interest or to carry out the provisions of the act: Provided, That where any municipal corporation is engaged in rendering or furnishing to the public any service of the kind or character rendered or furnished by public service companies, the provisions shall apply to said municipal corporation with respect to such service. And provided further, That in case of any public service company subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the systems of accounts, records, and memoranda prescribed by the Commission shall conform to those prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Commission shall have power to prescribe the form of the tariffs and schedules required to be filed and posted and published by public service companies; and the rules and regulations as to the filing, posting, and publishing, and the manner and places of posting and publishing thereof, in the case of public service companies also subject to the Interstate Commerce Commission, shall conform as nearly as practicable to those prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

If the Commission shall find it necessary and proper to the rendering of reasonably safe and adequate or sufficient service, it may, and shall after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, make an order, to be served upon every common carrier to be affected thereby, requiring all such common carriers to revise and change the time schedules of such common carriers; to alter the running time of trains, cars, vehicles, or boats, or changes in the routes, of street railway lines or systems; or regulating or requiring the furnishing and distribution of cars, trains, vehicles, boats, motive power, or other facilities, without undue or unreasonable discrimination or preference between shippers, localities, or competitive or non-competitive points; and the switching, loading, and unloading of said trains, cars, vehicles, boats, or other facilities; the weighing or billing of cars and of property offered for shipment; or regulating demurrage charges, track-storage charges, package-room or baggage-room charges, and package or baggage transfer rates and charges; and, generally, to make such other arrangements and improvements in service and facilities as shall be just and reasonable, having due regard to the needs of the public under all the circumstances presented.

When application shall be made to the Commission by any proposed public service company for the approval by said Commission of its incorporation, or organization, or creation: or by any public service company for the approval by the Commission of the renewal of its charter, or the obtaining of any additional rights, powers, franchises, or privileges by any amendment or supplement to its charter, or otherwise; or for permission from the Commission to begin the exercise of any right, power, franchise, or privilege; or for the approval by the Commission of the sale, assignment, transfer, lease, consolidation, or merger of any of its powers, franchises, or privileges with any other corporation or person; or when application shall be made to the Commission by any public service company for the approval by the Commission of the purchase, acquisition, taking, or holding, either in absolute ownership or in pledge or as collateral security, directly or indirectly, of any controlling right, title, or interest, legal or equitable, to or in the capital stock, trust certificates, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness or other securities, or other controlling right, title, or interest whatsoever, in any other public service company; or when application shall be made to the Commission by any telegraph corporation, or person or persons engaged in the public telegraph business, for the approval by the Commission of the connection of its or his lines of telegraph with the lines of any other such telegraph corporation, or person engaged in the public telegraph business; or when application shall be made to the Commission by any telephone corporation, or person engaged in the public telephone business, to connect, use, and interchange its or his lines, facilities, and service with the lines, facilities, and service of any other such telephone corporation, or person engaged in the public telephone business; and for the determination by the Commission of the just compensation, terms, and conditions of such connection, use and interchange; or when application shall be made to the Commission for the approval of the construction, alteration, relocation, or abolition of any crossing at grade, or above or below grade; or when application shall be made to the Commission by any public service company for any approval by it; or when application shall be made to the Commission by any municipal corporation for the approval required by the provisions of the act,—such approval, in each and every such case, or kind of application, shall be given only if and when the said Commission shall find or determine that the granting or approval of such application is necessary or proper for the service, accommodation, convenience, or safety of the public.

For the purpose of enabling the Commission to make such finding or determination it shall hold such hearings, which shall be public, and subpoena and examine such witnesses, and compel the production of and examine such books, papers, contracts, or other documents, and make such inquiries, physical examinations, valuations, and investigations as it may deem necessary or proper, in enabling it to reach a determination. Due notice of every such hearing shall be given, and in every case the Commission shall make a finding or determination in writing, stating whether or not its approval is given, and, if given, shall issue its certificate, to be known as its Certificate of Public Convenience, under its seal, and file among its records a duplicate of every such certificate.

The Commission shall have power, upon application or upon its own motion, to ascertain and determine the fair value of the property of every public service company in this Commonwealth, and to determine any matter in connection therewith; and shall exercise the said power whenever the same is required, or whenever it shall deem such valuation or determination necessary or proper under any of the provisions of this act. In ascertaining and determining such fair value, the Commission may determine every fact, matter, or thing which, in its judgment, does or may have any bearing on such value; and may take into consideration, among other things, the original cost of construction, particularly with reference to the amount expended in the existing and useful permanent improvements; with such consideration for the amount in market value of its bonds and stocks, the probable earning capacity of the property under particular rates prescribed by statute or ordinance, or other municipal contract, or fixed or proposed by the commission, and for the items of expenditures for obsolete equipment and construction, as the circumstances and the historical development of the enterprise may warrant; the reproduction costs of the property, based upon the fair average price of materials, property, and labor, and the developmental and going concern value of such public service company; and these, and any other elements of value, shall be given such weight by the Commission as may be just and right in each case.

The Commission shall also have power to make revaluations of the property of any public service company, from time to time, and to ascertain and determine the value of new construction, extensions, and additions to the same.

The Commission shall have power to establish reasonable general or special rules with respect to the preparation of such valuations, the forms to be followed, the inventories and statements and proofs of original cost to be made, and all other matters, figures, data, and information in connection therewith.

When application shall be made to the Commission by any public service company for the ascertainment and determination of the amount paid or agreed to be paid to the Commonwealth, or any political subdivision thereof, as the consideration for the grant of any franchises, rights, powers, privileges, or right to own or operate or enjoy any such franchises, rights, powers, or privileges; or for the ascertainment and determination of the aggregate values of the properties of any public service companies consolidated or merged, or for the ascertainment and determination of the value of the property of any public service company reorganized under the provisions of an Act of Assembly approved the eighth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, entitled "An act concerning the sale of railroads, canals, turnpikes, bridges, and plank roads," or any supplement thereto or amendment thereof; or for a certificate that the provisions of paragraph (a) of section four of article three of this act, relating to the issuing of stocks or making any increase in the issue thereof by public service companies, have been complied with; or for the ascertainment and determination of the value of any property or labor, for which any bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, running for more than twelve months, are issued; or for the ascertainment and determination of the value of any other fact, matter, or thing of which the Commission is authorized to ascertain and determine the value under the terms of this act,—then, and in every such case, for the purpose of making such ascertainment or determination of value, the Commission shall hold such hearings, which shall be public, and subpoena and examine such witnesses, and compel the production of, and examine, such books, papers, or other documents, and make such inspection, inquiries, physical examinations, valuations, and investigations, as it may deem necessary or proper to enable it to reach a determination. Due notice of every such public hearing shall be given, and in every such case the Commission shall make a finding or determination in writing, stating the value ascertained by the Commission, and shall issue its certificate, to be known as its Certificate of Valuation, under its seal, and file among its papers a duplicate of every such certificate. Any such findings or determinations shall be subject to the right of rehearing and appeal, as hereinafter provided.

The issuing by the Commission of any Certificate of Public Convenience or any Certificate of Valuation, enumerated or provided for in this act, or any finding, determination, or order made by the Commission, refusing or granting such certificates, shall not be construed to revive or validate any lapsed, terminated, invalidated, or void powers, franchises, rights, or privileges; or to enlarge or add to the rights, powers, franchises, or privileges contained in any charter, or in the grant of any franchises or any supplement or amendment to any charter, or to waive or remit any forfeiture. The issuing by the Commission of any Certificate of Valuation, enumerated or provided for in the act, shall be deemed to certify only to the fact that said securities were issued for money, labor done, or money or property actually received; and shall not be taken as requiring the Commission, in any subsequent valuation of the property of any public service company, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be paid to said public service company for its property, to fix a valuation which shall be sufficient to yield a return to the holders of said securities; neither shall said Certificate of Valuation be deemed to require the Commission in subsequently determining the rates to be charged for the service of said public service company, to provide a rate which shall be sufficient to yield a return on said securities.

The Commission shall have full power and authority to require public service companies to report or account to the Commission for the disposition and application of the proceeds of all sales or pledges of all stocks, trust certificates, bonds, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness or other securities, which accounts and reports shall be made in such form and detail as to the Commission may seem advisable, and in accordance with reasonable rules and regulations which may be adopted by the Commission.

The Commission shall have full power and authority, either by or through its members, agents, or employes, duly authorized by it, whenever it shall deem it necessary or proper for the purposes of determining whether it shall issue any Certificate of Public Convenience or Certificate of Valuation, or for the purpose of investigating the safety, adequacy, and sufficiency, or reasonableness, of any service or rates, fares and charges, of any public service company, or in carrying out any of the provisions of the act, to enter upon the premises, buildings, machinery, system, plant, and equipment, and make any inspection, valuation, physical examination, inquiry, or investigation of any and all plant and equipment, facilities, property, and pertinent books, papers, memoranda, documents, or effects, whatsoever, of any public service company, and to hold any hearing for such purposes. In making such valuations or revaluations, the Commission may have access to and use any books, documents, or records in the possession of any department or board of the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof.

The Commission shall as a Commission, or by its individual members, have the power in any part of the Commonwealth to subpoena witnesses, to administer oaths, to examine witnesses, or to take such testimony, or compel the production of such books, papers, and documents, as it may deem necessary or proper in and pertinent to any proceeding, investigation, or hearing held or had by it, and to do all necessary and proper things and acts in the lawful exercise of its powers or the performance of its duties.

The Commission may require every public service company subject to its jurisdiction to file with it a copy of its reports as filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States: and as to all public service companies subject to this act, and not subject to the Interstate Commerce Commission, may require that such public service companies file reports in the form prescribed by the Commission.

The Commission may make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the law, as may be necessary or proper in the exercise of its powers or for the performance of its duties; and whenever the Commission shall determine it to be necessary, in the interests of the public, to withhold from the public any facts or information obtained during the progress of any investigation, such facts and information may be so withheld.

In addition to the foregoing expressly enumerated powers, the Commission shall have full power and authority, and it shall be its duty, to enforce, execute, and carry out, by its orders, rulings, regulations, or otherwise, all and singular the provisions of articles two and three of the act, relating, respectively, to the duties and limitations, and to the creation and the powers, and limitations of the powers, of public service companies; and, all and singular, the other provisions of the act, and the full intent thereof; and shall have the power to rescind or modify any such orders, rulings, or regulations.

All hearings before the Commission or before any Commissioner, shall be public; and all hearings, investigations, and proceedings by the Commission shall be governed by such rules as shall be adopted and prescribed by the Commission.

The Commission shall charge and collect the following fees for filing papers and for copies of all official orders, documents, papers, records, et cetera:—

For copies of papers and records not required to be certified or otherwise authenticated by the Commission, ten cents for each folio of one hundred words.

For certified copies of official documents and orders filed in its office, fifteen cents for each folio of one hundred words and one dollar for each certificate under seal affixed thereto.

For copies of testimony and proceedings taken or had before the Commission or a commissioner, not required to be certified or otherwise authenticated by the Commission, ten cents for each folio of one hundred words.

For certified copies of testimony and proceedings taken or had before the Commission or Commissioner, fifteen cents for each folio of one hundred words and one dollar for each certificate under seal affixed thereto.

For certifying a copy of any report made by any public service company to the Commission, two dollars.

For each certified copy of the annual report of the Commission, one dollar and fifty cents.

For the filing of each application for a certificate of public convenience, the sum of five dollars.

For the filing of each certificate of notification, the sum of ten dollars.

For the filing of each application for a certificate of valuation, the sum of twenty-five dollars.

No fee shall be charged or collected for copies of papers, records, official documents, testimony or proceedings furnished to public officers for use in their official capacity, nor for the annual report of the Commission, in the ordinary course of distribution. All fees charged and collected by the Commission shall be paid into the State Treasury.

The Commission shall make an annual report, on or before the second Monday of May in each year, to the Governor; and a duplicate thereof shall be filed with the Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Appeals.

Within thirty days after filing of any finding or determination by the Commission, or after the date of service of any order,—unless an application for a rehearing may be pending, and then within thirty days after the refusal of such application,—or the entry of an order modifying, amending, rescinding, or affirming the original finding, determination, or order, any party to the proceedings affected thereby may appeal therefrom to the Superior Court: Provided, That there shall be no appeal from any order for reparation made by the Commission, but the suit may be brought as provided. The said court is hereby clothed with exclusive jurisdiction throughout the Commonwealth for the purpose of hearing and determining any and all said appeals: Provided, That in case of an appeal from the award of damages or compensation by the Commission, under any of the provisions of the act, the appeal shall, in case any party is entitled to demand a jury trial under section eight of article sixteen of the Constitution of this Commonwealth, be to the courts of the proper county thereof, but in all other cases shall be to the said Superior Court. If an appeal be made to any court other than the Superior Court, the case shall be proceeded with therein in accordance with the practice and procedure made and provided in such cases.

Within thirty days after the entry of any final judgment, order, or decree of the aforesaid Superior Court, any party to the record, aggrieved thereby, may appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court, if the jurisdiction of the Superior Court is in issue, or if the case involves the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States or of any statute or treaty of the United States, or if the case involves the construction or application of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, or if the appeal to the Supreme Court be specially allowed by the Superior Court itself, or by any one justice of the Supreme Court. Such appeals shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner, and with the same effect, as is provided in other cases of appeal from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court.

Any party to the record, aggrieved by the final judgment, order, or decree of the court of the county, whenever under the provisions of the act an appeal may in the first instance be taken to said court, may, within thirty days after the entry of such final judgment, order, or decree, appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court. Such appeals shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and form, and with the same effect, as is provided in other cases of appeal to the Supreme Court from the courts of common pleas of the Commonwealth.

WATER SUPPLY COMMISSION OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania was created by the Act approved May 4, 1905, P. L. 385, and is composed of five members, three of whom are appointed by the Governor, by and with the consent of the Senate, for four years, and the other members are the Commissioner of Forestry and the Commissioner of Health. The Act of May 4, 1905, provides that it shall be the duty of the Commission to procure data and facts necessary to advise it thoroughly of the situation of the water supply of the State and adopt such ways and means of utilizing, conserving, purifying and distributing the water supplies in such a way that the various communities of the State shall be fairly and equitably dealt with in such distribution. No Letters Patent shall be issued to any company desiring to be incorporated for the purpose of supplying water to the public until said application has received the approval of a majority of the said Water Supply Commission. It is the further duty of the Commission to set forth, in its annual report, recommendations for future legislation, as in its opinion are necessary for the conservation, development, purification, equitable distribution and supply of the waters of the State, and particularly to such communities as are now greatly in need of extended facilities for this purpose.

Under the provisions of the Act approved June 7, 1907, P. L. 455, all applications for proposed water or water power companies must set forth the name of the river, stream or other body of water from which it is proposed to take water or develop water power, and, as near as may be, the point on said river or other body of water at which said water is proposed to be taken or said water power proposed to be developed. This Act further provides that no water or water power companies may merge or consolidate nor purchase the property and franchises of any other such company unless the agreement of said merger or purchase and sale has received the approval of a majority of the Commission. Furthermore, such agreement of merger or purchase and sale shall designate the stream and the point on the same at which said merged or consolidated company desires to use water or water power, and no such agreement of merger or purchase shall be approved by said Commission until the parties thereto shall have filed, in the office of the Commission, a written acceptance both of this Act and the Act approved April 13, 1905, taking away the right of eminent domain, as respects the appropriation of streams or the land covered thereby, from water companies. Any water or water power company, created subsequent to the passage of this Act, requiring a new or additional source of supply of water or water power, must make application to the Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania, setting forth the necessity for such new or additional source of supply and the river or stream or other body of water and the point on the same at which it is desired to take or use water or water power, and if said application be approved by a majority of the members of the Water Supply Commission and by the Governor, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall issue a certificate that such new or additional source of supply has been duly authorized.

Under the provisions of the Act of June 25, 1913, the supervision of the Water Supply Commission over obstructions in streams was extended to all streams whose drainage areas are greater than one-half square mile, except the tidal waters of the Delaware and of its navigable tributaries. The Commission has the power to grant or withhold its consent and make a part of said consent or permit such conditions, regulations and restrictions as may be deemed advisable. It is unlawful to construct or begin the construction of any water obstruction, or to make or begin any change or addition to any water obstruction, except in accordance with the terms, conditions, regulations and restrictions of such consent or permit, and such rules and regulations, with regard to said construction, changes or additions, as may be prescribed by the Commission. Under this Act the Commission is empowered to pass upon the design and construction of dams, in order to insure their stability, and, in response to petition or on its own initiative, to examine the condition of existing dams or other obstructions in streams, and may order the repair or removal thereof, in case they are dangerous to life or property. In case owners of such dangerous obstructions refuse to comply with the request of the Commission, said Commission may make the necessary repairs or remove the structure, collecting the cost of the same from the owners through the proper court. This Act makes disobedience of the orders of the Commission a misdemeanor and subjects transgressors to a fine of not more than $1,000 or one year in prison, or both.

Under the Act of June 15, 1911, P. L. 990, the Water Supply Commission may extend the time of beginning or of completion of the works of any water or water power company, if said company makes application to said Commission previous to the expiration of the two years or seven years after incorporation, as provided under the laws of the Commonwealth for beginning and completing said works. Furthermore, on its own initiative or in response to petition, the Commission may inquire into the standing of any water or water power company and if the Commission decides that said company has not proceeded with due diligence and bona fide intent to fulfill the requirements of law, it may certify the facts in the case to the Attorney General, requesting him to institute quo warranto proceedings against said company for the annulment and revocation of its charter.

Under the provisions of the Act of July 7, 1913, the Commission is empowered to subpoena witnesses and require the production of books and papers and to require testimony under oath or affirmation, which may be administered by any member of the Commission. All hearings shall be public and the Commission may require that notice of any application shall be published by the applicants in at least one newspaper of general circulation in the proper county, two weeks prior to the hearing. Any member of the Commission or any employe thereof shall have the right to enter upon any land and to have free access to any works, structures, or buildings within this Commonwealth, to collect any data information which the Commission may deem necessary.

By the Act of May 23, 1913, the Water Supply Commission is authorized to establish and maintain such gaging stations on the principal rivers and tributaries thereof as may be necessary for the determination of the daily height of water in such streams, as well as the amount of water flowing therein, and the Commission is further directed, during freshet and flood conditions, to issue bulletins to municipalities in the Commonwealth where flood damage is likely to be caused, forecasting the probable height of water to be expected in the rivers and the probable time of arrival of the flood at such points.

Under the Act of July 25, 1913, which was amended by Act of June 18, 1915, and further amended by the Acts of July 25, 1917, and July 15, 1919, the Commission is authorized to erect a dam at the outlet of Pymatuning Swamp, on the headwaters of the Shenango River, in Crawford County, to conserve the waters thereof for domestic and industrial water supply, flood control and the improvement of water powers on said stream. Under this Act the Commission has the right to condemn land for reservoir purposes, to purchase material and supplies and to maintain and operate, at the expense of the Commonwealth, said reservoir after its completion.

The following rules, governing the practice before the Commission, are submitted for the guidance of those interested:

Rules Concerning Water and Water Power Companies.

Notices.

Twenty-one days' notice of the intention to apply for a charter must be given by advertisement in two newspapers of general circulation, printed in the county or counties where the water or water power is to be supplied and water or water power is to be obtained.

Notice of such intention to apply for a charter should give the names of at least three incorporators, designate the time when application for said charter will be made to the Governor, the Act of Assembly under which it is made, the purpose proposed, and the district proposed to be supplied.

Proof of the publication of such notice must be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth before the application is presented to the Governor or the Commission, and no application will be acted upon by the Commission until such proof is filed.

Filing of Papers and Maps.

All applications for charters, agreements for the merger and consolidation of two or more companies, and certificates designating the source of supply of a company proposing to purchase the property and franchises of another company, should be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and a copy thereof should be furnished this Commission.

Applications for charters should be on file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth during the period of publication of notice.

Application for a new or additional source of supply should be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and a duplicate of such application should be filed in the office of this Commission.

No application for a charter, or for the approval of an agreement for the consolidation and merger, or for the approval of a source of supply by a company proposing to purchase the property and franchises of another company, or of an application for a new or additional source of supply will be considered by the Commission until all fees and bonus required by law shall have been paid.

Applicants for charters for water or water power companies, or for a new or additional source of supply, or for the approval of an agreement of merger and consolidation, or of the purchase of the property and franchises of one company by another, shall furnish the Commission with maps and plans in sufficient detail to show in the case of proposed water supply companies the source of the water, method of collection, and distribution and community or communities to be supplied. In the case of proposed water power companies, said maps and plans should show the stream or streams to be used for water power, the method of development and the destination of the power. They shall also submit a written description of the proposed works, authentic data concerning the character and volume of the water to be used, and such other information as the Commission may deem necessary for intelligent disposition of the application. Lists of questions concerning proposed water power developments and proposed water supply systems are furnished applicants upon receipt of applications for charters.

All applications for the incorporation of water and water power companies, or for a new or additional source of supply, or for the approval of an agreement of merger and consolidation, and all certificates designating the source of supply of a water company proposing to purchase the property and franchises of another company, together with all plans and information required in connection with the same, must be on file in the office of the Commission at least ten days, in order to permit of investigation and report by its Engineering Division.

In all applications for the incorporation of water and water power companies, or for a new or additional source of supply, and in all agreements of merger and consolidation and all certificates designating the source of supply of a company proposing to purchase the property and franchises of another company, the proposed source of supply must be stated specifically by reference in measured distance from some known and permanent point.

All approvals by the Commission are conditioned upon, and subject to, a compliance with the rules of the Department of Health relative to the purity of water.

Protests, Petitions and Hearings.

A protest against the approval of any application for a charter, or of the merger and consolidation of two or more companies, or of the purchase of the property and franchises of one company by another, or of a new or additional source of supply, should clearly and specifically set forth the ground for such protest and the interest of the protestants, giving the full and correct name of the company or companies against whose application for a charter, or for a new or additional source of supply, or against whose merger and consolidation, or purchase, it is filed, and in case of an application for a charter, designate the date when the application is advertised to be made, and should be verified by affidavit. A day for hearing will then be appointed, at which time all parties will be heard by counsel or in person.

Matters relating to the utilizing, conserving or distributing the waters of the State may be brought to the attention of the Commission by petition verified by affidavit, which shall fully set forth all the facts and the names of the persons, firms or corporations affected thereby, and such persons, firms or corporations will be given an opportunity of being heard relative to the matters alleged.

Answers to complaints against a water company by a municipality, under the provisions of the Act of May 28, 1907, shall be made in writing, under the seal of the corporation, and shall be verified by oath or affirmation of the president or secretary of such company, and be filed with the Commission, within thirty days after service of notice upon the company by the municipality. If deemed necessary a day for a hearing will be fixed, at which time the parties will be heard by counsel or in person.

Rules Concerning the Construction and Regulation of Dams, or Other Structures or Obstructions, In, Along, Across or Projecting Into any Stream or Body of Water Wholly or Partly Within, or Forming Part of the Boundary of, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Applications for the consent or permit of the Water Supply Commission for the construction of any dam or other water obstruction, or any change therein, or addition to an existing water obstruction, or to change or diminish the course, current or cross-section of any stream or body of water, wholly or partly within, or forming part of the boundary of, this Commonwealth, must be made upon blanks which will be furnished by the Commission upon request. Applicants shall furnish the Commission with complete maps, plans, profiles and specifications of the proposed work, which shall accompany the application, and shall also furnish the Commission with such other information and data relating thereto as the Commission may require, and such application must be on file in the office of the Commission at least ten days previous to the regular meeting at which such application will be considered.

When required by the Commission, public notice of application to be presented to the Water Supply Commission, shall include the purpose of the application, names of the applicants, location of the proposed work and the date of hearing.

In the event of the approval of such application by the Commission, a permit will be issued to the applicant, granting consent and permission to construct, erect, build and maintain said water obstruction, or to make a change in or addition to said water obstruction, subject to such conditions, limitations and regulations as may be prescribed by the Commission, and providing, of course, that full lawful authority exists for making such obstruction.

All maps, plans, profiles and specifications, information and data, submitted with the application, will remain on file in the office of the Commission.

Subsequent to the issuance of a permit by the Water Supply Commission for the construction of any dam or other water obstruction, or any change therein, or addition to an existing water obstruction, or to change or diminish the course, current or cross-section of any stream or body of water, wholly or partly within, or forming part of the boundary of, this Commonwealth, no change or modification in the plans or specifications, as approved, or deviation from the conditions prescribed by the Commission in the permit issued, shall be made without first making application for and receiving the approval of the Commission in writing therefor.

Protests against applications for the consent or permit of the Commission for the construction of any dam or other water obstruction, or any change therein, or addition to an existing water obstruction, or to change or diminish the course, current or cross-section of any stream or body of water wholly or partly within, or forming part of the boundary of, this Commonwealth, may be filed with the Commission by any party in interest, and should clearly set forth the ground of the protest and the interest of the protestants, giving fully and correctly all the necessary facts, verified by affidavit. A day for hearing will be fixed, if deemed necessary by the Commission, at which time all parties interested will be heard by counsel or in person.

The Commission has the power, upon complaint, or upon its own initiative, to cause an investigation or examination to be made of any dam, or other water obstruction now existing or hereafter constructed. The complainant should set forth all the facts and circumstances and the name of the person or persons, partnership, association, corporation, county, city, borough, town or township causing such obstruction or change, the name of the river, stream or body of water so affected, the place at which the obstruction or change is being made, the character thereof and the damage, or probable damage, occasioned, or to be occasioned, thereby. Said complaint should be verified by affidavit.

Violations of the law by the unlawful obstruction of any body of water, or change in the course, current or cross-section thereof, may be brought to the attention of the Commission in writing, setting forth all the facts and circumstances, and the name of the person, corporation or municipality causing such obstruction or change, the name of the river or stream so affected, the place at which the obstruction, or change, is being made, the character thereof, and the damage or probable damage, occasioned, or to be occasioned, thereby.

BOARD OF GAME COMMISSIONERS.

The Board of Game Commissioners was created by the Act approved June 25, 1895, P. L. 273, and is composed of six members who are appointed by the Governor, subject to the approval of the Senate, and whose term of office is three years. The terms of the members are so arranged that two members are appointed each year.

The Board has an office in the Capitol and is required to hold meetings there on the first Thursday of January and July, and at such other times and places within the State as the Commissioners shall appoint for the transaction of business. It is their duty to protect and preserve the game, song and insectivorous birds and the mammals of the State, and to enforce by proper action and proceedings the laws relating to the same. They have authority to appoint eighty persons, known as Game Protectors, one of whom is designated the Chief Game Protector and serves as Secretary of the Board, and has charge of their permanent headquarters. He gives a bond to the Board in the sum of one thousand dollars, and each of the other Protectors a bond in the sum of five hundred dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties. The Game Protectors hold office during the pleasure of the Board and are required to enforce the game laws, and have full power to execute all warrants and search warrants issued for the violation of the game laws and to serve subpoenas, and each makes a monthly sworn report to the Chief Protector. The latter is required to inform the Board of any dereliction of duty or incompetency on the part of the Protectors, whenever necessary, and makes an annual report to the Commissioners.

The Board is authorized to appoint as many Special Deputy Game Protectors as may be considered necessary, and such officers have jurisdiction anywhere in the State. Each Special Deputy must give a bond in the sum of three hundred dollars, and is paid as constables are paid for like services. They are given no compensation by the State for services or expenses.

The Board, under an Act approved April 9, 1915, P. L. 73, has the power whenever at least two hundred citizens of any county of this Commonwealth petition it to close, for a term of years, to the purpose of hunting elk, deer, squirrels of all kinds, wild turkey, ruffed-grouse, quail, commonly called Virginia partridge, ring-necked pheasant, Hungarian quail, or either of them, as may appear necessary to the citizens of any county, for the purpose of adding to the protection of such animals and birds, or either of them, and assist in their increase in the county wherein such citizens reside.

The Board, under an Act approved April 16, 1915, P. L. 135, may establish and maintain State Game Preserves, for the protection and propagation of game. Such State Game Preserves may be located on the State forests, or may be upon land leased by the Board for that purpose.

Under the provisions of the Act of June 20, 1919, P. L. 533, the Board may also purchase or acquire lands by gift, to be used for establishing State Game Preserves, to be maintained perpetually for the benefit of sportsmen.

The Board, under an Act approved July 21, 1919, P. L. 1059, may establish and maintain as Auxiliary State Game Preserves on any suitable lands of a total of not less than two hundred and fifty acres, nor more than four thousand acres, whenever the owner or owners thereof shall desire to have said lands declared a State Game Preserve.

The Game Commission pays bounties on noxious animals, under the provisions of the Act of May 23, 1919, P. L. 270, as follows: Wild cat, $8.00; fox, $2.00; weasel, $2.00; mink, $1.00.

SOLDIERS' ORPHAN SCHOOL COMMISSION.

By Act of May 25, 1889, the Governor and five members of the General Assembly, consisting of two Senators and three Members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, respectively, together with a committee of five honorably discharged soldiers, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, were constituted a commission to take charge of all children then in the soldiers' orphan schools, or other institutions employed as soldiers' orphan homes and schools. The commission has charge of the Soldiers' Orphans' Industrial School at Scotland, Franklin County, and under the provisions of the Act approved April 9, 1867, and its supplements, the Act of April 13, 1899, and the Act of February 26, 1919, is authorized and empowered to rent such other buildings as may be necessary for the accommodation of the orphans of soldiers, sailors and marines participating in the war of the Rebellion, the Spanish-American war, Philippine Insurrection, and the World war, and to appoint all officers, teachers and employes that may be necessary for the proper care, maintenance and education, at the expense of the State, and until the age of sixteen years, of such orphans, but, in order that the benefits of industrial training may be given, the commission, at its discretion, is empowered to extend the time of discharge of such orphans, for two years, after they reach the age of sixteen years. The commission has power to make and prescribe all rules and regulations for the government of the several institutions, and is required to make a detailed report to the Legislature of the Commonwealth of all the orphans under their charge, their condition and progress, the number of each, respective age from five to sixteen years, and such other information as they may deem expedient, together with the statement of receipts and disbursements by items and estimates for the ensuing year. All bills for the education and maintenance of the said orphans are examined and certified by the president and secretary of the commission, and then forwarded to the Auditor-General for settlement.

L. 534, and is composed of three members, one male member of the Board shall be Chairman, one female member shall be Vice-Chairman, and one male member shall be Secretary, appointed by the Governor, whose duty it shall be to examine or supervise the examinations of all films, reels or views to be exhibited or used in Pennsylvania, to approve such as are moral and proper; and shall disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent, or immoral, or such as tend, in the judgment of the Board to debase or corrupt morals. A penalty of twenty-five dollars is provided for exhibiting unapproved moving picture films, reels or views, and fifty dollars for each subsequent offence.

The Board keeps an accurate record of all examinations and investigations and makes an annual report to the Governor. Each member of the Board furnishes a bond.

BOARD OF PUBLIC CHARITIES.

The Board of Public Charities is composed of ten members, appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to serve for a term of five years; also a general agent and secretary, who is appointed by the Board for a term of three years and is a member ex-officio. The Board is authorized to appoint four assistant general agents to assist the general agent to examine the condition of charitable, reformatory and correctional institutions.

The members of the Board of Public Charities shall have full power either by themselves or the general agent, at all times to look into and examine the condition of all charitable, reformatory or correctional institutions within the State, financially and otherwise; to inquire and examine into their methods of instruction, the government and management of their inmates; the official conduct of trustees, directors, and other officers and employes of the same; the condition of the buildings, grounds, and other property connected therewith, and into all other matters pertaining to their usefulness and good management; and for these purposes they shall have free access to the grounds, buildings, and all books and papers relating to said institutions; and all persons now or hereafter connected with the same are hereby directed and required to give such information, and afford such facilities for inspection, as the said Board may require; and any neglect or refusal on the part of any officer or person connected with such institution to comply with any of the requirements of this act shall subject the offender to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be sued for and collected by the general agent in the name of the Board. They shall also have power to employ such experts, clerks, stenographers, and other employes of all kinds as the business of the Board of Public Charities and that of the Committee on Lunacy may require.

Whenever, upon the examination of any jail, prison, penitentiary, or almshouse, any condition shall be found to exist therein which, in the opinion of said Board, is unlawful or detrimental to the proper maintenance, discipline, and hygienic conditions of such institution, or the proper care, maintenance, and custody of the inmates therein the said Board shall have power to make such recommendation to the warden, inspectors, trustees, sheriff, commissioners, overseers of the poor, or other officer or officers charged by law with the government of such institution, as said Board may deem necessary and proper to correct the said objectionable condition; and in case of the neglect, failure, or refusal of such officer or officers to comply with such recommendation, or in case of his or their failure to make such attempt to comply therewith as shall be satisfactory to the said Board within ninety days from the date of service of said recommendation upon them, the said Board shall certify the facts in the case, together with its recommendation, to the district attorney of the proper county, whose duty it shall be thereupon to proceed, by indictment or otherwise, to remedy the said objectionable condition.

It shall be the duty of all persons having charge or oversight over the poor in any city or county of this State, or in any sub-division thereof, and all persons having charge or control of county jails or prisons or workhouses and all others having charge or control over any other charitable, reformatory, or correctional institutions, not now by law required to make an annual report of the condition of the same, to make report annually to the said Board at such time, upon such form, and in such manner, as it may prescribe, of such facts and statements concerning the same as it may require; and all charitable, reformatory, and correctional institutions now required by law to make annual reports shall hereafter make and transmit the same to said board, on or before the first day of September in each year; and all such institutions now receiving or that may hereafter desire to receive State aid shall annually give notice to said Board on or before the first day of September in each year, of the amount of any application for State aid which they may propose to make, and of the several purposes to which such aid, if granted is to be applied. Any neglect or refusal on the part of any person having charge or oversight over the poor, or on the part of any persons having charge or control over any jail, prison, workhouse, or charitable, reformatory or correctional institution, to make the report required by this act, or otherwise required by law, shall subject the offender to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be sued for and collected by the General Agent in the name of the Board.

The Board may prescribe to all institutions receiving State aid a method of keeping their books: and the Board shall make no recommendation for the allowance of State aid to any such institution which shall not adopt said system.

Whenever any such institution shall thus give notice of asking for State aid, the Board shall inquire carefully into the ground of such request, the purpose or purposes for which the aid is asked, the amount which will be required, and into any matters connected therewith; and in the annual report the result of such inquiries shall be given, together with the opinions and conclusions of the Board thereon.

Before any county prison or county almshouse shall be erected within this Commonwealth, the plan of construction of such prison or almshouse, drawn sufficiently in detail for clear comprehension thereof, shall be submitted, by the commissioners of the county in which the same is to be built, to the Board, and shall be inspected and approved by it. Statistical information in relation to these institutions is required to be collated and presented in a report to the Legislature.

Under the Act of June 20, 1919, P. L. 505, officials in charge of private hospitals or other private charitable institutions, must submit plans, in duplicate, for the erection of any new buildings in connection therewith to the Board for its approval.

By the Act of 1883 the Board is authorized to appoint a

which is composed of five members of the Board of Public Charities who are elected annually by the Board. Two of said members are appointed by the Governor, by special provision of law, to serve on this Committee as the professional members (legal and medical). All matters relating to the insane, subsequent to the establishment of this committee must be referred by the Board to the same. By standing resolution of the Board this includes the supervision of the institutions for the feeble-minded and epileptic. The Governor may at his discretion remove any member from office upon sufficient cause. Three members constitute a quorum.

The members of the Committee receive no remuneration for their services; but their actual traveling expenses are refunded to them out of the amount specifically appropriated for the expenses of the Board of Public Charities in the General Appropriation Act.

The Committee, annually in November, elects a chairman, and a secretary, who is its executive officer. The Committee has the supervision and care of all the insane in the Commonwealth, and enforces the rules and regulations for the furtherance of these objects made by the Board, with the consent of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and the Attorney-General. Under the Act of May 1, 1907, the Committee is authorized and empowered, at its discretion, upon being satisfied that any of the State hospitals for the insane are overcrowded to transfer patients or inmates from one State hospital for the insane to another, and all transfers from one hospital to another must have its approval. The Committee under the Act of May 18, 1917, has power to transfer insane from one hospital to another, at its discretion. Under the Act of June 22, 1897, the Committee on Lunacy of the Board of Public Charities is empowered to return insane patients in State and county hospitals, who have not a legal settlement in this Commonwealth, to any other State or country to which they may belong. It is empowered to investigate instances of alleged detention, or of other maltreatment of patients. It also issues licenses to private sanatoria, or hospitals authorizing them to receive and treat the insane. It has the authority after a hearing and due notice, to compel the discharge of any person detained as insane (except those committed by court), and no indigent patient who is unimproved can be discharged without its consent. The traveling expenses of patients discharged by the Committee, must be paid by the authorities of the hospital, if he is indigent, and the amount shall be refunded by the State, under the provisions of the Act of May 18, 1917. The provisions of the lunacy act do not apply to the admission and discharge of insane criminals in custody. Its annual report is published with that of the Board.

IV. A citation will be issued on a pending caveat on the application of any party in interest. Thirty days' notice must be given to the opposite party of the time at which the case will be heard by the Board, and either party desiring to take the deposition of witnesses to be read at the hearing is required to give the other ten days' notice of the time and place for the taking of such depositions.

V. The party who enters a caveat becomes plaintiff in the issue joined, and at the hearing shall open the case and may make the concluding argument.

VI. A petition for the rehearing of a case that has been heard and decided will not be considered unless the party presenting the same shall furnish evidence that the opposite party has had at least ten days' notice of the intention to present said petition.

THE PENNSYLVANIA BOARD OF PHARMACY

was created by Act of May 17, 1917, entitled "An Act to regulate the practice of pharmacy and sale of poisons, and drugs, and providing penalties for the violation thereof; defining the words "drug" and "poison"; and providing for the appointment of a board which shall have in charge the enforcement of said law, and the power to make rules and regulations for the enforcement of said law; and providing for the purchase of samples of drugs for determining their quality, strength, and purity," and is composed of five persons, who must be retail apothecaries of ten years' experience and actually engaged in conducting a pharmacy at the time of appointment. Each year one member is appointed by the Governor to serve for a term of five years.

The duties of the Board are to examine all persons who may desire to engage in the retail drug business in Pennsylvania, as to their qualifications and knowledge, and to register those who are found to be competent; also, to investigate all complaints and charges of non-compliance with or violations of the provisions of the pharmacy law, and prosecute all persons so offending whenever there shall appear to the Board reasonable ground for such action; also, to enforce the provisions of the Act of May 8, 1909, P. Of these nine members, three shall be selected from the presiding officers of undenominational colleges or universities of the Commonwealth, three from the presiding officers of denominational colleges and universities, and three from persons holding official relationship to the public schools.

The Council is required to pass upon the merits, from an educational standpoint, of all applications for charters of incorporation of colleges, universities or theological seminaries made under said Act, and which desire the power to confer degrees in art, pure and applied science, philosophy, literature, medicine, law and theology. Within sixty days after the receipt of a certified copy of the certificate of incorporation from the prothonotary of the county in which the institution is to be located, the Superintendent of Public Instruction causes the council to be convened. If upon due consideration the council approves of the application it is returned, with the findings of the council endorsed thereon, and its recommendation, to the court from whence it was received. The court shall then, if fully satisfied that all requirements have been met, approve the application and order and decree the issuance of the charter.

If, however, the Council disapproves of the application, a charter shall not be granted. Institutions chartered under this Act are subject to visitation and inspection by representatives of the Council, and if any of them fail to keep up to the required standard the court shall, upon the recommendation of the Council, revoke the power to confer degrees. Any college, university, or theological seminary, incorporated prior to said Act, may apply to the court for amendments to its charter enabling it to confer degrees. Such application must follow the method of procedure given for the charter of new institutions.

The Act does not apply to institutions possessing capital stock and established for purposes of private profit or gain.

The Council is required to meet regularly on the first Tuesday of October preceding the sessions of the Legislature, to which it makes a biennial report upon higher education within the State. The report is printed in connection with that of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The New Western Penitentiary of Pennsylvania was authorized by an Act approved June 14, 1915, P. L. 972. The Act provides that upon the completion of this institution the inmates of the Eastern and Western State Penitentiaries shall be transferred to this institution, which shall then be known as the Pennsylvania State Penitentiary, and the inspectors of the Eastern and Western State Penitentiaries, as then constituted, shall thereupon become the board of inspectors of the New Penitentiary.

The site selected for the erection of the New Penitentiary is situated at Rockview, in Benner Township, Centre County, six miles southwest of Bellefonte, and an equal distance northwest of State College, on the Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The tract contains 5,939 acres, 5,003 of which were purchased outright from the owners, and 936 acres were obtained from the State Forest Reservation. The tract is almost in the exact geographical center of the State, and ideally adapted to agriculture; 3,000 acres of the land are tillable, while the remainder of it is extensively timbered.

Under the Act of June 19, 1913, P. L. 528, all persons convicted of murder of the first degree are sentenced to suffer death by electrocution, and the warden or deputy warden of the Western State Penitentiary, or some person designated by the warden, is delegated to carry out the provisions of the Act. The Legislature of 1913, appropriated $50,000 to the Board of Inspectors for commencing and, if possible, completing the erection of an electrocution building, also the purchase of such apparatus, machinery and appliances and their installation upon the grounds of the new penitentiary as may be deemed necessary. This building was completed in January, 1915, and on February 8, 1915, the first execution took place therein.

The cost of building to June 1, 1919, including labor of prisoners, $1,320,704.41; expended for maintenance in 1918, $371,521.61, being the total amount for Pittsburgh and Rockview; number of prisoners, June 1, 1919, 1,350—males, 476 at Rockview, and 848 at Pittsburgh; number of officers and instructors, 150, including Pittsburgh.

The Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory, located at Huntingdon, was created under the Act of June 12, 1878, P. L. 179, as the Middle Penitentiary, and was to have been operated on the solitary confinement principle, but by Act of June 8, 1881, P. L. 63, and the subsequent Act of April 28, 1887, P. L. 63, the aim and purpose of the institution was changed to an "Industrial Reformatory," for young male first offenders between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five. The completed institution was turned over to the State by the building commissioners on May 15, 1888. The institution was opened for the reception of inmates February 15, 1889. The total cost of grounds and buildings to date has been $1,147,025. There are four wards, containing in all 804 cells. Number of inmates June 1, 1919, 784; expended for maintenance year ending May 31, 1919, $120,663.66; total number of officers and instructors, 112.

Instruction is given the inmates, in compliance with the law governing the institution, in a number of trades, in connection with which the educational feature forms a prominent part of the work of the Reformatory. The schools are graded, and every inmate is obliged to attend.

Persons sentenced to the Reformatory are given a general sentence with no fixed term of imprisonment and are released only when it appears to the board of managers that there is a strong or reasonable probability that they will live and remain at liberty without violating the law, such conclusions to be reached by the keeping of a uniform system of marks, in which each prisoner shall be credited for good personal demeanor, diligence in labor and study, and for results accomplished, and be charged for derelictions, negligence and offenses, but they cannot be imprisoned for a longer time than the maximum term fixed by law for the crime of which convicted, except in cases where they have violated their parole.

The parole system is in operation, whereby after having complied with the rules governing the institution, and earned good records for conduct, labor and advancement in schools, the inmates may be paroled, provided they have previously obtained employment with some responsible person, who will agree to give them steady work for at least six months after they obtain their release on parole, during which time they are still subject to the custody of the board of managers, and may be arrested and returned for any violation of their parole.

At the expiration of the parole period, if served in a satisfactory manner, the board of managers request the judge who sentenced the inmate to the Reformatory, to grant him his final discharge, which, when granted, releases him from further custody.

The contract system of labor is forbidden in the institution, the prisoners being employed by the Commonwealth. The automobile tags issued by the State Highway Department are manufactured at the Reformatory, under the direction of the State Prison Labor Commission.

The management of the Reformatory is vested in a board of five managers appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, one member being appointed every two years for a term of ten years.

The Pennsylvania State Hospital at Harrisburg, was created by Act of Assembly approved April 14, 1845, P. L. 440, and supplement, approved April 11, 1848, P. L. 535. The counties of Adams, Berks, Bedford, Blair, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Mifflin, Perry, Schuylkill and York compose the district of this hospital. The cost of the original buildings was about $150,000. The State appropriated, subsequently, for the erection of infirmaries, heating apparatus, wash house, gas works, various repairs and improvements, and increase of the water supply, nearly $200,000, prior to 1885, when $80,000 was appropriated for a group of new buildings. By Act of May 29, 1893, $100,000 was appropriated for the purpose of tearing down and removing the central portion of the main building and the rebuilding of the same. In 1897, $150,000 was appropriated for tearing down and removing several of the old wards, and replacing the same with safer and more modern structures; this appropriation, however, was not available until 1899, when the new buildings were erected. In 1901, $133,000 was appropriated for the rebuilding of the kitchen and three wards for patients and for the erection of a laboratory; but $43,000 of this amount was utilized for the erection of kitchen and laboratory; the balance, $90,000, lapsed to the Treasury of the State, as the wards could not be built in the proper manner for that sum. The Act of May 15, 1903, appropriated $252,500 for the erection and equipping of several new buildings, and $12,000 for the purchase of additional ground and the building of a sewer. The Legislature of 1917 appropriated $20,000 for the erection and equipping of additional buildings; $1,000 for furnishings and improvements, and the Legislature of 1919 appropriated $56,500 for improvements and purchase of stock. The first patient was admitted October 6, 1851; present valuation of real estate, $1,214,169.00; of personal property, $249,894.31; total receipts for the year ending May 31, 1919, $335,785.36; expenditures, $351,623.08; number of patients, May 31, 1919—females, 660; males, 621; total, 1,281; number of medical attendants and other employees, 195. The control of the institution is vested in a board of nine trustees appointed by the Governor.

The Western State Hospital for the Insane was established by Act of June 18, 1915, P. L. 1055, as amended by Act of July 6, 1917, P. L. 749, and Act of July 16, 1919, P. L. 774, and is located at Blairsville Intersection, Indiana County. The site contains approximately fifteen hundred acres of tillable farm land and the Board of Trustees have under option about fifteen hundred acres of mountain land which they contemplate purchasing for water supply purposes.

The Legislature of 1915 appropriated, for the purchase of original lands, $40,000.00, and for the construction of new buildings and the purchase of contiguous lands the Legislature of 1917 appropriated $400,000.00. For the purpose of proceeding with the construction program the Legislature of 1919 appropriated $250,000.00.

On November 25, 1919, this institution was formerly opened for the reception of patients in the temporary dormitory building. This building will house about 200 patients and it is the plan of the Board of Trustees to utilize the labor of these patients, so far as possible and practicable, in the rougher forms of construction work incident to the erection of said institution.

By virtue of the Act of July 16, 1919, the Board of Trustees was appointed to supersede the Building Commission, thereby taking over the duties vested in said Commission by the Act of 1915. It is the plan of the Board to erect this hospital for the care of the chronic insane and to derive its population from the congestion of this class of patients in other existing institutions. The Board is protected somewhat in the consummation of this plan by the Organic Law, which makes it impossible for a judge to commit to this hospital. Its entire population is to be derived by transfer of the State Committee on Lunacy.

Up to the date of the formal opening $315,000.00 have been expended for the following purposes: Purchase of land, construction of buildings, repairs to existing appurtenances, operation of farm, general architectural and engineering expenses, administration and incidental expenses. The members of the Board of Trustees receive no compensation but are allowed their necessary traveling expenses.

The purpose of the institution is the economic maintenance and care of able bodied, quiet, harmless, chronic insane, upon an industrial basis which contemplates their regular, daily, useful employment. The per capita cost for maintenance is fixed by the law at $4.00 per week.

Many patients assist daily in the refectory, kitchen, laundry and general ward and house work, while a large number of the men are employed in out-door work, such as farming, gardening, floriculture, painting, carpentering, trench digging, road making, grading, masonry work, and the usual work of a farming population. Large sewing and mending rooms are operated by the women patients where a great deal of the clothing worn by the inmates is made. The Thaddeus Stevens Industrial School of Pennsylvania, located at Lancaster, was created under the Act of May 11, 1905, P. L. 518, as the Thaddeus Stevens Industrial and Reform School of Pennsylvania, but by Act of April 15, 1907, it was changed to the "Thaddeus Stevens Industrial School of Pennsylvania," and provides for the education and training of indigent orphans.

The Act of April 29, 1909, P. L. 275, provides that if a sufficient number of indigent orphans, qualified for admission, shall not apply, then the board of trustees may admit orphans who may not be indigent, and, afterwards, other deserving boys, though they be not orphans, as the trustees in their judgment may think proper.

Under the will of Thaddeus Stevens, the residue of his estate was transferred to a corporation, called "The Stevens Orphans' Home of Lancaster City." Up to this time, the funds of that institution amount to about $85,000, out of which $20,000 has been devoted to the building of shops on land immediately adjacent to the Thaddeus Stevens Industrial School and about $7,000 for machinery, et cetera. The purpose is to use the land, buildings and money, held by the Stevens Orphans' Home, in conjunction with that which has been and shall be furnished by the State. The Act of May 11, 1905, appropriated the sum of $50,000 and the Act of June 13, 1907, an additional sum of $100,000 to build and furnish the State buildings.

The ground upon which the buildings are located contains about twenty acres, and was purchased for a nominal consideration from the Directors of the Poor and House of Employment of Lancaster County.

An administration building, two cottages, a power plant and laundry have been erected; the furnishings have been installed, as well as a complete heating plant, and the school was opened about October 1, 1909. After the building commission completed its labors, there was a balance of $13,113.73 left from the two appropriations above mentioned, which balance, under the Act of April 23, 1909, was turned over to the trustees, to be used in the erection of new buildings, the furnishing of those already built, or in improving the grounds of the School, or such other necessary betterments as the trustees deem most advantageous to the School. Out of the above balance additional furnishings were procured, improvements made to the buildings and grounds, and a new barn building erected. The present valuation of real estate and buildings, $103,951.45; grounds $120,000.00; and of personal property, $39,118.68. The total receipts for the year ending May 31, 1919, were $31,721.05; expenditures, $31,721.05. Number of pupils May 31, 1919, 59.

The control of the institution is vested in a board of nine trustees appointed by the Governor. The Legislature of 1919 appropriated $60,000 for maintenance for the two fiscal years ending June 1, 1921.

This institution is governed by a board of nine trustees appointed by the Governor.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA, PHILADELPHIA.

The University of Pennsylvania traces its beginning to the year 1740.

Benjamin Franklin, who had made a similar proposal in 1743, in 1749 published a pamphlet, entitled Proposals Relating to the Education of Youth in Pennsylvania, which led to the formation of a board of twenty-four trustees, nineteen of whom, on the 13th of November, 1749, met for organization and to promote "the Publick Academy in the City of Philadelphia," and elected Benjamin Franklin president of the board, an office which he held until 1756. So closely was Franklin identified with the plan that Matthew Arnold called the institution "the University of Franklin." On the 1st of February, 1750, there was conveyed to this Board of Trustees the "New Building" on Fourth Street, near Arch, which had been erected in 1740 for a Charity School and as a "house of Publick Worship," in which George Whitefield had preached in November, 1740; the original trustees (including Franklin) of the "New Building" and of its projected charity school date from 1740, and therefore the University attaches to its seal the words "Founded 1740." In the "New Building" the Academy was opened on the 7th of January, 1751, the city having voted £200 in the preceding August for the completion of the building. On the 16th of September, 1751, a Charitable School "for the instruction of poor Children gratis in Reading, Writing and Arithmetick" was opened in the "New Building." The proprietaries Thomas and Richard Penn incorporated "The Trustees of the Academy and Charitable School in the Province of Pennsylvania" in 1753; and in 1755 issued a confirmatory charter, changing the corporate name to "The Trustees of the College, Academy and Charitable School," etc., whereupon William Smith (1727-1803) of the University of Aberdeen, who had become rector of the Academy in 1752 and had taken orders in the Church of England in 1753, became provost of the College. In 1756 Dr. Smith established a complete and liberal curriculum which was adopted by Bishop James Madison in 1777, when he became president of the College of William and Mary. Provost William Smith's curriculum was adopted by, and is still used as the basis of Academic instruction in most of the American Colleges and Universities. In 1757 the first college class was graduated. Under Dr. Smith's control the Latin school grew in importance at the expense of the English school, to the great annoyance of Franklin, who wished much attention given to English composition and public speaking. In 1762-1764 Dr. Smith collected for the college in England about £6,900; and in 1764 his influence had become so strong that it was feared that the college would become sectarian. The Penns and others deprecated this and the trustees bound themselves to "use their utmost endeavors that.....[the original plan] be not narrowed, nor the members of the Church of England, nor those dissenting from them.....be put on any worse footing in this seminary than they were at the time of receiving the royal brief." From September, 1777, to June, 1778, college sessions were temporarily discontinued because Philadelphia was held by British troops. In 1779 the State Legislature, on the ground that the Trustees' declaration in 1764 was a "narrowing of the foundation," confiscated the rights and property of the College and chartered a new institution "the Trustees of the University of the State of Pennsylvania." Thus it became the first educational institution in the country to be known as a "University;" and also the first "University" in fact, since it was the first to include in its general scope, professional schools, a medical school having been added to the "College" in 1765 and a law school in 1790; in 1789 the College was restored to its rights and Dr. Smith again became its provost; in 1791 the College and the University of the State of Pennsylvania were united under the title, "The University of Pennsylvania," whose trustees were elected from their own members by the board of trustees of the College and that of the University. In 1802 the University purchased new grounds on Ninth street, between Market and Chestnut, where the Post Office Building now is; there until 1829 the University occupied the building erected for the administrative mansion of the President of the United States; there new buildings were erected after 1829; and from these the University removed to its present site in 1872.

The provosts have been: in 1755-1779 and in 1789-1803, William Smith; in 1779-1791, of the University of the State of Pennsylvania, John Ewing (1732-1802); in 1807-1810, John McDowell (1750-1820); in 1810-1813, John Andrews (1746-1813); in 1813-1828, Frederick Beasley (1777-1845); in 1828-1833, William Heathcote De Lancey (1797-1865); in 1834-1853, John Ludlow (1793-1857); in 1854-1859, Henry Vethake (1792-1866); in 1860-1868, Daniel Raynes Goodwin (1811-1890); in 1868-1880, Charles Janeway Stille (1819-1899); in 1881-1894, William Pepper (1843-1898); in 1894-1911, Charles C. Harrison, (b. 1844); and in 1911, Edgar F. Smith.

During the great world war the University of Pennsylvania contributed very liberally of its resources and its equipment to the cause of democracy and humanity. During the summer of 1917 the campus was used as a camping ground by various regiments of engineers, infantry and other units; classes in French were conducted for the benefit of men in uniform in the Houston Club; and various parts of the campus were used for drilling. The class rooms of the Law School and other buildings were frequently used for conducting examinations of men in the service who were candidates for promotion. There were also conducted in the various departments of the University under government auspices special schools for training Army Medical Officers in oral surgery, neurological surgery, general surgery, orthopedic surgery, and a school for training men for navigating the seas and preparing them to take command of our new Merchant Marine. A similar course in navigation was also given to the students in the college. The first Ordnance School for giving special training to men entering the Ordnance Department was also established at the University, and used as a model for similar schools throughout the country. In the Engineering Department there were given special courses preparing men for the signal service, radio, et cetera. Most of the members of the Aviation Examining Boards throughout the United States were also trained at the parent unit organized at the University at the beginning of the war. The University Hospital conducted a number of special courses for nurses and nurses' aides. On July 1, 1918, an Officer Material School was established at the University of Pennsylvania under the auspices of the United States Navy, which was conducted for enlisted men in the Navy showing special ability. Each course extended over a period of three months, and was attended by a squad of 200 men. The courses were given in the Engineering Building and the men quartered in the dormitories of the University. It is thus seen that several thousand men besides the regular University of Pennsylvania students were trained annually at the University for special branches of the U. S. service.

Besides this the University of Pennsylvania organized among her sons three ambulance units, a Base Hospital, several Red Cross units and various detached units. The University Hospital set aside 250 of its beds for the special use of the Army and Navy. Many of the University laboratories were turned over to and used by the government and its special experts. Among these were the laboratories of the Veterinary Department, the various special pathological and bacteriological laboratories. Various laboratories in the Engineering Building were turned over to the United States Shipping Board, where it carried on routine work for the Department of Concrete Ship Construction of the Emergency Fleet. The various testing laboratories of the Engineering School were also used by the United States Signal Corps Instruction Department in testing airplane tubes, et cetera.

During the spring of 1917 there were almost 2,000 men enrolled in a voluntary student battalion, who pursued a course on military tactics under Colonel William Kelly. During the winter of 1917-18 a Reserve Officers' Training Corps was established under Major Charles T. Griffith of the U. S. Army, in which about 900 students were enrolled; and in the fall of 1918 the University was prepared to conduct a four-year course in military science for students in order that they might be fitted to become leaders in the Army and Navy of the United States. Those finishing the four-year course were to receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Military Tactics. Up to commencement exercises, held in June, 1919, the University had a record of 8,742 students and alumni in the United States Army and Navy. Two hundred of these have been reported dead, wounded or missing, and several hundred decorated for bravery and distinguished service. The total number of men in the service will probably reach 11,000 when all war records are completed. A war-time feature of the first academic term of 1918-19 at the University of Pennsylvania was the formation of a Students' Army Training Corps, containing 2,440 men, and a Naval Unit, containing 450 men. The students satisfied the regular entrance examinations and were all enlisted men of the army or navy, under direct control of the United States authorities, and received their tuition, lodging, clothing, and food free of cost to themselves, in addition to receiving the pay of an enlisted soldier or sailor. The signing of the armistice in November was the cause, in a few weeks, of the disbandment of these men, but many of them returned to the University later to register as regular students.

In the fall of 1919 the Reserve Officers, Training Corps was resumed at the University under the direction of Lt. Col. Sheldon W. Anding, Infantry, U. S. Army. The number of students enrolled in this corps in October, 1919, was 146. These men will be given a two years' basic course in the fundamental principles of military drill and instruction, at the end of which time they will be permitted to elect another two years' advanced course, which will include higher military subjects.

Some idea of the wonderful growth of the University of Pennsylvania may be found in comparison of the registration figures with those of former years. It is of interest to record that in the autumn of 1872, when the new College Hall in West Philadelphia was occupied, the entire student registration, all departments, was only 780, and the officers of instruction aggregated 41.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH, PITTSBURGH, ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

(The Western University of Pennsylvania.)

The University of Pittsburgh had its origin in the Pittsburgh Academy, which received its charter from the Legislature on February 28, 1787. At that time Pittsburgh was a small village in the forks of the two rivers which unite to form the Ohio. The young institution was planted in Pittsburgh because, as stated in the charter, any school or college already established was greatly distant from the country west of the Allegheny Mountains. Its avowed purpose was to furnish to the youth in Western Pennsylvania education in "the useful arts, science and literature." The original incorporators were men distinguished in public life in the western part of the State. The Academy flourished under a number of different principals until in 1810 Rev. Dr. Joseph Stockton, eminent in letters and in education, became the principal. In Dr. Stockton's administration it became evident that the Academy could not provide Western Pennsylvania with the educational facilities urgently required and that the institution must be enlarged.

Meanwhile, the Constitution adopted in 1790 made provision for the establishment by the State of "one or more seminaries of learning." Clearly one of these should be in Philadelphia, and in 1791 the two institutions there were re-incorporated under the title "The University of Pennsylvania." Following a similar plan for the western part of the State, the Legislature in 1819 re-incorporated in Pittsburgh the Pittsburgh Academy under the title of "The Western University of Pennsylvania."

By separate act the Legislature made to the newly created University a large grant of valuable land. The title to this land failing by reason of accrued rights in adjacent land owners, the Legislature made a money appropriation for the erection of a building on the land already owned by the University. In 1822 the new faculty was inducted into office, with Dr. Robert Bruce as the head. While for many years the University confined itself principally to instruction in the liberal arts, yet about 1840 a flourishing law school was established, under the headship of Honorable Walter H. Lowrie, and courses in engineering were offered, the first student graduating from this latter department in 1846. The buildings were destroyed in the great fire of 1845 and again in 1849, the latter interrupting the work for a season. In 1908 the University acquired title to 43 acres of land in the Schenley district, a most eligible location, on which several new buildings have been erected and others are in course of erection. In the same year, without change of charter, the University became known as the "University of Pittsburgh."

The chancellors, in earlier years called principals, have been as follows: Robert Bruce, 1822-1843; Herman Dyer, 1843-1849; David H. Riddle (acting), 1849-1856; John F. McLaren, 1855-1858; George Woods, 1858-1880; Henry Mitchell MacCracken, 1880-1884; Milton B. Goff, 1884-1890; William J. Holland, 1890-1900; John A. Brashear (acting), 1900-1904; and Samuel Black McCormick, from 1904.

The Pennsylvania State College, located in the village of State College, Centre County, was established and is now maintained by the joint action of the Federal Government and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Chartered by an Act of the State Legislature approved February 22, 1855, as the "Farmers' High School," it served a small but useful purpose until the passing of the so-called "Land Grant" Act of Congress in 1862, which offered to each State and Territory a portion of the public lands for the maintenance of an institution of higher learning, provided the State would furnish the necessary buildings and a portion of the equipment. The Legislature of Pennsylvania accepted this offer by an Act approved April 1, 1863, and pledged the faith of the State to carry the same into effect. Under this agreement the college became the Pennsylvania representative of a chain of State institutions of higher education, one being located in each State of the Union. In 1874 the name was changed and it has since been known as "The Pennsylvania State College."

According to the terms of its foundation, the college is required to teach such branches of learning as are related to Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, without excluding other scientific and classical studies and including military tactics. This is to be done in such manner as the Legislature of the State may prescribe, "in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." Upon this broad foundation, the college is supported by public taxation through biennial appropriations of varying amounts made by the State Legislature: and by permanent appropriations made by Congress amounting to $80,000 annually for instructional purposes, $30,000 annually for experimental purposes, and varying amounts for agricultural extension purposes.

The college property, embracing about 1,350 acres of land and 40 buildings, is valued at $2,779,851. About 100 acres are appropriated for campus purposes and the remainder devoted to agricultural experiments and the maintenance of the college livestock; this stock is also used for experimental purposes. In addition to the work of instruction at the College, various extension activities in the shape of short courses of study, county agents, experimental orchards, farmers' and miners' institutes, Farmers' Weeks, apprentice classes, general lecture courses and night schools are conducted in different parts of the State. An Agricultural Experiment Station and an Engineering Experiment Station are maintained at State College as integral parts of the institution.

The principal buildings erected by appropriations made by the State Legislature are: The Engineering Buildings, the Agricultural Buildings, the Chemistry Buildings, the Dairy Building, the Mining Buildings, the Liberal Arts Building, the Engineering Experimental Station Buildings, and the Home Economics Building. From private benefactions have been constructed the Carnegie Library and the Schwab Auditorium. Two large dormitories accommodate about 400 students, composed of both men and women. An athletic field of eighteen acres, with modern improvements, supplies an unusual playground. Water is supplied from mountain reservoirs. The location of the college, 1,200 feet above sea level, insures pure air and a healthy environment. The surroundings are largely responsible for the unusual growth in number of students during the year as well as in the Summer Sessions for Teachers.

The various schools and departments into which the college is divided and the courses of study offered in each are shown in the following schedule:

The Pennsylvania State Forest Academy was founded by Dr. J. T. Rothrock, the first Commissioner of Forestry, in response to a call made for the preparation of foresters to administer the State Forests. The school was opened in 1902, was firmly established by the Act of May 13, 1903, P. L. 373, and has since been busily engaged in imparting instruction to selected young men who are preparing themselves for a forestry career upon State forests. The capacity of the Academy is limited to thirty students, ten in each class, and the course comprises three years' instruction of forty-eight weeks each. Students at graduation receive the degree of Bachelor of Forestry. The grade of the Academy is in all respects equal to that of other under-graduate institutions conferring a similar degree.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen United States of America.

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislature.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from Punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies.

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with Power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free People.

Nor have We been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

Note.—This document as published above was copied from "Charters and Constitutions of the United States" compiled under an order of the United States Senate by Ben. Perley Poore and issued in 1877. In said publication the proof was compared with the fac-simile of the original by Mr. Ferdinand Jefferson, the Keeper of the Rolls at the Department of State, at Washington. He says: "In the fac-simile, as in the original, the whole instrument runs on without a break, but dashes are mostly inserted. I have, in this copy, followed the arrangement of paragraphs adopted in the publication of the Declaration in the newspaper of John Dunlap, and as printed by him for the Congress, which printed copy is inserted in the original Journal of the old Congress. The same paragraphs are also made by the author, in the original draught preserved in the Department of State."

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.*

[This Constitution went into operation on the first Wednesday in March, 1789, 5, Wheat., 420 and is identical, as to spelling, punctuation, and capitalization, with the original document on file at Washington.]

PREAMBLE.

WE THE PEOPLE of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this CONSTITUTION for the United States of America.

ARTICLE. I.

Legislative Powers Vested in Congress.

Section. 1. All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Composition of the House of Representatives.

Section. 2. 1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

*In May, 1785, a committee of Congress made a report recommending an alteration in the Articles of Confederation, but no action was taken on it, and it was left to the State Legislatures to proceed in the matter. In January, 1786, the Legislature of Virginia passed a resolution providing for the appointment of five commissioners, who, or any three of them, should meet such commissioners as might be appointed in other States of the Union, at a time and place to be agreed upon, to take into consideration the trade of the United States; to consider how far a uniform system in their commercial regulations may be necessary to their common interest and their permanent harmony; and to report to the several States such an act, relative to this great object, as, when ratified by them, will enable the United States in Congress effectually to provide for the same. The Virginia commissioners, after some correspondence, fixed the first Monday in September as the time, and the city of Annapolis as the place for the meeting, but only four States were represented, viz: Delaware, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; the commissioners appointed by Massachusetts, New Hampshire, North Carolina and Rhode Island failed to attend. Under the circumstances of so partial a representation, the commissioners present agreed upon a report (drawn by Mr. Hamilton, of New York), expressing their unanimous conviction that it might essentially tend to advance the interests of the Union if the States by which they were respectively delegated would concur, and use their endeavors to procure the concurrence of the other States, in the appointment of commissioners to meet at Philadelphia on the second Monday of May following, to take into consideration the situation of the United States; to devise such further provisions as should appear to them necessary to render the Constitution of the Federal Government adequate as the exigencies of the Union; and to report such an act for that purpose to the United States in Congress assembled as, when agreed to by them and afterwards confirmed by the Legislatures of every State, would effectively provide for the same.

Congress, on the 21st of February, 1787, adopted a resolution in favor of a convention, and the Legislatures of those States which had not already done so (with the exception of Rhode Island), promptly appointed delegates. On the 25th of May, seven States having convened, George Washington, of Virginia, was unanimously elected President, and the consideration of the proposed constitution was commenced. On the 17th of September, 1787, the Constitution as engrossed and agreed upon was signed by all the members present, except Mr. Gerry, of Massachusetts, and Messrs. Mason and Randolph, of Virginia. The President of the convention transmitted it to Congress, with a resolution stating how the proposed Federal Government should be put in operation, and an explanatory letter. Congress, on the 28th of September, 1787, directed the Constitution so framed, with the resolutions and letter concerning the same, to "be transmitted to the several Legislatures in order to be submitted to a convention of delegates chosen in each State by the people thereof, in conformity to the resolves of the convention."

On the 4th of March, 1789, the day which had been fixed for commencing the operations of Government under the new Constitution, it had been ratified by the convention chosen in each State, to consider it, as follows: Delaware, December 7, 1787; Pennsylvania, December 12, 1787; New Jersey, December 18, 1787; Georgia, January 2, 1788; Connecticut, January 9, 1788; Massachusetts, February 6, 1788; Maryland, April 28, 1788; South Carolina, May 23, 1788; New Hampshire, June 21, 1788; Virginia, June 26, 1788; and New York, July 26, 1788. The President informed Congress, on the 28th of January, 1790, that North Carolina had ratified the Constitution November 21, 1789; and he informed Congress on the 1st of June, 1790, that Rhode Island had ratified the Constitution May 29, 1789. Vermont, in convention, ratified the Constitution January 10, 1789, and was, by an act of Congress approved February 19, 1791, "received and admitted into this Union as a new and entire member of the United States."

CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA.

[This Constitution took effect on January 1, 1874, for all purposes not otherwise provided for therein.—Sec. 1, Schedule, and is identical, as to spelling, punctuation and capitalization with the original copy on file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth at Harrisburg.]

PREAMBLE.

We, the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of civil and religious liberty, and humbly invoking His guidance, do ordain and establish this Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

DECLARATION OF RIGHTS.

That the general, great and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and unalterably established, We DECLARE THAT—

Inherent Rights of Mankind.

Section 1. All men are born equally free and independent, and have certain inherent and indefeasible rights, among which are these of enjoying and defending life and liberty, of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and reputation, and of pursuing their own happiness.

Political Power.

Section 2. All power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their peace, safety and happiness. For the advancement of these ends they have at all times an inalienable and indefeasible right to alter, reform or abolish their government in such manner as they may think proper.

Religious Freedom.

Section 3. All men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences, no man can of right be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship; or to maintain any ministry against his consent; no human authority can, in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience, and no preference shall ever be given by law to any religious establishments or modes of worship.

Religion.

Section 4. No person who acknowledges the being of a God and a future state of rewards and punishments shall, on account of his religious sentiments, be disqualified to hold any office or place of trust or profit under this Commonwealth.

Elections.

Section 5. Elections shall be free and equal; and no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage.

Trial by Jury.

Section 6. Trial by jury be as heretofore, and the right thereof remain inviolate.

Freedom of Press and Speech—Libels.

Section 7. The printing press shall be free to every person who may undertake to examine the proceedings of the legislature or any branch of government, and no law shall ever be made to restrain the right thereof. The free communication of thoughts and opinions is one of the invaluable rights of man, and every citizen may freely publish, write and print on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty. No conviction shall be had in any prosecution for the publication of papers relating to the official conduct of officers or men in public capacity, or to any other matter proper for public investigation or information, where the fact that such publication was not maliciously or negligently made shall be established to the satisfaction of the jury; and in all indictments for libels the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases.

Security from Searches and Seizures.

Section 8. The people shall be secure in their persons, houses, papers and possessions from unreasonable searches and seizures, and no warrant to search any place or to seize any person or things shall issue without describing them as nearly as may be, nor without probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation subscribed to by the affiant.

Rights of Accused in Criminal Prosecutions.

Section 9. In all criminal prosecutions the accused hath a right to be heard by himself and his counsel, to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, to meet the witnesses face to face, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and, in prosecutions by indictment or information, a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the vicinage; he cannot be compelled to give evidence against himself, nor can he be deprived of his life, liberty or property, unless by the judgment of his peers or the law of the land.

Criminal Informations—Twice in Jeopardy.

Section 10. No person shall, for any indictable offence, be proceeded against criminally by information, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war or public danger, or by leave of the court for oppression or misdemeanor in office. No person shall, for the same offence, be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall private property be taken or applied to public use, without authority of law and without just compensation being first made or secured.

Courts to be Open—Suits Against the State.

Section 11. All courts shall be open; and every man for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person or reputation shall have remedy by due course of law, and right and justice administered without sale, denial or delay. Suits may be brought against the Commonwealth in such manner, in such courts and in such cases as the legislature may by law direct.

Power of Suspending Laws.

Section 12. No power of suspending laws shall be exercised unless by the legislature or by its authority.

Effect of Attainder Limited—No Forfeiture for Suicide or in Case of Death by Casualty.

Section 19. No attainder shall work corruption of blood, nor, except during the life of the offender, forfeiture of estate to the Commonwealth. The estate of such persons as shall destroy their own lives shall descend or vest as in cases of natural death, and if any person shall be killed by casualty there shall be no forfeiture by reason thereof.

In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of said city of Philadelphia, at any time, there shall be excluded from the calculation a credit, where the work resulting from any previous expenditure, for any one or more of the specific purposes hereinabove enumerated shall be yielding to said city an annual current net revenue; the amount of which credit shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment. Such capitalization shall be accomplished by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual, current net revenue, at the average rate of interest, and sinking-fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes, up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount, so to be excluded or allowed as a credit, may be prescribed by the General Assembly.

The method of determining such amount, so to be deducted, may be prescribed by the General Assembly. In incurring indebtedness for any purpose the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty (50) years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking-fund sufficient to retire said obligations at maturity, the payment to such sinking-fund to be in equal or graded annual or other periodical instalments. HISTORY OF THE SEVERAL CONSTITUTIONS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

DATES OF CONVENTIONS AND TIME OF ADOPTION.

Constitution of 1776.

The Constitution of Pennsylvania of 1776 was inspired by the following resolution passed by the Continental Congress:

"In Congress, May 15, 1776.

Whereas, His Britannic Majesty, in conjunction with the lords and commons of Great Britain, has by a late act of parliament, excluded the inhabitants of these United Colonies from the protection of his crown: And whereas, no answer whatever, to the humble petitions of the colonies for redress of grievances and reconciliation with Great Britain, has been, or is likely to be given, but the whole force of that kingdom, aided by foreign mercenaries, is to be exerted for the destruction of the good people of these colonies: And whereas, it appears absolutely irreconcilable to reason and good conscience, for the people of these colonies, now to take the oaths and affirmations necessary for the support of any government, under the crown of Great Britain; and it is necessary that the exercise of every kind of authority, under the said crown should be totally suppressed, and all the powers of government exerted, under the authority of the people of the colonies, for the preservation of internal peace, virtue and good order, as well as for the defense of their lives, liberties and properties, against the hostile invasions and cruel depredations of their enemies. Therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended to the respective assemblies and conventions of the United Colonies, where no government sufficient to the exigencies of their affairs, has been hitherto established, to adopt such government as shall in the opinion of the representatives of the people, best conduce to the happiness and safety of their constituents in particular, and America in general.

By order of the Congress,

JOHN HANCOCK, President."

In accordance with this resolution and a call issued thereunder by the committee of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, 103 deputies were appointed by the committees of the city of Philadelphia and the several counties of the province, to meet in provincial conference. Ninety-seven of the deputies convened at Carpenter's Hall, in Philadelphia, on June 18, and elected Thomas McKean president of the conference. They continued in session until June 25, 1776, and unanimously agreed that a provincial convention should be called for the purpose of forming a new government in the province, and fixed Monday, July 8, as the time for the election of the members of the convention.

The convention was composed of ninety-six members and was in session in Philadelphia from July 15 to September 28, 1776. Benjamin Franklin was the president of the body. The "Bill of Rights and Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania" adopted was committed to the charge of the Council of Safety, with directions to deliver the same to the General Assembly of the State, at their first meeting, immediately after they had chosen their speaker.

Constitution of 1790.

On March 24, 1789, the General Assembly, which then consisted of but one House, viz: the House of Representatives, passed a resolution submitting to the people the question of calling a convention to draft a new Constitution. At the following election the majority of votes cast favored the calling of such convention. The General Assembly, on September 14, 1789, then passed a resolution recommending that the people of the Commonwealth should at the succeeding election choose delegates to a constitutional convention to meet on November 24, 1789.

Sixty-nine delegates were elected to this convention, which assembled in Philadelphia on the above date. Thomas Mifflin was elected president of the convention. The convention completed the drafting of the new Constitution and adjourned finally on September 2, 1790.

Constitution of 1835.

By an act approved April 14, 1835, the qualified electors were permitted to vote at the next following general election for or against calling a constitutional convention. The proposition was carried. The act of March 29, 1836, prescribed the time of meeting of the convention and fixed Friday, November 4, 1836, as the day on which delegates should be elected. The convention was composed of 133 members, and assembled at the capitol at Harrisburg on May 2, 1837. John Sergeant, of Philadelphia, was elected president. On November 23, the convention adjourned to meet on November 28, in Musical Fund Hall, in Philadelphia, where, on February 22, 1838, the amended Constitution was adopted and signed. It was submitted to the electors and ratified by them at an election held on October 9, 1838, there being 113,971 votes in favor of and 112,759 against its adoption. The alterations and amendments went into effect on January 1, 1839. Amendments to this Constitution were adopted in 1850, 1857, 1864 and 1872.

Constitution of 1873.

By an act approved June 2, 1871, the question of calling a convention for the purpose of forming a new Constitution was submitted to the people on October 10, 1871, and was favorably decided by a vote of 316,097 for and 69,715 against. The act regulating the holding of the convention was approved April 11, 1872, the number of delegates was fixed at one hundred and thirty-three, and they were elected on October 8, 1872. The convention met in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg on November 12, 1872, and adjourned November 27, to meet in Philadelphia, January 7, 1873, where the balance of its sessions were held. William M. Meredith, of Philadelphia, was elected president. He died August 17, 1873, during an adjournment. The convention on reconvening September 16 elected as his successor John H. Walker, of Erie county, who had served during the previous sessions as president pro tem. On November 3, 1873, the convention finished its work of drafting the present Constitution. THE STATE CAPITAL AND CAPITOL BUILDINGS.

Former and Present Location of State Capital.

William Penn, "proprietor and governor," located at Chester, October 28, 1682. The first Assembly of the Province was held there a few weeks later, and the "Great Law" was passed. The following year the government was established in Philadelphia, which remained the Capital until 1799. By the act of April 3, 1799, Lancaster became the capital on the first Monday of November, 1799. On February 21, 1810, an act was approved requiring that the offices of the State government, during the month of October, 1812, be moved to Harrisburg, which, by said act, was fixed and declared to be the seat of government. On February 7, 1812, a supplement was passed to this act providing that the removal should be made in April, 1812, and, accordingly, the offices were removed about April 1, 1812, and Harrisburg from that time has continued to be the capital of the State.

The Capitol Buildings at Harrisburg.

An act passed March 18, 1816, P. L. 148, provided for the erection of a State Capitol at Harrisburg. Under this act, two wings of the building were built. A supplemental act was passed January 27, 1819, P. L. 43, provided for the completion of the building. This was further supplemented by an act passed March 28, 1820, P. L. 134.

The Legislature occupied the new building on January 2, 1821, apparently without further action than a joint meeting for prayer.

An act passed March 30, 1821, P. L. 157, supplemented by an act passed January 23, 1822, P. L. 5, provided for furnishing the new Capitol.

The appropriation acts of 1864, P. L. 250 and 1013, provided for the building of an extension to the building. The appropriation acts of April 11, 1866, P. L. 81, and April 11, 1867, P. L. 18, provided for the completion of the wing used for the library.

A new building for the use of the library and other departments was authorized by an act passed April 14, 1893, P. L. 17. This building was completed during 1894; cornerstone laid December 15, 1893.

The main building of the Capitol was destroyed by fire at noon February 2, 1897, the Legislature had been in session, and on the following day, February third, the Senate met in the Supreme Court room, located in the south wing, and the House assembled in the United States District Court room, in the post office building. Sessions of the two Houses were held February third and February fourth in these rooms; arrangements having been made the Legislature, on February eighth and for the balance of the session of 1897, occupied Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Harrisburg.

The act of April 14, 1897, P. L. 19, supplemented by the act of July 18, 1901, P. L. 713, authorized the erection of the present building, excavations for which were commenced May 2, 1898; a cornerstone was laid August 10, 1898, but later this was not considered representative of the proposed building, hence on May 5, 1904, a new stone was laid on the corner to the right of the main entrance, and the building rapidly constructed and dedicated October 4, 1906.

Four regular sessions of the Legislature were held in the Capitol during the construction period, viz.:—1899, 1901, 1903 and 1905, also the extra session of 1906.

CLASSIFICATION OF THE COUNTIES OF PENNSYLVANIA

AN ACT

Dividing the counties of this Commonwealth into eight classes; designating the mode of ascertaining and changing the classification of counties; and providing for the regulation of their affairs according to their respective classes.

Whereas, One of the justices of the Supreme Court in a concurring opinion expressed the thought that counties had never been classified as had cities; and

Whereas, The General Assembly has heretofore for the purposes of legislation on particular subjects classified counties without regard to any uniformity or general classification, many of which acts have been declared unconstitutional; and

Whereas, The great diversity in population and the physical condition of the several counties requires separate laws for their government and the regulation of their affairs; therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That for the purposes of legislation and the regulation of their affairs, counties of this Commonwealth now in existence and those hereafter erected shall be divided into eight classes as follows:

Those having a population of one million five hundred thousand inhabitants and over, shall constitute the first class.

Those having a population of eight hundred thousand and more but less than one million five hundred thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the second class.

Those having a population of two hundred and fifty thousand and more but less than eight hundred thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the third class.

Those having a population of one hundred fifty thousand and more but less than two hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the fourth class.

Those having a population of one hundred thousand and more but less than one hundred fifty thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the fifth class.

Those having a population of fifty thousand and more but less than one hundred thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the sixth class.

Those having a population of twenty thousand and more but less than fifty thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the seventh class.

Those having a population of less than twenty thousand inhabitants, shall constitute the eighth class.

Section 2. The classification of counties shall be ascertained and fixed according to their population by reference, from time to time, to the last preceding decennial United States census. Whenever it shall appear by any such census that any county has attained a population entitling it to an advance in classification as herein prescribed, it shall be the duty of the Governor, under the great seal of this Commonwealth, to certify that fact accordingly, which certificate shall be forwarded to the recorder of deeds of the proper county, and be recorded in his office.

Section 3. The affairs of counties shall hereafter be legislated for, and regulated by, the general laws of this Commonwealth applicable to all counties or to particular classes as herein fixed and appointed. All laws hereafter adopted by the General Assembly for one or more of the classes herein fixed and appointed shall be deemed to be general laws.

Section 4. All acts and parts of acts of Assembly relative to the several counties of this Commonwealth in force prior to the adoption of this act shall remain in force in the same manner and with the same effect in the several counties as prior to the adoption of this act. (Act of July 10, 1919, P. L. 887.)

*CLASSIFICATION OF THE CITIES OF PENNSYLVANIA.

AN ACT

Dividing the cities of this State into three classes with respect to their population, and designating the mode of ascertaining and changing the classification thereof in accordance therewith.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That for the purposes of legislation, regulating their municipal affairs, the exercise of certain corporate powers and having respect to the number, character, powers and duties of certain officers thereof, the cities now in existence and those hereafter created in this Commonwealth shall be divided into three classes:

Those containing a population of one million or over shall constitute the first class.

Those containing a population of one hundred thousand and under one million, shall constitute the second class.

Those containing a population under one hundred thousand, shall constitute the third class.

Section 2. The classification of said cities respectively shall be ascertained and fixed by reference to their population according to the last preceding United States census, and whenever it shall appear by any such census that any city of the second or third class has attained a population entitling it to an advance in classification as herein prescribed, it shall be the duty of the Governor, under the great seal of this Commonwealth, to certify the fact accordingly, which certificate shall be entered at large upon the minutes of the councils of such city, and recorded in the office for recording the deeds of the proper county. At the municipal election occurring not less than one month after the date of such certificate, the proper officers shall be elected to which the said city will become entitled under the change in classification, and upon the first Monday of April next ensuing, the terms of all officers of said city then in office whose officers are superseded by reason thereof shall cease and determine, and the city government shall be duly organized, and shall thereafter be controlled and regulated by the laws of this Commonwealth applicable to the same under the classification hereby fixed and appointed. (Act of June 25, 1895, P. L. 275.)

*By the Acts of May 28, 1907, P. L. 268, and May 13, 1915, P. L. 306, cities of the third class shall be chartered whenever a majority of the electors of any town, township, or borough, or any two or more contiguous towns, townships, or boroughs, situate within the limits of the same county or situate in two or more contiguous counties, and having together a population of at least ten thousand, according to the last preceding United States census, shall each separately vote at any election in favor of the same; and by the Act of July 22, 1919, P. L. 1113, a method is provided whereby cities of the third class may surrender their charters and become boroughs.

†By the Act approved March 2, 1911, P. L. 9, the terms of all city officers begin on the first Monday of January in even numbered years succeeding their election.

DIGEST OF ELECTION LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

(Corrected to July 1, 1919.)

INTRODUCTORY.

This compilation has been prepared with a view of giving to the public, the laws governing the enrollment of voters, personal registration in cities of the first, second and third classes, nomination at party and non-partisan primaries, and, with few exceptions, the General Election Laws of the States now in force, with the proper references and in the specific form in which enacted so arranged under appropriate divisions and sub-divisions as to be easily found and clearly understood. This has been a difficult task by reason of the many enactments, re-enactments and repeals, together with the lack of judicial decisions thereon, and the variety of subjects often contained in the same section. The separation of a section would frequently impair the sense; hence, in some cases, the course adopted has been to insert the section under some one of the appropriate heads and to make a full and exhaustive index of the whole.

The United States laws governing naturalization and the provisions of the Constitutions of the State and United States and also the more important Federal Laws bearing upon the subject in general, have been inserted, but on account of lack of space it was found impracticable to include the various special county, city, township and borough election laws.

Judicial decisions on oft recurring questions are attached to the particular sections which they interpret.

ARTICLE I.

At Every Registration Voters Shall be Enrolled as to Party Preferences.

16. On the Spring registration day the registrars shall, in addition to the registration of electors, strike from the list the names of such persons as shall be proven, to their satisfaction by the affidavits of at least two qualified electors of the division, to have died, or removed from the division, since the last registration. The registrars shall record on blank forms provided for that purpose the names and previous places of registration, giving wards and divisions, of all persons, registered by them on said day, who give as such place of previous registration a place in the same city, and shall forward the same to the commissioners for their information. Thereafter, upon the return of the registers to the office of the commissioners, it shall be their duty to examine the same, and, whenever registered persons have given as their last place of registration another election division in the same city, to strike said name from the register of said division of prior residence, and to note thereon the reason for so removing the name.

At any time between the November election and the ten days before the Spring primary, any registered elector, who has removed from one election division to another in the same city two calendar months prior to the Spring primary, may apply at the office of the commission and have the registry of his name transferred from the division from which he has removed to the one in which he has taken up his new residence. It shall be the duty of the commissioners, upon satisfactory proof of the elector's identity, to strike his name from the register in the division from which he has removed, to examine him in the regular way as to his qualifications, and, if his answers are satisfactory to the commissioners, to register him in the division to which he has removed. Provided, however, That in no case shall an elector change the registration of the designation of his political party later than the fifth Wednesday before the Spring primary. (Act 1913, Sec. 10, P. L. 985.)

20. At the end of each day's registration the registrars shall compare the two registers so kept, and cause any errors in either of them to be corrected by aid of the entries in the other, so as to make the same agree, where there is any difference between them. All of the registrars shall then sign their initials, on the line immediately under the last names registered, under each letter in both books, together with the date. At the close of both Fall and Spring registrations the registrars shall sign a certificate, the forms of which shall be printed on the last page of the register, setting forth the number of persons registered on each day, and the number of names which have been stricken out, if any. (Act 1913, Sec. 13, P. L. 986.)

These lists shall contain the names of the electors, and their addresses, in the order in which their residences appear upon the streets of the district. One of said "street lists" shall be hung outside the polling-place, and shall remain in that position until the next election. The other shall be returned to the office of the commissioners, and at least one hundred exact copies of it shall be printed in pamphlet form, and shall be ready for distribution, at least three weeks before election day. (Act 1913, Sec. 14, P. L. 987.)

Petitions Objecting to Action of Registrars May be Filed With the Commissioners, Who Shall Give Public Hearing and May Correct Register.

22. If any citizen shall object to the action of the registrars in accepting or rejecting any claim for registration, he may file with his petition, duly sworn to by said citizens, with the commissioners, setting forth the ground of his complaint. If the complaint is to the acceptance of a claim, notice to the claimant shall be given by leaving a written or printed notice at his place of residence, as given by him to the registrar and recorded in the register. When such petitions are filed the commissioners shall fix a time and place for hearing them, sufficiently in advance of the election to enable the same to be heard and disposed of prior thereto, and to have a review thereof by the courts. Such hearing shall be public before the commissioners, and the register of voters may be amended, either by the insertion of a new name, or the cancellation of a name already on the register, or otherwise, as the commissioners may order. The commissioners may enforce their orders as herein provided, or may make amendments themselves, or by their clerks. All such applications for correcting the register must be made not later than two weeks prior to a general or municipal election. * * * (Act 1915, Sec. 1, P. L. 1025.)

23. * * * The applicant, or any elector who is not satisfied with the decision of the commissioners, may petition the court of common pleas, setting forth the reason why he feels that justice has been done, and thereupon the said court of common pleas may, in its discretion, allow an appeal to it from the decision of the commissioners. The said court may then fix a day for a public hearing, of which notice shall be served by the petitioner upon the commissioners, together with a copy of the petition, at least five days before such public hearing may take place, proof of which must be exhibited to the court. The said court after such public hearing may reverse, affirm or alter the decision of the commissioners. Such petitions for appeals must be filed not later than ten days preceding an election. * * * (Act 1915, Sec. 1, P. L. 1025.)

An appeal from the decision of the commissioners of registration refusing an application for registration, may be taken to the court of common pleas upon allowance by that court, but no further appeal is given by the statute. Saurman's Case, 218 Pa. 291.

24. * * * Any qualified elector who has, by himself or his duly authorized agent or attorney, paid his taxes after the last day of the fall registration, and on or before the final day for the payment of the same in odd-numbered years, or any qualified elector who will arrive at the age of twenty-one years between the primary election and the next succeeding election, or any elector who has become qualified by reason of naturalization, or residence in the division in which he seeks to be registered, between the primary election and the next succeeding election, may, on the twentieth day preceding the election in odd-numbered years, present his petition to the commissioners, setting forth the fact as to the payment of his taxes, and giving in detail the information required to be recorded in the register, and praying that his name may be added to the register in the proper division. If the facts are proven to the satisfaction of the commissioners, subject to the same conditions as though the applicant for such registration had presented himself for registration before the board of registrars of his district, they shall order the name of the petitioner to be inserted in the register in the proper place. * * * (Act 1915, Sec. 1, P. L. 1025.)

Elector, Unable to Appear, on Account of Sickness, or Unavoidable Absence on all Registration Days, May Petition Commissioners to be Registered—Disposition of Petition—Elector May be Challenged—Elector, Dissatisfied With Commissioners' Decision, May Petition Court—Power of Commissioners.

25. * * * Any qualified elector who was too ill to appear at the polling-place on all of the registration days, or who was unavoidably absent from the city on all of said days, may at any time, but not less than two weeks before any election or primary, present his petition to the commissioners, setting forth the facts as to his illness or unavoidable absence, and setting forth in detail the information required to be recorded in the register, and praying that his name may be added to the register of the proper division. After his petition shall have remained in the office of the commissioners, open to public inspection for at least two days, a hearing shall be granted. The petitioner shall personally appear, and, if the facts are proven to the satisfaction of the commissioners to be as reported, they shall order the name of the petitioner to be inserted on the register in the proper place. This hearing shall be public, and any qualified elector of the division shall have the right to challenge and to require proper proof of identity, as in the case of registry before the registrars. If any person is not satisfied with the decision of the commissioners, he may appeal to the court of common pleas, as in other cases. The commissioners shall also have power to investigate, on their own motion, any irregularities in registration, and shall have power to summon witnesses, to examine them under oath, to require the production of the books and papers of the registrars, and to correct the registers by striking off names which they may find to be improperly registered. * * * (Act 1915, Sec. 1, P. L. 1025.)

A person presented a petition to the court of common pleas averring that he had in his possession naturalization papers, but had mislaid them, and did not find them in time to present them to the board of registrars. That subsequently he appeared in person before the commissioners of registration, and, produced all proofs of his qualifications as an elector, including a certified copy of his naturalization papers, but they refused to register him because he had not produced the papers on one of the three registering days. The court allowed the appeal and indorsed on the petition "name to be added." It did not appear that he had presented a petition to the commissioners alleging error in the action of the registrars, nor did he allege that he was prevented from registering by illness or unavoidable absence from the county. Held, that the common pleas had no jurisdiction, and that all of the proceedings before that court should be quashed. Mulholland's Case, 217 Pa., 631.
